What Do You Know About North Carolina?

By FRED H. MAY

- 1. Who was the former governor of North Carolina who died in Guatemala? 2. When did Rowan county have a gold mining town with a population of over 3,000? 3. What provision was made to finance the building of the first church in North Carolina? 4. What contract was there between the corn crops of the eastern and western counties in 1845? 5. Did North Carolina close her public schools during the war of 1861-1865? 6. How many sought the Democratic nomination for governor in 1928?

ANSWERS

- 1. William Miller, of Warren county, governor of North Carolina from 1814 to 1817. In 1825 President John Quincy Adams appointed him chargé d'affaires to Guatemala where he died the next year. 2. In 1856 Gold Hill, Rowan county, was a thriving mining town. Reports show that 3,000 laborers alone were employed in operations there. The place was established in 1842. In 1930 Gold Hill had a population of 156. An effort is being made now to open some of the Gold Hill mines again. 3. The Vestry act of 1701 provided for a poll tax to be levied on all the tithable of the parish. First, however, the wardens were to try to secure funds through subscriptions. Should this fail then the poll tax was to be collected. 4. There was a complete failure of the crop in the Piedmont and mountain counties and corn jumped from 50 cents to $1.50 per bushel. The counties in Eastern Carolina had bumper crops and corn was rotting in the fields. 5. They were kept open. Calvin H. Wiley of Guilford county, who was elected State school head in 1861, when the office was created, was successful in keeping the schools open throughout the entire war. 6. O. Max Gardner was unopposed as the Democratic candidate.

Cotton Gins Repair Scales

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In The Str Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—Reports of North Carolina Department of Agriculture weight experts indicate that only about one-fifth of cotton gin scales are now accurate, compared with the nearly 90 per cent inaccurate heavy duty scales found in a preliminary check made in 30 counties last year.

The inspectors have been on the road for three weeks now in a state-wide testing tour, which is expected to last almost two years. "As general clean-up and repair program has been adopted by gin scale operators," said Fred P. Johnson, the department's gin inspector, with the result that the percentage of inaccuracies found on this tour has dropped to 20 per cent.

When the U. S. Bureau of Standards loaned the weight and measures division government-owned testing equipment last year, a check of heavy duty scales in 30 counties resulted in finding some 87 per cent to be inaccurate. "Ginners, as a class, have cleaned up their scales, made repairs and in many cases have installed new scales within the past year," Mr. Johnson said. "They were looking forward to receiving State certificates of accuracy."

"Ginners and other scale owners realize that the scales testing is being made as much for their benefit as in behalf of the consumer."

The inspectors carry with them some 11,000 pounds of weights to check scales. They plan to test all ginners' scales and all other heavy duty scales throughout the State. This task, the department estimates will require practically two years to complete.

Capital Gossip

BY HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—It has probably been a long time since the Supreme Court heard oral arguments in three such picayunish criminal cases as were on its calendar this week—certainly a long time since such a trio constituted the only criminal causes from the districts being called.

One was the appeal of W. C. Thorne, Elm City filling station man, from a fine of $15 imposed for violation of a city ordinance making it unlawful for any person to keep a store or place of business open after 8 a. m. on Sunday. He sold soft drinks and other merchandise in addition to gasoline and oil. Appellant argues he should come under an ordinance covering filling stations from 10 a. m. to 12 noon.

Number Two was the appeal of the State, on behalf of the State Board of Examiners of Plumbing and Heating Examiners, from the acquittal (on special verdict) of Jay L. Ingle, of Asheville. The question is whether or not Ingle must or must not have a license from the State board. It seems that he performed labor necessary for the proper installation of plumbing fixtures and received a lump sum price for his work, which the State insists constituted him a plumber contractor rather than a journeyman plumber, for which latter function he held a license.

Number Three involves efforts of Cris Moschoures, of Asheville, to avoid a sentence of eighteen months for possession of liquor, plus another 18 months suspended sentence for selling the same. Cris got only four months in the general county court of Buncombe, on a plea of no guilty and conviction by a jury, but he appealed to superior court, entered a guilty plea and when a deputy sheriff testified he was one of the "big shots" in the butter and egg racket, Judge Alley handed out the stiffer sentence, which Chris' lawyers now argue was "cruel and inhumane."

