Chape Hill, April10.—North Carolina's varsity and freshman teams face another busy program next Wednesday in Woollen gym. Prior week when they are scheduled to engage in 13 dual events and three tournament contests.

In tournament competition Caro-lina will enter several leading individual members of its tennis, track and golf teams.

Six of the varsity golfers will go to Athens, Ga., for the annual Southern Inter-collegiates to be held there on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Outstanding linksmen from both Southern and Southeastern Conferences are entered in the big Fencing activities for the 1939 season will be brought to a close hext Friday and Saturday at Wil-liamsburg, Va., with the first South ern Conference tournament in years. Carolina will be represented by foil, epee and sabre contestants.

Several of the leading members of the undefeated tennis team will vie for honors with the North and South's leading amateurs at the annual North-South tournament to be o'clock.
held at Pinehurst Monday through There -Saturday.

Varsity baseball will have as its feature the first of two scheduled games with N. C. State here Tuesday afternoon. The Tar Heel nine also is scheduled to make its only out-of-State appearance this spring, moving

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

seemed to her that everybody in self sitting in a big easy chair with

of faces pressed forward, laughing and excited. Two more policemen in uniform had bebbed up from nowhere. Mrs. Morriss was hovering over her, stroking her cold hands, and Dinah, in her wheel

"I thought I'd never get here,"

Dinah was babbling. Her blue eyes were shining brighter than Lona

had ever seen them, and her hair curled about her head like a golden halo. "The reporters told me the news as soon as they discovered that you had managed to run away from them, and I came right after

you. Isn't it wonderful? . . . Oh, her crowded Ellis Langforth and his reporter friends, grinning and looking as important as if they,

personally, had managed the whole thing. . . . The desk sergeant received them, still looking surprised his round eyes going to Lona over and over again as if she were some-still was marveling to anyone who would listen. "Imagine that! She come bustin' in here, all excited, with her eyes poppin' out, and wanted to know was he still were tender, and the strained, un-

of Tiny.
"Jim!" His name rose to her lips

"It's all over, girl," he told her, his voice holding the husky drawl she had missed so much when he was ill. "No more worries for us."

"Oh, Jim." She could say no more,

Jim's eyes as he bent over her

'She never knew a thing," he

She was bubbling over. Behind

Jim, I'm so glad!"

thing rare.

AS LONA struggled back to con-

The second Carolina's AAU Gymnaustics meet will be held here golfers will play Pennsylvania at the Hillandale Course, Durham, Tuesday afternoon.

MOBILE WINS 13 TO 6 FROM GOOSE HOLLOW

Mobile beat Goose Hollow this morning 13 to 6 in an Easter Monday baseball game at Mobile between Hight pitched for the winners, with Townes pitching for the losers.

BAND TO APPEAR AT

LIONS EXPOSITION Henderson high school band will Henderson high school band will give a concert Tuesday evening at Jr. High P.-T. A. 7:45 o'clock at the Greater Henderson exposition, and all band members were asked to be at the High Price warehouse promptly at 7:30

There will be a band practice at the school Tuesday morning, according to the amouncement, and all the installation of officers for the band members were asked to be on coming year will be had, after which band members were asked to be on hand for this event.

Union Turns to Cattle

Monroe, April 10.—Union county into Virginia for games with V. M. farmers are turning to beef cattle I. Thursday, Washington and Lee to supplement their income from Friday, and the University of Vir- price-sick cotton, reports T. J. W. to supplement their income from Broom, farm agent of the State Col-Scene of the Carolina-Virginia lege Extension Service. All over the county, growers are turning some of their cotton acreage over to ville, stronghold of the Cavaliers. pasture and hay crops and are buy-The lacrosse team will invade Washing cattle to start new herds. In ington, D. C., for an engagement many cases, the new enterprise is anything—even to attempting to keep with the strong Washington, D. C., receiving as much attention as the a public speech of his a profound

DNVICT'S DAUGHTER

Plans Pushed For Junior Legion Unit

Plans are being worked out for the formation here on April 24 of a Sons of the Legion unit of the American Legion, and in the evening of that day a dinner will be given to prospective members of the new organization. J. R. Biller is chairman of the committee of the local post o? the Legion, named at the last meeting to arrange for forming the organization.

