Marian Martin Pattern

A playroom or schoolroom leader—this spirited outfit for "small fry." For Marian Martin has included three smart pieces in Pattern 9507—a jumper, a blouse and a bolero. The merrily scalloped straps cut in one piece with the front and back are on a straight grain for dressmaking convenience. You might let the jumper open down the front so daughter can quickly "dress herself." Or perhaps you prefer just a button trim. Pockets and ruffling look gay on the jumper; the fresh little blouse may have lace edging and a ribbon bow. Now stitch up the jaunty bolero—and there's a complete three-piece costume. Follow the Sewing Instructor for short cuts.

Pattern 9507 may be ordered only in children's sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6, jumper, requires 1 3/4 yards 35 inch fabric, and blouse, 3-4 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents in coins for each Marian Martin pattern. Thirty cents (30c) for both. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Send your order to Henderson by Dispatch, Pattern Department, 22 W. 18th Street, New York, N. Y.

Miss Daniel Wed To W. H. Newman

With simple beauty and dignity the marriage of Miss Gertrude Moss Daniel, of Oxford, and William Newman, of Henderson, was solemnized in a private ceremony Sunday morning at 9 o'clock in First Baptist church of Oxford. The Rev. M. L. Banister was the officiating minister, and the vows were said before a gathering of relatives and friends of both bride and bridegroom.

Miss Dorothy Parham, organist, rendered a program of wedding music consisting of Schubert's Serenade and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," Saint Saens, Miss Lucy Speed sang "At Dawning."

To the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin," the bride and groom entered together, unattended. During the ring ceremony, "Liebestraum," Liszt, and "O Perfect Love" were played softly while Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as the recessional.

The bride, who is an attractive blonde, chose for her wedding a becoming American model of soldier blue crepe. Her hat was a French bonnet of soldier blue trimmed with a soft veil. With this outfit she wore black suede shoes and carried a black suede bag. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Newman left for a wedding trip to the mountains of Western North Carolina. Upon their return they will make their home with Mrs. Lula Paynter, 316 Breckenridge street, Henderson.

Mrs. Newman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Daniel, of Oxford, was graduated from Wilton high school, and since that time has held a responsible position with J. J. Newberry, in Oxford.

Mr. Newman is the son of K. M. Newman, of Henderson. He received his diploma from Henderson high school and since that time has held a responsible position with Newman Grocery Co., of Henderson.

Camp Robin Hood Brought to Close

The last meeting of girls and boys registered in Camp Robin Hood, the summer reading course at the H. Leslie Perry Memorial Library, was held on the rear lawn of the library on Monday morning. The North Henderson members met at St. John's Mission Monday afternoon, and the South Henderson members met at the Community House on Tuesday morning of this week. The total attendance at the three meetings was between one hundred thirty-five and one hundred forty. From the city grammar schools and Junior High, 62 members completed the course; from the county schools, 6 members; from North Henderson, 58 members; from South Henderson, 89 members, making a total of 207 from a registered membership of a few over 400. Reading lists and arrows were presented to the perfect marksmen present at the last meetings. Those who were not present to receive their lists may get them by calling at the desk of the place where they were registered. The arrows were not awarded on the basis of the most books read, but to those who completed the quota of ten books. No prizes were awarded to individuals, but a copy of the book, "Use Books and Libraries," by Mott and Baisten will be presented to West End School, a copy to South Henderson Reading Room, and a copy to Zeb Vance School, these being the schools from city, North and South Henderson and county, respectively, having the highest percentage of average daily attendance to finish the course.

Four meetings were held during the summer. At these meetings officers were chosen and short programs were presented. The library is indebted to Mrs. John Lee Wester, Mrs. Allison Cooper, Mrs. Julia Zolteffer, Miss Kate Furman, Miss Josephine Martin, who assisted at these meetings; visitors to the library and to branch reading rooms have found the targets bearing the arrows for books read colorful and interesting to watch. As a treat at the meetings yesterday and today, lollypops were served.

Closs's Column

A YOUNG COUPLE we know went into a Chinese restaurant for lunch, and somehow Roosevelt got mixed up with the Chow Mein. They knew the owner, so they called him in as referee.

"Ling, what do you think of Roosevelt?" they asked.

There was a long, long pause.

"He is an excellent speaker."

There was another long, long pause.

"He is a good politician."

There was a still longer, longer pause.

"And he behaves very well at the dinner table."

And Ling no longer lingered.