Dudley Bagley, State REA director runs all over the State in an automobile well the low priced field up on the speedometer of which he had put more than 100,000 miles since he assumed office in 1935. He says he has been in every county during the three-year period.

One of the liveliest subjects of debate in North Carolina is whether the 1939 General Assembly will do anything about reform of the existing election laws.

Your correspondent will lay one small wager, to-wit: If the Republicans should capture the eighth district seat over which W. O. Burgin and C. B. Deane have done so much squabbling, the legislature will do something. What it will do is some thing else again. In the final analysis, it's going to be distinctly up to the governor. If he fights for election reform, the State will get it; if he doesn't no drastic action need be expected.

Epsom News

By MRS. FLETCHER FULLER

Mrs. B. M. Newman returned home Sunday from Manteo, where she visited over the week-end and attended the pageant, "The Lost Colony."

Perry Lee Ayscue left Monday for Elon college, where he will enter school for the coming year.

Misses Mollie and Venora Dunn, of the Epsom community, left Wednesday for Raleigh where they entered training in Rex hospital. They will both be missed very much in the church and community activities.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ayscue had as their dinner guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Fuller and daughter, Patience Jones Fuller.

Miss Christine Eaves left Monday for Elon college, where she will be a member of the sophomore class this year.

Mrs. Clarence R. Breeden, Jr., returned Monday from Cheraw, S. C. Mrs. Breeden will be remembered as the former Miss Grace Ayscue. The people of Epsom community were sadly shocked to learn of the sudden death of David Lee Kearney. Miss Mary Nell Eaves left Wednesday for Abbottsburg, where she will begin teaching in the Abbottsburg high school.

George Dickie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Durward Dickie, of Epsom, left Monday for Mars Hill. Miss Evelyn Ayscue will leave Thursday for Greensboro, to enter Woman's college. Mrs. Leslie Newman and small son returned home Friday from Maria Farham hospital.

Misses Mary Nell, Vernice, and Brookston Eaves were visitors at Elon College Monday, and attended the dinner given in honor of the former students of the college.

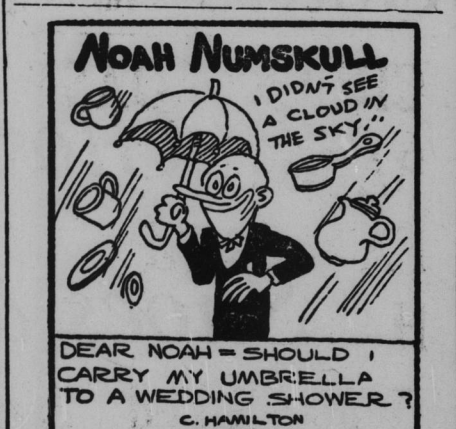

Little Miss Myrtle White Alston daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alston, of Henderson, returned home Sunday after spending the past week in this community.

The community is very glad to have all members of the Epsom high school faculty here, and a welcome is extended from both churches and Sunday schools for them to come and worship.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Liberty church met last Wednesday evening with Mrs. Sallie Ayscue. Seventeen members were present. A very interesting program was given. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

On Saturday evening, the Christian Endeavor of Liberty church gave a farewell party in honor of the members of the society who are leaving the community to enter school and for other activities. Rev. S. E. Madson who had charge of the entertainment, directed a very interesting program that was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. Refreshments were served to about twenty members and guests. On Monday evening the Young People's missionary society met at the home of Miss Harriet Ayscue. Following the worship service, a very interesting "round table" discussion was led by Madolyn Ayscue. The group took part in discussing the following questions: What do you mean by missions? Are you satisfied with the word "missions," or is there another word you would suggest as a substitute? What are your chief reasons for believing in the missionary aspect of Christianity? Can Christ have the final message as to life for ourselves unless His message is final for the rest of the world? Officers for the new year were elected. They are as follows: President, Miss Kathleen Macon; vice-president, Miss Mattie Sue Wirm; secretary, Miss Harriet Ayscue; treasurer, Brookston Eaves. The hostess served delicious refreshments, afterward adjourned, to meet again in October.

