Grits and Gravel

By T. MOSES JONES

You may not have missed this column from the yesterday's paper, as you may not have looked for it. But many things have happened since I wrote my junk Monday morning for the Tuesday's issue. True to his word, Fenton Seat really took me out Monday night, instead of us both getting a good fooling as we got the last time, when he had to work that night.

We left town about six-thirty, when the moon was in its best of the eclipse We again took James Regan with us. Fenton had left his wife and baby out at her folkses home Sunday. So we got to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams' after three tables of corn-shuckers had eaten. We sat down to that table which was piled up with a big dish of cabbage and corn bread, biscuits and butter, coffee and water cake and pie, meat and pudding, chicken and dressing, and what not.

I forgot that I was afraid the cabbage might make me sick, and ate two big helpings, and then to the beans, and so on down the line. When we finished, there were still several others to eat.

We were supposed to have our little stringed orchestra to play some after supper, but the fiddler went 'possum hunting and did not get there. So we played some hymns and sang a while, and then they played their usual pieces on the guitars and they sang some, and we had a most nice time in general.

Uncle Billy Williams was there in son Charlie's, and George and family, and John Roy and family, and the long, tall Laws man who used to wear a coon-skin capp about twenty years' ago when he was such a great trapper. He and his family were there. Reuben Sidney Greenway, who live up the road, was there.

And I don't know who all else, but Graham West and several other young feilows. At bedtime we left, and Fenton got me back by about ten-thirty.

And what did I have to do? I had to get up at five to get ready to go down to the court house and nely finish getting everything ready for the voting, which started at sun-up I do not know how the vote was, over in Vance, but our precinct voted about one-third the number that voted in the primary several months ago. That goes to show that folks just do not care somehow about voting in an election around here as they do voting in a primary.

But we lived through it all, and finished the count and the reports and got home before nine o'clock. And I mean I was tired and ready to go to sleep. And the papers tell about one precinct in New York which has only one registered voter, and all that had to be gone through with just one person to vote.

I do not know whether they are teaching that sort of thing, but if you do not know, then let me tell you that there are a great number of folks who really do not know how to go to the

Now let's forget that we have ever voted and have a little foolishness. Dick Wilkins thinks that I am positively idiotic and insane for telling that big lie about the man who bought the new car and wanted the fog lights put in the rear of the car and the radio in the spair, now isn't that some spelling when I meant the spare tire. Well, Dick, I'm not the only foolish man in the world. Just look at yourself. You could actually eat half the amount of food you do eat, and still live. Then you wouldn't be so fat and stout and so almost unable to walk. Then you could prime tobacco much better. And you could plow much easier. You would even be much more comfortable just sitting down and driving your car to town. Your breath wouldn't be so short.

You could buy yourself two pairs of overalls where you now buy one. And also have three Sunday hats where you now have only two. Yes, ou could put a dollar in the collection plate every Sunday. And you could take Old Mose to the movies once a month, and still have money to throw away, if you just wouldn't eat

But I have always heard that big eating is reaaly a disease with stout folks, Dick, and I don't blame you. If I had the where-with-ever, I would be a big eater, too. So you are extremely excusable.

Marvin Blackwell and Arthur Hart were sitting down in one of those invisible booths in the cafe eating, when walked in. My hawk eyes spied them through the wood, but I was not looking for either of them. I was looking for two other fellows who live a a good bit a way from town. Nothing would do but that I sit down by Marvin and eat something. But I had just finished dinner, so told him I would only take a slice of pie and a glass of milk, which I did. It was surely delirious, Marvin, and truly bounced me back to normality.

Arthur Hart and George Riggan both got them a small, what you might call pocket radio, last summer to take to the field to plow. Later on they moved them to their strip house. Some days ago I heard that George had hung his radio up on the head of his bed, and turned it on every night just after supper, got in bed, and went to sleep with it tuned in on Alexan-

FIRST ISSUE FOR 'BULLDOG' IS OUT

High School Organ Gives Many Interesting Items on Activities of Students There

The first issue of the present session of "The Bulldog", Henderson high school student publication, was off the press today and being distributed to the student body and friends of the school. The issue was filled with interesting reading mat-ter about the school and the various activities of the student body. There was a liberal sprinkling of advertising by Henderson merchants in support of the enterprise. Charles Stewart is editor-in-chief of the paper, which friends considered had made a good start for the year. Some four or five numbers will be put out during the school term.

A judge in Texas says there is much to be said against our present system of taxation. He probably means repeated.

TESTS FOR WATER FOR PRISON CAMP

Tests are being made for a water supply on a site near Gillburg that may be purchased by the State High-way and Public Works Commission for a new convict camp for this county. An artesian well is being sunk near the main Henderson-Epsom highway, where the camp will be located if the water supply is found adequate to justify purchase of the site and erection of the barracks there. When built the camp is to be modern in every sense of the word. At the present time