MENTIONED BY THE METHO-DISTS was the dilemma of a certain service club whose rules forbade their inviting more than one member of each profession to join them.

The problem arose over how to invite a popular young Methodist minister and an equally popular Methodist presiding elder. The rules were clearly stated . . . but there seemed to be no good way of choosing between the two men. A bright member solved the problem by an interpretation that enabled them to ask both men. The rules said no two men of the same profession were allowed to join, but it also said there might be both a wholesaler and a retailer. This had been previously interpreted to mean "of groceries," but it was plain that the two desired members were respectively a "wholesaler and a retailer of religion."

DURING THE SUMMER she has often mentioned an intention of "putting out some roses one of these days" . . . but her work takes her away from home most of the time.

"Come here and pinch me," she called to her cook the other day.

"I know I am asleep. Why every time I look out of this window I see rosebushes growing against the fence, and I know perfectly well they weren't any there last night when I went to bed. You'd better wake me up."

"But Miss Margaret I see them too. There are rosebushes out there, and they weren't there when I left this here house last night."

The mystery was solved several hours later . . . a neighbor had known it was to be her birthday and had sent a man with the rosebushes early that morning . . . had had them planted as soon as it was daylight . . . an appropriate birthday gift to a flower lover.

A SMALL BOY IN GEORGIA started to school to a French schoolmistress recently. Upon his return home his mother asked him what his teacher's name was.

"Miss M'Nickle" was his answer.

"Miss what?"

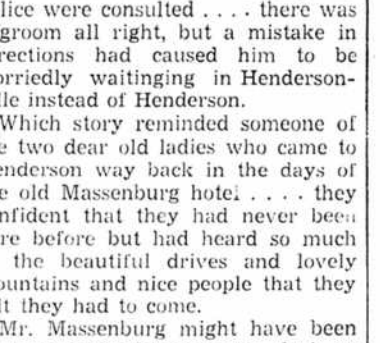

"M'Nickle . . . no, it's not M'Nickle, it's M'Dime . . ."

Investigation showed it really was "M'Dime . . ." or rather that's as close as the little boy could come to pronouncing "Madam".

A BRIDE IN HER SEVENTIES arrived at a Henderson hotel last week to meet her husband. Days past but no husband arrived. Eventually the police were consulted . . . there was a groom all right, but a mistake in directions had caused him to be worriedly waiting in Hendersonville instead of Henderson.

Which story reminded someone of the two dear old ladies who came to Henderson way back in the days of the old Massenburg hotel . . . they confident that they had never been here before but had heard so much of the beautiful drives and lovely mountains and nice people that they felt they had to come.

Mr. Massenburg might have been deaf or maybe business was slack, or perhaps he took a liking to them . . . or was just plain civic-minded. He got out the surry and drove the old ladies over the (then) steep and curved Oxford road . . . he took them on all the "lovely drives" they had heard about and he even showed them a few "mountains" in the distance of Granville county. Every tour was personally conducted. The two ladies had a marvelous time and never found out that they weren't in Western North Carolina . . . or at least not until they talked to their more traveled friends when they went back home.

British Flier Tells Of Raid On Berlin

With the Royal Air Force somewhere in England, Aug. 27—(AP)—A lucky gap in the clouds over the Berlin area gave British Royal Air Force bombardiers Sunday night their first crack at an objective they had been eager to attack.

The R. A. F. raiders found their target and dropped their bombs despite bad weather and a constant barrage of anti-aircraft fire that logged their passage across German territory.

In his own words, one of the bomber pilots gave this account of the raid.

"Everybody was pleased when the intelligence officer mentioned Berlin as the 'briefing' before we started. We all were very keen to have crack at it.

"The weather was bad right from he start and as soon as we gained my height at all we ran right into heavy clouds.

"When we arrived over Berlin there was a formidable concentration of guns and searchlights. We cruised around for about half an hour before we located the target and all the time the guns were popping quite accurately.

"Then suddenly we saw a small gap beginning to open in the clouds three or four miles away and we made for it. We thought we could go a main road junction. Then the hole in the clouds widened and we saw we were right. Next we caught sight of the reflection of the moon on a lake and these two points gave us our position.

"Working down to the lake we got in our target. There was more anti-aircraft fire than ever and the searchlights blazed more brightly and we couldn't keep a steady enough course to bomb the first time.

"So we did a preliminary cantor. Then we went away and two or three minutes later came back.

"By this time the friendly gap had opened up just a bit more. Having dropped our bombs we turned away, lodging violently because the guns were getting warm again."
