'Indian Day' Is Proposed

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Star-Water Hotel, By HENRY AVERILL.

Raleigh, Sept. 4.—One of the sayings of the frontiersmen was "The only good Indian is a dead Indian," but now comes the Indian Association of America, Inc., with a plea for establishment of a national "Indian Day" and with the contention that the old-time slogan was a fallacy and something of a slander on our red-skinned aborigines.

Governmental attention has been requested to set aside the fourth Friday (20th) in September as "Indian Day" in a dozen states have already done. It seems there is a bill in Congress with this as its national aim.

The governor has not yet made a definite announcement of the action, at any rate, in this connection, but an Indian Day bill special authority to do so is delegated him by an act of the 1937 legislature which authorizes designation of an "Indian Day" upon which "Indian lore shall receive emphasis in the schools."

If he does decide to proclaim an Indian Day, it is possible that he will pass up the September date in favor of making the event fall within the week of October 7-11, when the Cherokee Indians will be in full action on the Qualla reservation in western North Carolina.

Results Of Vice Conference Problematical, Averill Says

Daily Dispatch Bureau, In the Star-Water Hotel, By HENRY AVERILL.

Raleigh, Sept. 4.—On a newspaper where this correspondent used to work there was a reporter who started every story he wrote "A meeting was held at such and such a place yesterday," no matter what happened at the session, however important it was.

Probably just such a lead is appropriate to the prolonged conference here Wednesday at which Governor J. Melton Broughton got down to cases with the state health officer, Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, Raleigh city law enforcement officers and representatives of the military forces at Fort Bragg and of the United States Health Service.

Subject matter was the vice situation in Raleigh, as has been aimed at great length and with infinite circumstantiality of detail in the press, particularly in the News and Observer.

Results at best, are problematical, though everybody emerged from the conversations in possession of every other point of view and agreed upon a general course of action which may achieve results. Best of all, it isn't likely that there will be further criminalization and recrimination in the papers such as Dr. Reynolds and Chief Bryan have indulged in for the last week or so.

"If this national defense emergency keeps on, and industrial jobs multiply at the rate they have, I wouldn't care to predict what the farm labor situation will be next year. It may be a widespread problem."

Best of all, it isn't likely that there will be further criminalization and recrimination in the papers such as Dr. Reynolds and Chief Bryan have indulged in for the last week or so.

It seemed to be admitted from the very start that the conferees were attacking a problem which has vexed and nagged since the dawn of history and neither agreed that no specific and absolutely sure solution could even be approximated.

For an hour and a half there was an apparently unlimited debate in which everybody participated, after which representatives of the press were admitted and the governor outlined the main points of attack upon which action of some sort would be taken.

First and foremost, it was agreed that there will be a general interchange of information bearing on the problem. Thus, where Fort Bragg officers come into possession of information which gives them grounds to suspect that venereal disease has been acquired by a soldier of some particular location or from some particular prostitute, this information will be transmitted to the officer who will, in turn, pass it along to city officials.

In this connection, it should be observed that unless the city officers are given more definite and specific information than was handed along by Dr. Reynolds recently, this will be a pure waste of time.

After declaring that he had received from officers at Bragg a list of names and locations in Raleigh and charging that the city authorities were indifferent to vice conditions here, Dr. Reynolds eventually sent to Chief Bryan a list which contained such vague and indefinite statements that it might just as well have never been sent at all. Just as an instance, the list reported that one soldier had contracted a venereal disease at "a house on Blount street." Obviously, the chief was as much in the dark as ever before. Under that sort of information he might just as well

MAYBANK, JOHNSTON IN RUNOFF PRIMARY

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Gov. Burnet R. Maybank and his predecessor, former Gov. Olin D. Johnston, will contend for the Democratic nomination for the United States senate in a runoff primary September 16.

They were the leaders in a three-way campaign climaxed by the first primary Tuesday.

Latest returns from 1,450 of the state's 1,520 precincts gave Maybank 58,435 votes, Johnston 41,079, and Sen. Joseph R. Bryson of Greenville 24,964. The unreported boxes were small and scattered.

On the basis of these returns, Maybank led in 36 of the 46 counties, Johnston in seven and Bryson in three. Most of the governor's support came from the central and lower state counties, Johnston's from the piedmont, and Bryson's from the northwestern and districts which he represents.

Broader Tax Base Approved by Senate

Examples at their present levels and whether the lower exemptions finally are enacted will depend largely on action of a joint conference committee which will be needed to adjust differences between the senate and house bills.

Greensboro College Fire Takes One Life

At 2 o'clock this morning, Greensboro is believed to have been struck by a major timber storm.

Opening of the college on schedule Tuesday morning, September 9, will not be delayed by the fire, it was stated by Dr. L. L. Gobel, president of the institution. No estimate of fire and water damage was available this morning, but Dr. Gobel stated that damage will be completely covered by insurance.

Meanwhile, a group of women was clearing away debris, and another group directed by Miss Mary Elizabeth Woodcock, assistant librarian, was moving books damaged by water.

Funeral services for Melburne will be conducted at 5 p. m. here today. Burial will take place in the family plot in Granite Falls Friday at 11 a. m.

Tom Melvin Dies Tomorrow For Murder

Executive clemency has been requested has been the fact that the good citizens of Wayne county feel that the prisoners should not suffer death while his accomplice Mrs. Holmes, who instigated the crime and who persuaded him to commit the act, received only light punishment, the statement said.

In this connection the governor does not feel that it would be proper for him to attempt to correct what they contend is an inequality in punishment which exists in the law itself. The maximum punishment for accessory before the fact is life imprisonment. The only penalty provided for murder in the first degree is death.

TAKE BICYCLE TRIP

Ray James Brampton and Charlie Jaggard, members of the local colored Boy Scout troop, have just completed a 100-mile trip on their bicycles, it was said today. They left here Sunday night and rode up into Virginia, returning here Wednesday night. They reported a pleasant trip with no mishaps. On their return they stopped in Warrenton where they were entertained by the director of the Negro Scouts there.
