Cake-Cutting Follows
Dunn-Pinnell Rehearsal

Immediately following the rehar-sal of the Dunn-Pinnell wedding Monday night Mr. and Mrs.
Frank E. Pinnell, parents of the bridegroom, entertained the bridal party, immediate friends, and out-town guests at the traditional cake cutting at their home on Young avenue.

The house was attractively decorated throughout with summer flowers. The dining room table, covered with an embroidered lace-trimmed imported cloth, a gift of the bridegroom to his mother, was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and groom. The usual white and green color scheme was carried out in the dining room decorations.

In addition to the wedding cake, punch and other delicacies were served. Assisting the hostess in serving were Miss Miriam Pinnell, Mrs.
Ralph F. Thompson, and Mrs. J. W.
Sanderson.

Following the cake-cutting the younger set went to the White House Restaurant for further entertainment complimenting the bride and groom.

More Peanuts
Are Milled

Raleigh, June 28.—The recent peanut stocks report showed that during the 1942-43 season through May 31 that about 61 per cent more peanuts were milled than to a comparable date a year ago, according to the war food administration and the North Carolina Department of Agriculture in the Weekly Market News Service.

Meanwhile, the indicated disappearance through May of edible shelled peanuts was about 4 per cent more than during the same period last season. Farmers' stock prices were unavailable.

A scarcity of current supplies of peas remained the outstanding feature of the market during the week ended June 22. The demand for most recent continued urgent although improved pastures in many areas were supplying increased quantities of feed.

Prices held at maximum levels on peas upon which earnings have been established. The index number of wholesale feedstuff prices was about unchanged at 146.3 compared with 146.2 for the previous week and 146.2 for the corresponding week last year.

Speltz shipments heavy; Prices Off Speltz receipts and prices topped this week when approximately 200 car lot equivalents moved market-ward in one day and values sank from the ceiling to the floor and lower. Late in the period prices dropped from $1.39 to $2.04 a hundred pound sack at shipping point and from $1 to $3, depending upon grade, at wholesale in New York. The ceiling to producers for U. S. No. 1 grade is $2.20 and the floor $2.25.

Livestock prices were little changed from a week ago on the price setting Chicago market. In comparison, some values advanced from 10 to 15, mostly around 10 cents per hundred on the Carolina and Virginia markets. Closing bids for good and choice offerings were estimated at $13.35 on the Rocky mount, Smithfield and Whiteville markets and at $13.39 in Clinton, Cayeteville, Florence, Lumberton and Richmond.

Supplies of hens increased slightly due to the hot weather, declining egg production and the coming of some flocks. This customary seasonal condition, known as the "June lull" is not as heavy as in previous years. Meanwhile, prices to farmers throughout the state ranged from 20 to 25 cents per pound.

Cotton Fluctuates Cotton price fluctuations were narrow during the week and closed on Friday 40 cents a bale higher than a week earlier. Spot cotton markets were less active. Mill orders continued slow. Weather conditions were mostly favorable to the 1943 crop. The 10-market average price of 21.12 cents for middling 15-16 on Friday compared with 21.04 a week ago and 18.95 cents a year ago. The highest daily average price for the week was 21.13 cents and the lowest 21.06 cents. Prices for July futures contracts advanced 25 to 26 cents and prices for new crop utures were up 4 to 14 points.

North Carolina produced 3 percent more tobacco on 29 percent less average, when the period of 1923 1932 was compared with the years 1934-1942.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Coley.
Mr. Knott spent the week-end with his possible Mr. and Mrs. J. D.
Knott.

A C. O'Brien spent Saturday night and Sunday with Leonard and Alvin Knott.

The monthly meeting of the Claire Miss Phillips class of the First Baptist church was held Monday evening at the Kim's Daughters' Park. Miss Caroline Miles, guest for the evening, read the devotional service followed by prayer. Mrs.
J. B. Ford, program chairman, presented Mrs. J. Franklin Mills, the class mother, who gave a very interesting presentation of the State Baptist Mothers' convention, held in Salem recently, which she attended.

After a short business session presented by the president, Mrs. I.
P. Matthews, a picnic supper was served by the class.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE
By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT ON DEFENSE
COUNTING the number of tricks which the dealer seems to have in sight can be the key to your defensive play in many occasions. If you see that letting a certain card go is, without covering it, is likely to give him the one doubtful trick he needs to make his contract, then by all means cover it. If he also has the other card or cards which will be promoted by this means into the next in rank, then you couldn't do anything about it anyway, whereas if your partner has that card or cards, your covering may thwart the dealer's entire plan.

West's opening lead here was obvious. Certainly he wouldn't lead away from either of his major kings into suits bid by the enemy, nor into the supported diamonds as his club 5 was soundly covered. South led East take two tricks in the suit and used his A to win this. With one trick in play, 5-2 available in diamonds, and a heart with the major aces, it had to pick up one more somewhere. Trying for it, he led the spade Q, and the crisis of the deal was at hand.

West studied a bit, guessed that South must also have the J in order to have led the Q, and decided to wait for the J before covering.
So he played the 2, and the Q won. Five diamonds and two aces then gave South his game.

Why couldn't West have solici-tized this, when the spade Q was led? South already has one trick in diamonds look certain, making six, and he surely must have the heart A, so that it and the spade A will make eight tricks; if South also gets a trick with the spade Q, he is home; of course, if he has the spade J, he is home anyway, the only chance, however, to find the spade J in my partner's hand, so I will cover."

If West had done that, the contract would have been beaten positively.