All sons of veterans, including deceased veterans, will be invited to the dinner, which will be in the American Ingion hut at 6:30 p. m. April 24.

Plans are being made to set up a tent in front of the American Legion hut next week to allow all eligible boys to register. Philip Harris is in charge of this project, it was stated.

The Junior High Parent-Teacher Association will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the school. the newly installed officers will take charge. Announcement of committees for 1939-40 will be heard. The change of date is due to the fact that the State P.-T. A. conven-

Friday, in Raleigh. A cordial invitation is given to incoming members of the association, as well as the regular members. A large attendance is urged.

Adolph Hitler, apparently will try

Speaks Tonight

speaker in the university's centen-Installs Officers be "Plan and Performance." Dr. Moses' task in New York is to consolidate and administer city park and parkway systems and coordinate with state and suburban systems. He is an authority on public works, recreation and similar gov- day. ernmental functions.

What a break for the passengers! Now a fellow and his image can ride tion will be held Wednesday through for the same nickel.

READ THIS FIRST:

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER TWO ELEANOR CONROY picked her way up the dark stairs that led to the city room of the Courier-Journal. The unfamiliar sweetish odor of newsprint assailed her nostrils

as she stood hesitantly before a door marked: "Editorial Depart-

Under the printed letters, someone had scrawled, "Keep Out! This

There were three men in the paper littered room. One of them sat with his feet on a desk, his head buried in the last edition. Another was barking an unintelligible lan-guage into a telephone. The third man was young. He sat at a de near the window in his shirt

sleeves. His hat was on the back of his head and he bent over a long

sheet of thin yellow paper, pencil

There was a metal sign tacked to the side of his desk. It read: "Managing Editor."

Eleanor walked around the cir-turned his head sideways and saw sister," he said, returning to his

he turned his head hers would be tle farther back on his head and got up. He got up a long way. He was very tall and very thin. He said: "Well!"

She said: "You're the managing editor, aren't you?"

He looked about hastily. Kelly was looking at him. He said: "Not

"Oh! Well . . . I . . . I wonder

your time. I've come to get a job. Will you introduce me to the man-

He scratched his ear with his pencil, wondering what questions Ed Thorne would be likely to ask. "Any—er—experience?" he asked

"Oh, you've got to do better than

"Well, tell me what to do and I

That was the catch. He couldn't think of anything, so he began to explain carefully: "You see, a lead-

"But newcomers have to start somewhere. I should think a newspaper would consider it a good in estment to train smart reporters."

"'At's the spirit." he agreed,

wondering if she was as delectable

so deadly serious.

exactly. He isn't in now."

do for you? I'm Parrish," aging editor?"

if Mr. Parrish is in."

solicitors allowed."

Eleanor opened the door.

Means You!"

Capital Gossip

By HENRY AVERILL AND LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, April 10.—At least two State departments are receiving many appreciative messages for the speed with which they got results of legislation out of the affected is proud of his department's effici-ency in getting the lists of justices of the peace appointed by the as-sembly into the hands of the several clerks of court in less than three days. He has received many letters of appreciation for that speedy ser-

And Dr. Carl Reynolds claims that the board of health staff did an even better job under the circumstances in getting out temporary blanks for medical examination reports for marriage licenses. The fact that Dr. Robert Moses, city park com-nissioner of New York, will speak fective upon its ratification last at Duke university on Monday might to be the sixth and final into the plans of many a couple and into the plans of many a couple and the whole business of issuing licenses nial lecture series. His subject will be "Plan and Performance." Dr. Reynolds put his whole staff to work getting out the forms to registers of deeds, and typewriters, mimeographs and mailing machines worked far into the night—but the forms were in every court house by the second Adjournment of the legislature New York's newest subway cars reduced the number of school chilwill feature full-length mirrors, dren visiting Raleigh, but did not stop them. Every day since, there Chas. Boyer and Irene Dunne in rious points in the State looking over and Tuesday.

the State buildings, spending most of their time in the museum and the hail of history, but also playing with the squirrels on Capitol Square. Leading them around is the Ichabod Crane-like figure of George M. Stell, recently named as official Capitol

