

Bulldog Coaches Are Up Against It For Material For A Good Football Team

Light and Inexperienced Boys Can't Stand Hard Work; Injuries Take Out Key Players; Shifts Are Made in Lineup.

With light and inexperienced material to mold into a team and a tough schedule ahead, coaches at Henderson high school were in a dilemma today, and could see little hope for the Bulldogs.

With light and inexperienced material to mold into a team and a tough schedule ahead, coaches at Henderson high school were in a dilemma today, and could see little hope for the Bulldogs.

With light and inexperienced material to mold into a team and a tough schedule ahead, coaches at Henderson high school were in a dilemma today, and could see little hope for the Bulldogs.

With light and inexperienced material to mold into a team and a tough schedule ahead, coaches at Henderson high school were in a dilemma today, and could see little hope for the Bulldogs.

He's Big Trouble-Maker

BILL FAIRCLOTH, GUARD, NORTH CAROLINA

Chief trouble-maker among the reserve linemen on the University of North Carolina squad this season is Bill Faircloth, of Clinton, who understudies Asheville's Roy Abernethy, Jr., at right guard. A sophomore, Faircloth turned in three fine defensive performances in the Citadel, Wake Forest and Virginia Tech games. In the Wake Forest contest he blocked and recovered Red Mayberry's attempted punt to set up the stage for Carolina's fifth touchdown. Faircloth broke through frequently to smear Citadel and Virginia Tech backs for losses ranging from two to nine yards. He prepped at Oak Ridge.

REDS LOSE AS MYERS MUFFS FREY'S THROW

With Yankees on first and third and none out in the first half of the ninth inning, the Yanks trailing the Reds by a score of 4 to 2, Catcher Bill Dickey of the Yanks hit a "double-play grounder" to Lonnie Frey, Reds' second baseman. Frey tossed it to Billy Myers, who muffed the catch, as shown in this photograph. One run scored on the play and the Yanks went ahead to win by 7 to 4. Had the play been made without error, Myers would have thrown to first, doubling up Dickey, and only one more out would have been needed. DiMaggio is shown sliding safely into second as the ball falls from Myers' glove. Frey is at right.

Kittrell Bags Ace At Golf Saturday

R. G. Kittrell scored an ace on the 115-yard ninth hole at West End Country Club Saturday afternoon, thus becoming the first golfer there to get an ace on the grass greens, and the fifth ever to score an ace at the local course.

Mr. Kittrell, an attorney here, was playing in a foursome with R. J. Jones, E. H. Dixon and E. H. Dixon, Jr.

Scores Ace

R. G. KITTRELL.

has failed to show any charge and very little fight in the two years he has been out. He likely will go to guard, Miller using his weight to plug the line. Blois Grissom, brother of James, counted on to handle a tackle post, will likely be relegated to the second string. He, like his brother, doesn't have the stuff on the ball. Warwick, end, has been suspended for loafing.

Tough work will be given today and tomorrow for the game Thursday with Green Hope, with tackling

State Grid Teams Meet Demyankees

Daily Dispatch Bureau. in the Star Water Hotel. By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Oct. 10.—The demyankees will invade North Carolina this coming Saturday and already have a battle rendezvous to keep with Tar Heel defenders at Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill.

Like their ancestors who followed Sherman in 1865, the invaders will be seeking revenge for a long series of defeats at the hands of Dixie's doughty hosts; because the sons of U. N. C. who will attempt to repel the New York University footballers have licked the Violets thrice in a row in the biggest city of America.

But a renewal of the War Between the States isn't all that football fans in this vicinity have to look forward to for Saturday. There has been conveniently scheduled as bitter an internecine brawl as the most fastidious can demand. Wake Forest and North Carolina State are down for an arelight affair right here on Riddick field.

All of which will give opportunity to see two games in one day, though not for the price of one.

While all this is going on, other members of North Carolina's Big Five will be playing out of the State.

Duke at Pittsburgh against a very potent Panther, and Davidson will have met, on Friday at Sumter, the University of South Carolina.

Your correspondent saw Duke for the first time last Saturday and came away from the Blue Devils lair with the very definite impression that Wallace Wade has another powerful team; though by no means one which has yet proved itself great. Don't be too optimistic because of the 37-0 rout of Colgate's Maroons, as the visitors from Hamilton, N. Y., collapsed completely in the second half.

