

Rivalry Always Keenest When Duke, State Clash

Durham, Nov. 17.—Intrastate rivalry at its best and fiercest is the forecast for the Duke-N. C. State football battle in Duke stadium Saturday afternoon. It's pretty hard to make a mistake on a forecast like that!

Duke and State are not the oldest gridiron enemies in North Carolina. They have played fourteen contests since 1924, with Duke at present holding an 8-6 advantage in the matter of games won. But they are most certainly among the bitterest rivals in the South and their games always sizzle from opening kickoff to final gun.

The fifteenth annual fracas between the Blue Devils and Red Terrors develops as another topnotch Big Five offering—one the rabid sports followers hereabouts will by no means pass up. Duke, with a record of seven victories, no defeats, and no ties, is ranked by the nation's football leaders and State—while it cannot present the impressive record of the Blue Devils—is in a position to halt the stirring march of the men of Wallace Wade. Personal scrappers that they are, the Red Terrors have always saved their season's finest performance for the game with Duke. And the Blue Devils have come to regard their meeting with State as an occasion for plenty of hard work and many anxious moments.

Duke's heralded defensive power will come to trial once again on Saturday, and the Wolfpack has offensive strength that should provide an ample testing. The Blue Devils' goal line is still uncrossed—teams such as Colgate, Georgia Tech, Carolina, and Syracuse couldn't do it—but there are many fans in the state who believe Art Rooney and Andy Pavlovsky, brilliant N. C. State backs, are the boys to manipulate a score on the Dukes. And they look for the Wolfpack line, led by Tackle Ed Coon, to give the Duke forwards a battle royal.

Several hundred Duke dads will watch Saturday's struggle and are certain to get their share of football thrills. The annual Dad's Day program will be on the calendar directed by the M. C. A.

Panthers And Mary Potter Meet Friday

Traditional Game Between Bitter Rivals to Be Played Here at 2 P. M.

Henderson Institute Panthers will close their football season with the banner game of the year Friday afternoon on Institute Field, Mary Potter eleven, of Oxford, coming here for the annual grid clash between the two schools.

The bitter and traditional rivalry between Oxford and Henderson is geared to the top for the contest, and when the opening whistle sounds at 2 o'clock, the Panthers will have to be fighting every inch of the way if they hope to come out victors.

The Mary Potters have won only one game this season, but they looked most impressive against Fayetteville in losing 6 to 0. Fayetteville played the mighty Durham team to a scoreless tie. The Durham aggregation had little trouble in whipping Henderson.

Mid-term failures in scholastic work have made inroads in the Panther lineup, and several of the boys have been guilty of breaking training, according to Coach S. H. Brown, so the Panthers have the underdog role for the contest.

The squad went through its drills Wednesday, topping off with a light workout this afternoon, and the entire team seems to be in high spirits for the encounter.

Thirteen Bulldogs End Careers Against Apex

Thirteen Henderson high school Bulldogs will take to the gridiron here Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for their last game as representatives of the local school, according to Coach Bing Miller, practically the entire first team and key reserves being graduated this year.

These boys will be determined to turn in a victory over Apex, the last foe of the season, and a drill this afternoon topped off final preparations for the test.

Heading the list of players appearing in their final game is Captain Lonnie Harris, outstanding tackle. Others who are singing their "swan song" are Robert Rideout, center, Allen Tucker, end; Ed Renn, guard; Harold Hunt, tackle; William Tarry, tackle; Walter Beddingfield, end; L. W. Hobbgood, quarterback; William Carter, halfback; Charles Stewart, quarterback; L. A. Jackson, guard; Cecil Faulkner, end; and Dick Calloway, fullback.

The entire squad is in high spirits, and will be fighting to the last whistle in an effort to turn in a victory over a team that has consistently whipped them through the years the aggregations have been meeting on the grid.

The entire student body is behind the team, and the school band will be on hand for the contest, livening things up with their performances. During the half-time, the band will parade on the field.

Taft-Dewey G. O. P. Ticket In '40 Talked

and its geography and record are quite o. k. Moreover Taft licked a sitting senator, Robert J. Bulkley, who was a strong candidate; a highly creditable performance.

Yes, Taft won, which Dewey didn't. Yet Dewey lost by so narrow a margin, against the most formidable opponent the Democrats could put up to fight him, that his defeat was a near-victory. He can be a dandy tail to Taft's kite.

The mighty states of Ohio and New York hooked up together! Mid-west and the east and the farther western sticks (for Dewey, now a New Yorker, originally hails from Michigan) aligned. Wise middle age (Taft's) and fiery youth (Dewey's) in partnership! It's almost an ideal commingling.

Nevertheless, 1940 is quite a distance ahead.

The Republicans gained considerable ground the other day, but the off-party nearly always does in midterm elections. There's more than a chance that the Democrats' losses will tend to consolidate the survivors.

Besides, it's the consensus of political opinion (including Republic opinion) that November 8's result doesn't signify much diminution in President Roosevelt's popular popularity. It's the old story—"We don't like all his methods, but we do like his objectives."

When it comes to 1940 the "Solid South" evidently will be Democratically solid as usual. It may be anti-New Deal in Congress, but it shows no indications of turning Republican at the polls. If there's a decisive switch in partisan voting sentiment in 1940 it will have to be north of the Mason-Dixon line. And it will have to be a mighty formidable switch to upset President Roosevelt, should he run again. But suppose he doesn't run again? Ah! that would be different. I'd surmise that he'll have to run again. Well, a third term campaign must be a count against him.

He never can be re-elected as overwhelmingly as he won in 1932 and 1936, but I'd guess he'd win. Perhaps, if he does re-run and re-win, he'll have an unqualifiedly hostile Congress against him. But I'm betting that he'll be popularly powerful, all the same.

City Folks' Lunkheads! Less.

Before the last election most newspaper prophets talked of Republican versus Democratic "weather."

The theory is that the average farmer is a Republican. If the weather's bad he stays home on election day; the roads into town are muddy and he gets wet.

This used to be true.

Now he piles out into a nice, waterproof automobile, drives to the polls over a concrete road, picks up some neighbors on the way, and they all cast their ballots and get back home comfortably in less than the time they used to spend in hitching up a team.

Having to hire a taxi, the "city feller's" vote costs him something.

Does the farmer vote? He does. Does the "city feller"? Not necessarily, unless he owns a flivver, I admit that generally he does (course 'em, for I'm a pedestrian) but not as 100 per cent as farmers do.

NEWTON SAYS DUKE IS GREATEST TEAM

Heavy Duke Team Will Give Wolfpack's Defense Tough Contest

Raleigh, Nov. 17.—In the opinion of Coach Williams (Doc) Newton his North Carolina State Wolfpack Saturday will face the best football team in the history of Duke university.

And that, Newton opines, means the best football team the Southern conference ever boasted.

Thoroughly familiar with the great machines Wallace Wade took to the Rose bowl from the University of Alabama, Coach Newton believes that Saturday in Durham his Wolfpack will go up against the best team State has faced in its long and grueling current schedule—a team that looks like the best of the Wade productions.

His scouting forces have covered thoroughly the play of the Duke team and if a flaw has been found in the big Blue Devil eleven Newton isn't talking about it as he nurses his battered forces through preliminary work outs this week.

The heavy poundage of Duke's backs make the team bigger even than Alabama, the heaviest squad State has faced this season, and while it is known that Duke doesn't have a starting back as speedy as Alabama's Herky Moseley, Coach Newton believes the Blue Devils more than make up for it in power.
