Death And Marriage Affect 1941 Senatorial Campaign

Daily Dispatch Bureau. In the Sir Walter Hotel. By LYNN NISBET.

Raleigh, March 2.—The death of a senator and the marriage of another have affected the 1941 senatorial campaign in North Carolina. The death of a senator has created a vacancy in the Senate, and the marriage of another senator has affected his ability to serve.

When they return as governor early in 1941 it was generally expected that they would be candidates for the United States Senate. However, the death of a senator and the marriage of another have affected their chances of being elected.