The Devils are big and strong, have at least four boys who can kick a football from here to yonder, and are as alert as a politician looking for a hand to shake. This boy Killian can go through a broken field slicker than a pickpocket through the jeans of a hick at the State fair. George McAfee and the others do more than just look pretty in a dark blue uniform. Most of the time they seem to be in quite a hurry to get somewhere, and quite often arrive at the desired destination.

State, on the form of the game it played against Tennessee could beat Wake Forest on the basis of the game the Deacons misplayed against Carolina; but, unfortunately for the Wolfpack, perhaps unfortunately at any rate, that isn't what they'll pay off on come this Saturday night. Wake couldn't possibly be quite as bad as it looked in Chapel Hill and State's defense against Clemson was obviously much more porous than against the bowl-hungry Vols from Knoxville. Yet they do say the Wolves performed better on offense than in previous outings.

Anyway, what's the use in comparing previous records and scores when these bitter rivals meet? It ought to be one whale of a spectacle, though for finesse and perfection it will probably fall something short of the Carolina-NYU doings over at the Hill.

And there you have something, too. Brer Wolf's Heels failed to startle or sparkle against V. P. I., but were due for a letdown after they way they mauled and mandanded Citadel and Wake Forest.

The New York Times described the NYU-Colgate battle as "featured by the terrific hitting power of the Violets inside and outside of tackle," and told of a tremendous 200-pound line behind which fast backs operated.

So what? So you guess the winners, this corner has had no luck at riddle reading.

Deacons Point To State Game

Wake Forest, Oct. 10.—With a soothing ointment in the form of a 33-0 victory over Miami University, 1938 Florida State champions, last week easing the pains of their 36-6 submission to North Carolina a week earlier, Coach D. C. (Peahead) Walker's Wake Forest Deacons now point for the tradition-bound encounter with N. C. State at Raleigh Saturday night.

Last year Coach Doc Newton's boys pulled an upset to defeat the Baptists 19-7, and except in one or two instances the same teams that tangled a year ago will meet again Saturday. By graduation the past spring Wake Forest lost two regulars and the toll over Raleigh State College way was one lighter.

While N. C. State has been particularly famous for giant-killing football teams and all opponents expect a real battle when the Wolfpack shows its fangs, Wake Forest's reputation is, on the other hand, not the same, although Peahead Walker has taught his Deacons to preach a dangerous text to their opposition this year. In 1938 State had a particularly hard season by the scorebook, and scored 59 points to the opposition's 86. Wake Forest by records had a total of 161 points to the opposition's 91. But figures don't and still don't mean a thing to Wake Forest and State when they enter their annual "Wake county championship" engagement each year.

Both Wake Forest and State came mightily close to marring the perfect record of the Rose Bowl Dukes last year, and Duke was pushed to beat both teams by a one touchdown margin. And incidentally the Deacs and Wolves were two of the three teams that got within the unscored-on Blue Devils' 10-yard stripe last year, during the regular season. Colgate was the third club to do this.

Now it appears that the Wolfpack-Deac encounter this year should exhibit superior playing to the same contest a year ago. Both teams have played in-and-out football this season, which probably is an indication that anything can happen when they go together this week.

Wake Forest will not be at top strength for this week's setto. Louis Trunzo, all-Southern guard injured in the Tar Heel contest, cannot possibly be ready by Saturday. Melvin Layton, sub fullback, hurt an ankle just before the Miami trip and is limping considerably. Freddie Welch, reserve halfback, is in the hospital with tonsillitis and will not be available.

Coach Walker started Marshall (Wheelhorse) Edwards against Miami last week in place of Tony Galovich, to bolster the Deacon defense, but it was Galloping Tony who intercepted a Hurricane pass and returned it 44 yards into touchdown territory. And to top off his day's work, he turned in an 89 yard run from scrimmage for 6 points, and followed up with a third marker on a 19-yard trek.

Edwards likewise had several long runs to his credit, although not reaching the enemy goal line, and just which of the two will draw the starting assignment to face the Wolfpack Saturday night, will be determined by their performances in this week's workouts.

Wake Forest and N. C. State, this week's opponents, have met on the gridiron 31 times since 1907. The Wolfpack holds a decided margin of victories over the Wake Deacons, 22 wins against 7 losses. Two games ended in 0-0 deadlocks.

Cotton Field Dedication Is Next Friday

Henderson Institute Panthers meet the Orange County Training School, of Chapel Hill, here Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock on Cotton Field, the game to feature dedication ceremonies of the fine athletic field recently completed by WPA.

