STAR TOWERS.

In the incredible dusk,
When buildings are born again
In floating shadow,
When doorways are curtained with velvet,
One by one,
As if an answer to some secret word
The lights appear.

Lights—lights in the towers
Illusive as a dream,
We raise our eyes;
We cannot see the office lamps,
The tired workers,
The humdrum routine,
Has awakened the stars
Of some inscrutable dimension.
Slowly, prophetically, in the dusk
We sense another pattern.

Marian Martin Pattern

PTEERN 9876

It saves your clothes, it saves you money—this young over-all smock by Marian Martin, Pattern 9876! Stitch it up quickly with the aid of the Sew Chart... use the cute applique motif of an apple on the twin pockets! The fullness released from slashes at the shoulders gives you plenty of room for action, and the long sleeves are comfortable and give ample protection too. (Make them short if you like). The back is in two sections, with an inverted pleat. Why not make one fingertip smock with the applique, collar and cuffs of contrast; another longer length (36 inches) and ric-rac edging?

Pattern 9876 may be ordered only in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38) Large (40-42) and extra large (44-46). Small size requires 2 3-4 yards 35 inch fabric and 3-8 yard contrast.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for the MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to The Henderson Daily Dispatch, Pattern Department, 732 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

Closs's Column

A BROKEN ANKLE forced a friend of ours to stay at home for several painful weeks. The monetary was relieved, at least once, by the visit of a little girl who came over to cheer her up. The child sat down and stared at the injured foot, evidently at a conversational loss.

"Foot hurt?" she asked finally.

"Yes."

"Hurt bad?"

"Yes, it does."

"I'll get well before you get married."

"I'm already married, Mollie."

"You married?"

"Why yes. Don't you know that Mr. T. is my husband?" The child looked dubious.

"You ain't got no cherruns, is you?" she asked.

"Yes, Charlotte's my little girl."

"She don't stay home much, do she?"

"No, she's off at school. But she's my little girl."

"So you's married, is you?"

"Yes."

"Well, it don't amount to much, do it?"

RIGHT AFTER RECONSTRUCTION.

according to a story of my grandfather's there was a big baptizing at a nearby creek. Nearly fifty Negro children were going to be baptized, and two new preachers were coming in to help with the baptizing. There was an enormous crowd... The children were led to the creek, heads bowed in prayer, and were just marching into the water when one child looked up, gazed in horror at the white-supplined preachers, and shrieked, "Run, niggers, run! Dem's Kluxers!"

And there wasn't any baptizing.

GHOST STORY: Told us by the Harker's Island man who saw his friend on "the banks" at noon of the day the friend was buried... "Now there was the time when D. W. and his wife saw Sadie G... They left my house about two o'clock in the morning, of a summer night it was, and as they went along the road they saw Sadie sitting there by the side of the road. And D. W. he told me that when they walked right through Sadie, the air felt as

Playmakers Appear Here on October 7

The Carolina Playmakers take to the road again, inaugurating their thirty-eighth tour with Paul Green's play of the Old South "The House of Connelly". Their schedule includes a performance here Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Henderson high school auditorium, sponsored by the dramatic club of Henderson high school.

Dr. Frederick H. Koch saw his dream of a drama of the people being realized when he organized the first group of Carolina Playmakers some 23 years ago at the University of North Carolina. Paul Green, one of the greatest writers of the American drama, is the author of "The House of Connelly". It is a drama of conflict between a decadent aristocracy and a burgeoning lower class.

In 1917 it was acclaimed on Broadway, and last year it was toured successfully by the Carolina Playmakers.

The Playmakers have produced their plays not only in Chapel Hill, but have gone out into the byways of North Carolina to play one-night stands. The scope of their appearances has widened to include almost the whole of Dixie and much of Yankeland as well. When they go on the road, the Playmakers carry along everything necessary for a finished production. The top of their show-bus is fitted to carry three complete sets of scenery, built in their own scene shop and specially designed to occupy a minimum of space.

The Playmakers have made thirty-seven grand tours, and upwards of 300,000 people have seen the 45 different original plays produced on the road. Two hundred forty-six performances have been given in 86 different North Carolina cities and towns.

