

Stewart Says Spain-Axis Tieup Would Effect Latin America

By CHARLES P. STEWART
 Columnist
 Washington, Oct. 3.—If Spain gets more or less into the hands of the Axis, the developments will have complications which will be of a kind that more than make up for the loss of her own territory.

The Spanish can't be particularly useful to the Axis from a military standpoint. To be sure, they're good fighters, but they have not had much time to recover from their own civil conflict. Their peninsula doubtless will be a convenient area for German operations, but not one that will be particularly useful to the Axis from a military standpoint. To be sure, they're good fighters, but they have not had much time to recover from their own civil conflict. Their peninsula doubtless will be a convenient area for German operations, but not one that will be particularly useful to the Axis from a military standpoint.

What concerns Uncle Sam is the immense, which an open alliance between Spain and the axis is likely to bring to Latin America.

Germany and Italy are pretty much in a several of our New World countries, but they're not progressing. They do considerable trade, but it's not a good deal. In Brazil, for instance, pro-axis activities in the Spanish southern coast are being vigorously suppressed by the rest of the country. The way is being paved, however, at present, with a would-be axis campaign to the west. During the last year or so several formidable anti-axis groups in Buenos Aires, Argentina, German stores were raided, the German club was wrecked and the building of the local German newspaper was set afire.

Latin America's Population.
 Latin America's population, in shows a small fraction of 1 per cent of Y. S. It's slightly English. It's somewhat German. It's Italian as a matter of proportion. But it's Spanish.

Why is it Spanish as the United States? Well, there, we have our leading element of not yet fully assimilated Spaniards, but not enough to be really reckoned with, except in a little remote mission area. The bulk of Latin American population is essentially Latin American, and its background is Spanish.

Here in the U. S. A. we're a melting pot. Nevertheless our background is more English than any other one thing. It's evident from our language and our sympathies in the last World War and the present one. The Latin Americans are far more Spanish today than we are. English, yes, they rebelled against Spain to gain independence, but so did we rebel against England. So, in that sense, we remain pro-English. Slightly the Latin American, regardless of his Spanish—even more so than we're pro-English.

Now, the question arises: If Spain goes the axis, won't its policy generally tend to drag Latin America in that direction? It's something to worry about.

As to Brazil.
 Sure, I know.
 Brazil, the biggest of the Latin American republics, isn't Spanish, but Portuguese.

But they really isn't much difference between you, the Spanish and the Portuguese, except not to be able to understand one another's language. Yet if speaking only Spanish, you go into a Portuguese shop, ask in Spanish for something that you want to buy, and the Portuguese store keeper sees a chance to make some money out of you, he'll understand you all right. And vice versa.

Moreover, the axis is making a bid for Portugal as well as for Spain.

New Instructor

J.A. PORTER, JR.

Raleigh, Oct. 3.—A newcomer on the faculty of the Textile School at State College this year is Joseph A. Porter, Jr., above, who has succeeded George Peeler as instructor in weaving and designing. Mr. Peeler resigned to become superintendent of the Phoenix Mills in Kings Mountain.

A native of Rockingham, Mr. Porter graduated from the Rockingham high school in 1930 and graduated from State College in 1934 with the B. S. degree in textile manufacturing. For three years he worked with a textile plant in Rockmart, Ga., and for three years before returning to State College he taught carding, spinning and designing in the Danville (Va.) Textile school. He spent the past summer here at work on his master's degree.

Profit Taking Slows Rally

New York, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Traders caused sufficient profits in today's stock market to keep further rallying tendencies within bounds.

Steels and rails led the list in another forward move in early dealings. Gains of a point or so, however, subsequently were reduced for some groups. The pace slowed and near the fourth hour trends were a shade uneven.

Bonds were selectively improved and commodities held to a relatively steady course.

Major Repairs Being Made To State's Roads

Daily Dispatch Bureau.
 In the Sir Walter Hotel.
 By HENRY AVERILL
 Raleigh, Oct. 3.—Nearly one hundred stretches of North Carolina roads, varying from less than half a mile to almost 25 miles in length, are undergoing major repairs or new construction work, according to the first October Detour Bulletin just issued by the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

Listed are 32 projects on principal state and federal highways, ten on county roads of various sections and one on the Blue Ridge Parkway.

In all, the main road projects involve a total of 373.4 miles; while 13 bridges are listed as being built to because the structures washed away by recent floods or outmoded and narrow bridges which have become obsolete.

In this month's initial bulletin no specific mention is made of flood damage, but even a casual reading of the repair projects show that probably more than half are directly due to August's catastrophic high waters, both in the West and the East.

There is, for instance, the US 19-W listing "Tennessee Line (south) to Junction US 19—rough, one-way traffic at several points. Through traffic should follow XC 36 and Tenn 31 via Sams Gap."

That's a direct result of flood damage, as is the notation for the East:

US 17 Williamson (north) to Windsor—Approach fill to Roanoke River bridge washed out. All through the long list the flood damage can be traced, but every effort is being made to normal highway conditions.