Some months ago the governor was approached by certain North Carolina interests who wanted to find out what could be done in the matter of buying the Mullet Line, but when the matter was referred to the attorney general—then Supreme Court Justice A. A. F. Seawell—it was learned that there would have to be legislative authorization before any sale is possible. With that, the interests lost all interest, as they were planning either to buy the road then or do something else. When they found they could not buy immediately, but would be forced to wait until another session of the legislature, at the earliest, they dropped out of the picture. Timely Hitting Gives Lions Shut Out Victory

Champions Staged Late Season Rally That Lifted Them From Third Place To Championship; Bankers Failed To Get Needed Hits With Men on Base

Hitting when bingles meant runs, the Lions took the fourth game of the city softball series 2 to 0 from the Bankers yesterday at League Park, getting the city title along with the win by virtue of three wins in the series with the Bankers.

The Lions staged a late season spurt that carried them from third place in league standing to the championship. Hubert Lewis and Jacoby Williams looked up in a mound duel, with each being hard hit, but given plenty support. The Lions got six safeties, while the Bankers were mustering seven.

The Lions drew first blood in the first inning when Richardson got a double after one was out. Terrell grounded out, but R. Turner dropped Dodd's blow to left field, allowing Richardson to come home.

In the fourth, the Lions got another tally by the unearned route. Royster first up, was safe on Williams error, and Church doubled him home. The Bankers threatened constantly, but failed to have the necessary punch to send tallies over the plate. D. Turner doubled in the first inning for the Bankers, but died there. The losers rallied in the seventh inning, but lacked the necessary bingles to win the ball game.

The entire series has been hotly contested, with good games being turned in. Large crowds witnessed the contests, and the players showed fine sportsmanship throughout.

Score by innings: R. Lions 100 100 0—2 Bankers 000 000 0—1

Lewis and Royster; Williams and Weldon.

Hoey Urges Leasing A. & N. C. Railroad To Some Other Line

the leasing program is likely in the not too distant future, as the governor, through the attorney general, advised against election of officers at this time, indicating that there would be no need for installing a new official set-up.

H. P. Crowell, who has been in active charge of management of the Mullet Line, has been opposed in many quarters, but will almost certainly continue in charge until something definite is accomplished.

Prior to today's meeting there were many reports that the directors, at the Governor's suggestion, would consider the possibility of selling the road; but nothing was done, in the open at least, along that line.

There is not the slightest doubt that Governor Hoey and all the directors would jump at the chance to sell, and thus permanently rid themselves of a perennial headache; but at present there is no legal authority for them to do so, and as far as can be learned there is no prospective purchaser in sight.

Some months ago the governor was approached by certain North Carolina interests who wanted to find out what could be done in the matter of buying the Mullet Line, but when the matter was referred to the attorney general—then Supreme Court Justice A. A. F. Seawell—it was learned that there would have to be legislative authorization before any sale is possible.

Miller Cuts Grid Squad To 40 Men

Coach Bing Miller has already let the axe fall on the Henderson high school football squad, handing some ten to fifteen boys from the squad, leaving about 40 in camp at present, with future cuttings to be made.

Miller is giving the boys exercises will stand them in good stead with tough work just ahead.

The mentor commented on the fact that some of his reserves for the past two years have failed to show first string calibre, and unless they display something very early in the season, they will be dropped from the squad. He feels two years is long enough to work with a lazy reserve, needing that time for work with new men eager for a chance to play.

Uniforms will likely be given some tomorrow, with rough work beginning in earnest next week.

The coach plans to use all new plays this year, using short punt and single wing back formations. He is scouting around among his players for a capable quarter and fullback.

Crowell was imported from the North as an outstanding expert in doctoring sick railroads, but despite his reputation, there has been nothing spectacular in the matter of getting better results.

Recently drastic reductions in operating expenses, including who's-else layoffs, have helped keep the road out of the red.