E. M. Rollins, superintendent of public schools, and others will appear on the program and at dedication.

The Chapel Hill team is one of the strongest the Panthers will strike during the season. Henderson has won one, tied one and lost four in the series with Chapel Hill, all of the games being close scores.

A real battle is to be offered, with the Panthers being whipped into top shape by their coaches. The game will be brought to spectators by a public address system.

Hitter wants to know if England and France are willing to fight. That guy, evidently, can't tell the difference between shadow boxing and the first round.

New York University's 1939 Gridiron Aces

COACH MAL STEVENS

Coach Mal Stevens will rely heavily this Fall upon these four seniors in the Violet's nine-game campaign. In Ed Boell New York University has one of the country's star passers and Stanley Mikulka rates just as high as a running back. Alexander Campanis is the team's ace pass receiver and a talented wing back. Jim Conlin, husky center, should be the mainspring on the Violet line.

N. Y. U. meets Colgate and North Carolina in "road" games and plays P. M. C., Carnegie, Georgia, Lafayette, Missouri, Georgetown and Fordham at New York.

Stirnweiss Returns To Duty, Tar Heels Stock Takes Decided Upswing

Chapel Hill, Oct. 10.—With General Stirnweiss back at the controls, North Carolina's aerial stock jumped today, but the Tar Heels still found themselves in the position of going up against a team which is for the first time this season their equal or superior in the air.

New York University, which comes here Saturday for one of the big games of the year in this State and for what may turn into the finest air battle of the season, is known as one of the greatest passing teams in the country.

"We'll have to stop their passes if we hope to win", Dick Jamerson, who scouted the Violet Violets in their 43-0 rout of Penn Military, said today, and the Tar Heels fell to work overhauling their whole anti-aircraft defenses.

And well they might. New York just threw 44 passes at the Tar Heels last year. And Big Ed Boell, who completed 14 of their 17 heaves that day, is back to do the pitching Saturday.

The resumption of his duel with Carolina's Stirnweiss and Sweet Lalanne promises a thrill a minute, and booming ticket orders today indicate a near capacity crowd for the Yankees one game in this State.

G. E. Shepard, Assistant Athletic Director, said ticket sales today were running well ahead of the same time prior to the Wake Forest game, and that contest drew 20,000 to set a new record for early season.

Stirnweiss, the chief of the Carolina air corps, was held out of the Virginia Tech game on account of an injury, but he is back in harness and will be available Saturday.

The Flying Dutchman, who comes from New York in the shadow of the Violet stronghold, is the boy who hooked up with Boell in last year's mound duel and pitched to George Radman for a 7-0 victory.

Carolina also nosed the Violets out in 1936 and 1937 by the narrow margin of 14-13 and 19-6, and the New Yorkers, seeking their first win over Carolina, will be all the harder to stop.

An interesting sidelight is that Stirnweiss and Alex Campanis, New York's ace receiver, played on the same baseball team last summer, and Boel pitched for another team in the league year before last.

Scout Jamerson, who also saw the New Yorkers in their victory over Colgate, reported that they have another big team which will outweigh Carolina 10 pounds to the man.

Their passing attack, he said, is every bit as good as last year, and they have shown even greater running strength.

Coach Jamerson was particularly glowing in his praise of Boell and Frank, two triple-threats; the running of LaManna, Mikulka, Campanis, and Barnak; and the unusual strength of the line.

Boell is one of the greatest passers and punters in the country, he said, and Frank, a newcomer, is almost as good a passer and an even more dangerous runner.

JV's To Tackle Durham Next

The Junior Varsity gridgers will journey to Durham Thursday afternoon to meet a similar team at that place, athletic authorities at Henderson high school announced today.

The JV's lost their first game of the season to Roanoke Rapids last Friday 20 to 7.

The youngsters have been taking their work very seriously and some of them promise to show plenty of football when they graduate to the first string Bulldog lineup.

Wake Forest has not beaten N. C. State College in football since 1936. The Deacons edged out a 9-0 triumph. State won the 1937 contest 20-0 and 1938 19-7.

KELLER SCORES ON HOMER AS YANKS TAKE SERIES

Charlie Keller, sensational rookie outfielder of the New York Yankees, scores the first run in the final game of the World's Series in Cincinnati, as the Yanks won 7-4. Keller rounded the bases on his third home run in two days. DiMaggio welcomes him at the plate as Umpire Babe Pinelli and the Reds' catcher, Ernie Lombardi, look on. This is a phonophoto.