The impression grows around the capitol that when Governor Hoey names the new member of the industrial commission, which by the way is the only really "decent" appointment he has to make, he will Secretary of State Thad Eure pointment he has to make, he will makes no secret of the fact that he not name a member of the General Assembly. The custom had grown almost to the point of scandal of using appointments like that as a trading piece during the session, but the governor didn't need to go that extreme and it is generally believed that he will not pick the commissioner from the legislative roster.

saves the farmers much money in Major Arthur Fletcher, home for the Easter holidays, is well pleased with the co-operation shown by incorrecting short weights.

have been several classes from va- "Love Affair" Stevenson Today

Sunshine Circle Meeting on Friday

dustry in making the new Federal wages and hours law work. Major

Fletcher, former commissioner of labor for North Carolina, is chief compliance officer in the national wage-hour set-up. However, he and that his division will manifest less patience with violators of the act than they did during the early months when ignorance of provisions was an excuse for failure to comply with them. The major is particularly pleased with the response he has obtained from manu-

Fertilizer inspectors, working in cooperation with weights and measures men, have found that many fertilizer manufacturers have given short weights. The department of agriculture not only checks quality of fertilizer to require compliance with announced formula, but also facturers in his home State

warns that the "honeymoon is over

The Sunshine circle club held its regular weekly meeting at the home of the president, Iena McGhee, Friday night, on Southern street. After the business session she was hostess at a delicious supper served at a cafe

Greek Head Says Nation Is Prepared

(Continued From Page One)

troops now in Rhodes, the largest of the 12 small islands off the southwest coast of Asia Minor, now ex-ceeded 45,000 in number. In addition, there were said to be from 800 to 1,500 soldiers in each of the islands which lie in the Aegean Sea and close to Greece.

Much activity also was observed in the Leros, which has become a formidable stronghold and air and submarine base since Italy's campaign in Ethiopia. Leros is one of the northernmost islands of the group which was occupied by Italians during the Tripolitan war between Italy and Turkey and which Italians continued to occupy under the 1912 Lausanne treaty.

Albanians Give Pledge to Mussolini

(Continued From Page One)

unity. Our sole hope was that the beloved and genial person of Il Duce, who has made moral and material sacrifices for us and has liberated Albania from her peril. The army which comes today is an army sent by Il Duce and it comes as a friend, not as an enemy

"Beloved Duce, you have made many sacrifices for us and have saved us from many perils, and for this reason we address to you, for whom all is possible and of whom we have no right to ask anything, to you who has given us all that you save the Albanian people."

Roosevelt In Alarm Over European Turn

(Continued From Page One)

eign ships.

Pittman wants to place in this category all arms and munitions, safe of which is banded entirely now, whenever the President finds as a

"He's in," he said...

cular table that led to that desk without being told where to get it." | woman," McNeil answered. and stood beside him without saying anything for a moment. He slowly. Phil Parrish thought, what I'd give to hear her laugh. She said slowly, "I think I know what you mean. . . But look, Mr. Parrish, I can get lots of items for the her gray jersey dress, the neat linen cuffs at her wrists. "Sorry, editing of a telegraph sheet, "No society page."
"Yeah? How?" He asked -be-Eleanor bent down so that when cause he was reluctant to have right away—and so I know some of other place for me when Miss Cathe girls who'll be in the Junior hill comes back. I'm to get four-League, and going away to college, teen dollar a week!" League, and going away to college, teen dollar a week!"

and all that. And I could make out Her mother caught her underlip a list of all the people who are in in her teeth.
clubs and charity enterprises and "Now, what's the matter, Mum-

"What'd you want to see him about?" he asked warily. "I'm Eleanor Conroy. His sister Polly is a friend of mine. So I think he'll see me if he's in." "He's in," he said. "What can I

Eleanor said gravely, "How do you do, Mr. Parrish. I won't waste "Sure, sure. But, I'd try the other

Phil got up and walked to the door with her. "I . . . I wouldn't come tomorrow. I'll tall it was a same."

A free woman. . . . Is there any hot water for a bath?"

