

Dr. Frank Cameron Given Herty Chemistry Medal

Chapel Hill, May 11.—Dr. Frank K. Cameron, professor of chemistry in the University of North Carolina, whose experiments in converting cotton into cellulose have attracted favorable international attention, has just returned from the Georgia State College for Women, where he was awarded the Charles H. Herty Medal in recognition of distinctive services in the field of chemistry.

The medal was named in honor of the late Dr. Charles H. Herty, a former head of the Chemistry Department in the University of North Carolina and at one time president of the American Chemical Society, who was born on the G. S. C. W. campus. Dr. Herty was widely acclaimed for his research in making newsprint from slash pine.

Dr. Cameron, the seventh southerner to receive the award, is a pioneer in the field of industrial utilization of farm products. He was chosen for the award because of achievements in research with cotton, but his activities have covered many fields.

Processed Entire Plant.
Associates credit him with originating the idea of processing the entire cotton plant, and say that he was among the first in foreseeing the tremendous increase in the number of products to be made from cellulose.

Born in Baltimore, in 1869, he received his A. B. and Ph.D. degrees from Johns Hopkins University, and for the period 1894-1898 taught at Cornell and Catholic Universities.

In 1898 he entered government service as a soil chemist and for several years was head of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Branching away from government work, he was a consulting chemist with headquarters in Salt Lake City from 1915 to 1926, and has been professor of chemistry at the University of North Carolina since that latter date. He is the author of numerous books and pamphlets.

A Gold Medallion.
The Herty medal, a gold medallion was donated by the students and faculty members at G. S. C. W. in terested in the subject of chemistry. Actual presentation of the medal is carried out through the Georgia section of the American Chemical Society, in cooperation with sections of the Society in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

SELECTING CAST OF "THE LOST COLONY"

Paul Green and Harry Davis Are Working On Big Pageant Now

Chapel Hill, May 11.—Paul Green, author of "The Lost Colony", and Harry Davis, associate director of the production, which will open on Roanoke Island early in July, left Chapel Hill last night for New York to make further arrangements for the staging of the pageant drama which chronicles the history of Sir Walter Raleigh's Virginia colony.

After holding try-outs here and selecting some members of the cast from local people, many of them Playmaker actors, Mr. Green and Mr. Davis left for New York to line up the professional actors needed for the cast. They will hold try-outs in New York this week.

Samuel Selden, director of "The Lost Colony" since its opening summer in 1937, arrives from a continental tour on Monday. After Mr. Selden's arrival the cast will be selected definitely.

While in the north Mr. Green and Mr. Davis will confer with the organizer of the Westminster Choir from Princeton University about the music and the choir for the play. They will also discuss plans with Anthony Buttitta, northern press representative for "The Lost Colony."

The production combines actors of the professional theatre, many Playmaker actors and technicians, Federal Theatre actors and technicians, and people of the village for its large cast.

Mr. Selden returns to Chapel Hill in June after a year's study of the Broadway, European and English theatres on a Guggenheim fellowship, and with his wife will spend a few days here before they go on to Mantoo.

Mr. Green and Mr. Davis will confer with the officials at the Museum of Modern Arts Film Library while in New York and will try to make some plans for use of the new movie equipment following its demonstration and the discussion last Sunday night at the Playmakers Theatre.
