BOY.

When I was a boy
the color of a boat or girl's hair and throat could make me shake with joy.
Then I loved a snow-bush more than a drowning man the shore, then the meeker subit broke for a whole grove's length wore a forest look, and fireflies were stars with a snort of humor (and God was a friend of father's and time a song that the town bells put in rhyme).