"I can heat same." come tomorrow. I'll telephone you if anything turns up. Polly can tell "No," she said briefly. "But I me where you are." out, Nelly?" was at the top in my class in English composition and I have—a—a have a telephone. But you could to the movel I them to call me."

"Okay," he said, writing down the number. "Maybe I'll give you a ring anyway."

"Thank you," she said gratefully.
Kelly looked up from under his eye shade. "Bessie Cahill was askexplain carefully: "You see, a leading newspaper like this doesn't have time to break in newcomiers..."

eye snade. Bessie Canill was asking the boss if she could get the whole month of July for her vacation," he said informatively. Bessie canill was the society editor.

"Yeah?" Parrish asked inter-"Yeah?" Parrish asked interestedly. He rubbed his hand over his chin thoughtfully. "Wonder if Thorne's up at the courthouse. It's a long time since I bought him a drink."

"It's a long time since he saw a bert. I don't even remember what interested in a twenty-dollar-a-week reporter if he looked like... Valentino... or ... John Gilbert. I don't even remember what when she laughed as when she was be impressed by—by the newcom-er, but I am ambitious and industhe gate rail.

"Me either," Kelly said succincttrious and I can do what I'm told." ly. "But I don't approve of dames "Well, you see that's a point. You have to do more than what you're told. You have to know how to get news that the paper will print main pure and undefiled by lovely Eleanor pondered on his words "If it doesn't move in there," for a few minutes. Then she smiled Kelly jerked his head toward the small office occupied by Miss Ca-

Joe Miller beckoned to Eleanor as she got off the trolley car tr front of his store two hours later. Telephone for you, Nelly," he said. Eleanor, her eyes shining, her body aquiver, burst into the small on a level with his.

"I'm not soliciting anything," she said:

"Everybody in this bacon!" she announced from the bacon!" sh class—we graduate next week, you a month as society editor. And, if know, and I'll be free to go to work I make good, they'll find some mie?" Eleanor demanded.

He said: "Where?"

Eleanor said, hastily: "And maybe I could read proof, too. I wouldn't mind doing any kind of work... or long hours... or small pay. Please, Mr. Parrish, will you see what you can do for me?"

Sure sure But I'd try the other the girls in our forells. Been to me gamblers... and ... a newspaperman's wife leads a ...,"

"Bosh!" Eleanor said angrily.

"Anyway, you don't seem to understand that I'm going to work. I'm not going there to get a husband. I never want a husband! Look what marriage has done to the girls in our forells. Been to me the girls in our forells. the girls in our family! Poor Per papers if I were you. Newspaper jobs are kind of hard to get."

"But if you can? Shall I come life. I'm going to be a career girl."

> Her mother said: "Are you going out, Nelly?"
> "Yes. Mr. Parrish has asked me news for nose . . . I mean a nose call me at the drug store next door. "Eleanor! I thought you weren't for news, I think. And I learn very Miller's drug store—7865—and ask going to take up with those peo-

"Mother, I'm not 'taking up' with anyone. Mr. Parrish is not romanti-cally interested in me. He's just go-ing to give me a few pointers be-fore I meet Mr. Thorne. . . . Will you press my blue organdie?"

"Not romantically, eh? Well, if you weren't so excited, you'd see that there are six carnations on the dining room table. For you, from then she laughed as when she was deadly serious.

"It's a long time since he saw a looker like that," McNeil said to he looks like. I'm only interested in what he can do for me. Just you wait and see how soon I'm going to get on when I start to work. I'm going to let Mr. Parrish help me. A woman can always get on herself, but its foolish not to cept a little help sometimes,"

Congress Turns to state of war exists.

TODAY - TOMORROW Matinee ... 26c—Night ... Children ... 10c ROMANCE OF HEARTS... ... or tragedy of sacrifice!...Which should it be?Told in a tale of tender romance!

