

Motorists To Register July 1-3 For Gas Books

Elementary Schoolhouses Will Be Registration Places, But Details Have Not Been Completed for Local Listing.

Vance county motorists will register during the period of July 1-3, inclusive, at elementary schoolhouses throughout the county for new gas books. The date was set by J. C. Gardner, chairman of the Vance county board of education, who stated that the registration places for the registration will be at the elementary schoolhouses in the county.

"At the schoolhouses, the motorists will be given a gas book and a registration stamp. The registration stamp will be placed in the gas book and the gas book will be used to purchase gasoline. The registration stamp will be valid for one year. The gas book will be valid for one year. The registration stamp will be valid for one year. The gas book will be valid for one year.

Hard Fighting Rages In Northern Africa

Attack on British supply lines extending nearly 200 miles back into Egypt, an RAF communiqué reported. The air attacks, centered on Matruh, the railroad 130 miles east of the Egypt-Libya border, and Fuka, a station 40 miles farther east, apparently were part of an attempt to hamper the movement of British supplies and reinforcements to the desert front.

Bond Sales Falling Short Of June Quota

Vance county purchasers of war savings stamps and bonds, who have consistently exceeded quotas during the past several months, will have to step up their buying of the securities if the June quota of $66,300 is reached, it was stated today by J. C. Gardner, chairman of the Vance county committee for sale of war savings bonds.

"From a check-up of the four selling agencies in county," Mr. Gardner said today, "it was found that $18,112.50 worth of bonds have been purchased from the first day of June through June 13. This is far from the $66,300 June quota which had been stepped up 50 per cent over the May quota of $44,200. Purchases of the securities are $56,091.25 in Vance county."

STANDARDS LOWERED FOR NAVAL RESERVE

Raleigh, June 15.—The Navy department notified the Navy recruiting service in North Carolina today that physical requirements for enlistment in the U. S. Naval Reserve have been modified. The modifications affect the requirements for teeth, vision, height and weight and are expected to bring about the enlistment of large numbers of applicants who could not qualify for service under former requirements.

Gas Rations Cut Mishaps

Losses up to 75 per cent. G. Golf, minor league baseball and leagues were among the most seriously affected sports events and recreational activities. State officials generally were silent on the actual amount of gasoline saved for the war effort, says no specific figures were available. Reports included: North Carolina—Three main ferries in the tourist area reported reduced traffic as a result of rationing. Highway fatalities and accidents dropped considerably.

The Army Quartermaster Corps maintains the country's largest fleet of ocean-going vessels and has a truck fleet of 250,000 vehicles.

The thirty-three targets shown in this map may be the key to Hitler's downfall. Each is a component part of what it takes to keep the Nazi military machine running. All are located within a radius of about 800 miles from London. Modern heavy bombers possessed by the U. S. and Great Britain have a round trip range of more than 3,000 miles, enough to reach every target shown on the map. All out bombing of these key points, says air experts, will contribute tremendously to the collapse of the Nazi war machine.

Qualifying Is Extended For One Week

Time for qualifying for the annual club championship golf tournament at West End Country club has been extended for one week. O. T. Kirkland, chairman of the men's division, announced today. The extension is being made to give all golfers ample time to get their rounds and post their scores. Rain last week curtailed activities over the local course.

CHAPTER ONE

MISS MARTHA WESTON looked up from stuffing gray wool into her knitting bag.

"Well?" she said.

"Well, what?" Dian Weston asked, turning away from the window.

"Why don't you say something?"

"What is there to say, Aunt Martha?"

"Didn't you hear me tell you that it was had enough to have one spinstar in the family, without having two of them, and one of them jilted?"

"Yes, Aunt Martha, I heard you." Dian shrugged. "But what is there for me to say? You've said about all there is to be said about the matter."

"No, there's one more thing—Jerome Carr."

"I see. . . . So we're back at that again?" Dian went back to stirring out of the window. "I simply can't marry Jerome," she said.

"But he's the most successful man in Ardendale," said Miss Martha. "He's been in love with you for years, and—"

"Nonsense!" Dian cut in. "How could Jerome be in love with anyone, that is, REALLY—when he's got a dollar mark where his heart ought to be?" She walked to a table, found a cigaret and lit it. "I know he's a banker and all that, and that the Weston family certainly could do with a banker, but—"

"But what?" said Miss Martha impatiently. "Go on!"

"But why don't you marry him?" said Dian. "Frankly, I'd much prefer a banker-uncle to a banker-husband."

"Well, I never in all my life heard such silly talk!" Miss Martha exclaimed.

"It's not silly," Dian said. "Jerome Carr's always liked you, and I think if you stopped trying to push me down his throat, he'd take time to see that you're the Weston female he wants, and not me."

Miss Martha closed her knitting bag with an angry gesture. She picked it up, looked to see if her hat was on straight, and walked to the door.

"Sometimes, Dian," she said, "you are the most exasperating person alive. You should marry Jerome just to show the town you don't care a darn about being jilted."

"Aunt Martha, I wish you'd stop using that word 'jilted' so freely. Dian said with a wry smile. "It sounds so sort of final and unpleasant."

"It is final—and unpleasant," said Miss Martha. "But now that you are the most exasperating person alive. You should marry Jerome just to show the town you don't care a darn about being jilted."