GRATITUDE

He rode through the gates of the city,
Through a street paved with raiment and palms.
The multitude shouted "Hosanna,"
The temple resounded with psalms.

The hearts of the people were fickle:
The shut-out hosannas were gone.
"Save yourself," cried they in their anger.
He was silent: His mission was done.

Wherefore, the political figures who thought to take advantage of the Bailey anti-New Deal animus find themselves stymied squarely by a large black eight-ball; while a tremendous percentage of folks who normally would be inclined to stick in a vote against Bailey are now anxious to stick in one for him.

Children's Health Theme for Recent Epsom P-T. Meet

The Epsom Parent-Teacher Association held its regular monthly meeting in the school auditorium Thursday evening with the vice-president, J. T. Griffin, presiding.

The central thought for discussion was "Are our children physically fit?" Mr. Griffin discussed and outlined the seven fundamental principles or objectives of public education. This was briefly presented and impressed everyone with the importance of education. "How Our School Provides for the Health of Its Pupils" was given by T. J. Jessup. He spoke of the many ways a child is helped while in school, including the teaching of recesses, and him in being healthy. He also talked of the emergency aid rendered them in case of accidents or illness.

Dr. A. D. Gregg, head of the Vance county health department, presented in a beneficial way the health services rendered to the school children by the public health departments. He emphasized the importance of the public's taking advantage of the department's services, including the teaching, recesses, examinations, and other medical care.

The premium list for the "Fall Festival" which is being sponsored by the P-T-A, was given. Everyone is urged to attend, the date being Friday, October 10. Amusement for everybody, games and contests are promised, with prizes being given for the oldest and the youngest person attending, the longest and shortest married couples present and for many other things.

A mechanic, G. C. Helms, who was working on a bus which suddenly caught fire, was burned about the legs and body. His condition was not regarded as serious.

The cause of the fire was not determined immediately, but it was theorized that a short circuit from a bus might have launched the blaze.

Circulation Increases At The Library

A slight increase in circulation was shown by the Perry library during September, and 75 new books, including 46 of fiction and 29 of non-fiction were shown in the monthly report of Mrs. Leslie Perry, librarian, today.

Circulation was an even 3,700, a gain of six over September last year, 2,620 of the total being fiction and 1,080 non-fiction, and 2,636 of the books being taken by adults and 1,014 by juveniles. New books included 72 adult and three juvenile volumes.

At the end of September, the library had an active membership of 4,201, including 2,955 adults and 1,213 juveniles, after addition of 53 new names and withdrawal of 52.

Average daily circulation was 142.3, of which 29.1 percent was non-fiction volumes. The library was open 26 days, and total circulation of the Perry library and its branches was 4,263.

Branch library statistics, included in those for the library proper, showed a circulation of 577 at North Henderson and 489 at South Henderson, with 81 at Townsville, 152 at Zeb Vance.

The Dunbar branch for colored had a September circulation of 563, including 194 volumes of fiction and 159 non-fiction. That library received 37 new books, all but three non-fiction. There were no gains or losses in membership, with a total of 686.

Maneuvers Are Begun

ing 10,000 square miles evenly divided between the Carolinas, the officers and men of Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum's army began an intensive practice war that will not end until December 1.

On foot and by motor transport they began moving out of their base camps this morning to participate in various training problems.

For the first two weeks the maneuvers will be confined to exercises executed separately by each of the three corps in the First Army, each within its own area. Later will come mock warfare in which one or more corps is pitted against other corps, and finally, the big window in which the First Army will engage in simulated battle against the fourth corps of the Third Army.

THOSE who publish and produce your newspaper are fully conscious of the burden of responsibility that they bear in searching out, interpreting, and delivering to you, news of the world, your nation, your state and your community. News is knowledge and knowledge makes men free! No price is too great for them to pay to maintain the Freedom of the Press, without which the delivery of news quickly, honestly and fearlessly would be impossible. The cost to you is trifling, but profoundly important. Paying pennies for a paper is but one way for you to support the shining light of freedom; the other, is to realize that without NEWS told TRUTHFULLY, you too would live in darkness. To know the true value of your newspaper, you must realize its meaning to the democratic way of life.