Conight—All Seats ..... Barton McLane— Beverly Roberts—in

"I WAS A CONVICT" News - Novelty

Pomorrow ..... 10c and 15c Jack Randall-in "DRIFTING WESTWARD"

Next Week 'Alexander's Rag Time Band'

RUTH RAY KANE BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION sciousness again after fainting at the news that Jim was cleared, it the world had crowded into that tiny room at the police station. Opening her eyes, she found her-Jim bending over her anxiously. Behind him what seemed like a sea chair, was being helped across the happy look that had clouded them in, then, in a delighted voice. "Just in a choked whisper as she thought shrink back, her old fears getting waiting for her to speak, she the best of her.

in a choked whisper as she clung to laughed and, catching her again in him feeling the need for re-assur-ance. his arms, posed boldly. "Take another one," he ordered.

"Take all you want." "Jim, they're for the newspapers!

They'll be printed—"
"Who's afraid of the newspapers

There MUST be some catch to it, Rankin?" Ellis Langforth broke in. her tired mind was telling her. It "How does it feel to have a charge couldn't be true! This was too good of murder lifted from your shoulto be happening to her. She was made for misfortune. She was afraid of this glimpse of heaven. "You wouldn't—fool me, Jim?" she begged.

"Why girl! Of course it's true!" hing away before his new-found.

"What are you planning for the 'It's all over, I tell you. We can "You mean we can stay here in Brighton, now?" Her mind was slowly taking hold in spite of her aloud. "My wife's never been to fears. "We can stay here with California, you know. I have a sis-Dinah and Mrs. Morriss, and all our ter out there I want her to know, -friends? We don't have to now that-things have cleared up. Then we're coming right back here "We can stay here forever if you to Brighton to live. Mrs. Rankin few more cents from the day's exellike it."

relief, too, and understanding. It made the staggering happenings of the last hour seem real to her for the first time, and she held him close while she kissed him back,

And now I wish you'd let me off.

I'm hungry, you see, and I'd like to eat. This has been a tough day."

A laugh went up at that and a movement toward the door began.

"Just one more thing," Ellis

"Guess it's all over," he said, regretfully, and sat down on the curb beneath the street light to count the pennies that were his evening's earnings.

"The End)

forgetful of the crowded room.
"Hold it, will you!" somebody cut for so long had vanished. He was smiling, too, his appealing half-smile, that always brought to her mind the thought of Tiny.

"Jim!" His name rose to her lips

"Jim!" His name rose to her lips

"Please-" she began, but Jim

"Are you sure, Jim?" She was still incredulous, still afraid to believe. It was as if the strain had been too tense to allow her to throw it off in a moment like this.

"Who's airaid of the newspapers now?" He was jubilant. "Let them take all the pictures they want. Let them print anything they feel like printing!"

"How about a statement, Mr.

"Why, girl! Of course it's true!" ping away before his new-found He laughed his old ringing laugh. confidence, smiled with him.

forget it. We can be a regular family now. No more hiding and dodging. It's great!"

Langforth's pencil was flying over his notebook.

"Well, first we're going to Cali-

"Oh, Jim." She could say no more, but could only cling to him. Stooping suddenly lower, he gathered hard to include the was happiness in that kisse; "And now I wish you'd let me off.

There was happiness in that kisse; "And now I wish you'd let me off."

"Guess it's all over," he said, restably and set down on the curb.

Langforth stopped them to beg. "How about Mrs. Rankin? Hasn't she anything to say?" For a moment Lona hesitated. It was hard, discarding her old shrinking from publicity. Then, realizing that a silence had fallen on the room, and that they were all looked up and smiled at Jim, proud, slow smile.

"Just say I'm the happiest woman alive," she told them easily. She was to repeat that brave statement once more, when they were back again in the privacy of their own living room in the Mor-riss home. This time it was to Jim alone, she spoke. "Do you really mean that, girl?" he asked, his arms straining her to him with new vigor. "Mean it! Why, you know I mean it, Jim!"

"And you don't blame me for letting you in for all this? You're going to—forget it?" His voice was anxious, and his eyes were tender. "Blame you! Jim, don't be silly! I'm so happy I could c-cry! I-I-" She broke off, to hide her head suddenly on his shoulder. "I believe I would have died, Jim, if they would have t-taken you away. I—couldn't live without you—"

"Girl!" His voice was still humble. He bent his head to hers slowly. "I'll make it up to you," he

He kissed her then, and the newsboy who strolled by outside, still calling a raucous "Ex-tra! Read all about it" in the hope of culling a few more cents from the day's ex-