

Meyer Gives Outline Of Recreation

Says More and More Attention Will Be Given Idea When War Is Over

Dr. Harold D. Meyer, of the University of North Carolina faculty, and executive secretary of the State O.C.D. committee on recreation, outlined at some length here Thursday afternoon a tentative program not only for service men but also for civilians both during and after the war.

The speaker was heard from 3 to 4 o'clock by a group of representatives from the various organizations of the city and others, and after presenting his own ideas, invited the leaders to ponder whether or not Henderson was indicating his own possibilities in this regard.

R. E. Clement, county O.C.D. chairman, president of H. O. C. O. C. D. and president of the Henderson Recreation Association, said that he was in agreement with the speaker's plan.

Dr. Meyer said that he had a number of suggestions for a recreation program during the war, and that he was in agreement with the speaker's plan.

Among other things, he said that he was in agreement with the speaker's plan.

He said that he was in agreement with the speaker's plan.

With respect to the problem of prostitution in connection with the armed forces, he said that most of the men in camps and training centers were at the biological and adolescent stage of life where if the lock were turned entirely it would create another problem of sexuality.

The speaker saw no harm in dancing, that there was even good in it. He also referred to music, art, games, hunting and fishing as types of recreation.

The meeting was attended by a number of representative citizens, with the women vastly in the majority.

ONE LICENSE
A marriage license was issued by the register of deeds Thursday to Vid Clifton and Ethel Louise Tarr, South Henderson white residents.

55 FOR SPEEDING
A fine of $5 and costs for speeding was imposed upon William Bennett Blunt, Jr., in police court today. Blunt was driver of a freight truck, Magna Protein M. W. Water, president.

FURSEE CAPERS ALARM
Firemen answered a call shortly before eleven o'clock Thursday night, going to South William street as the result of a burning furor on the Seaboard tracks in that vicinity. Some one had mistaken the bright red glare for a fire, and had sent the alarm to firemen.

Income from Fern marketings in the U. S. State was $100 million dollars more in May this year than last, reports John W. Goodman, assistant director of the Extension Service at State College.

NEW CHOCOLATE BAR DOESN'T GET 'RUNNY' IN TROPIC CLIMATES
Atlanta, July 23—A new chocolate bar to satisfy the sweet tooth of the American soldiers serving in the tropics is of such texture that it doesn't get "runny" at 120 degrees Fahrenheit, it was disclosed at headquarters, Fourth Service Command.

The ordinary chocolate bar, so popular in the United States, will not stand up under the heat of the tropics, it is explained, as it goes from a solid to a liquid at 90 degrees it becomes almost a liquid. The new "heat-resistant" bar is made of chocolate, sugar, skim milk powder, cocoa fat, oat flour, artificial flavoring and vitamin B. The new formula must be pressed into a mold, since it cannot be poured. For this reason, as well as the shipping space saving involved the bar is block-shaped instead of the familiar flat type. However, it is essentially the same in taste and texture. It weighs two ounces, and is being prepared in large quantities by the Army for resale in post exchanges overseas.

RELIEVED, SHE BUYS RETONGA FOR FRIENDS
It is a Great Joy To Be Able To Go Shopping And Attend Church Again, States Happy Mrs. Bangle. Tells of Her Case
One of the most enthusiastic women in her section about Retonga is Mrs. James A. Bangle, of 152 E. 5th Ave., Greensboro, N. C. After finding relief in her own case, Mrs. Bangle has supplied Retonga to many friends. Happily discussing her own case, Mrs. Bangle states:
"For years I was plagued with a weakened, nervous, rundown feeling, and my arms and legs ached so terribly that after being up an hour or two I felt so exhausted and uncomfortable I would have to lie down. I had no appetite and the little I ate caused severe gas pains. I became almost afraid to eat. I was forced to rely on laxatives for elimination. My nerves were on edge, and I felt so weak and wretched that I could not go to town or even attend church.
"Retonga was a blessing. I am so

Army Offers Scholarships

Atlanta, July 23—Qualified high school graduates between 17 and 18 years of age will be granted military scholarship at selected colleges and universities, under the new reserve section of the Army specialized training program, Headquarters of Fourth Service Command announced today.

The reserve program will be limited to those volunteers who receive qualifying scores on the pre-induction test administered last April 2, and to those who qualify in similar tests given in the future.

The military scholarship will provide for payment of tuition, housing, board and such incidentals as are customary in the institution. Special notices of eligibility will be mailed by the War Department soon. To those who made satisfactory scores on the April 2 pre-induction test, who did not have reached their 18th birthday prior to August 15, 1943.

If the boy who receives this notice is not already in the Enlisted Reserve Corps he will be required to get in it before he can be granted an AST reserve program military scholarship.

Unlike ASTP trainees, the reservist will not be on active duty, or receive basic military training before entering the reserve program. They will attend college on inactive duty, in civilian clothes. At the end of the term a soldier trainee receives his 16th birthday, he will be placed on active military duty, sent to an Army replacement training center for basic training, and if qualified he will be assigned to an Army specialized training unit, to continue in his particular field of study.

In general, qualified candidates must have a high school education; have passed the 17th birthday, but have not reached their 18th birthday, and must occur prior to Aug. 15, 1943; have passed the A-12 pre-induction test; be voluntarily enlisted in the enlisted reserve corps; meet physical requirements for general service enlisted men.

MORRIS PLAYS BALL WITH VIRGINIA TEAM
James Morris, who played baseball and softball with Henderson teams in past years, is now playing baseball in the City League at Newport News, Va., where he is working, according to a letter which he wrote recently to Chief of Police John H. Langston.

In a recent game Morris put out over the force to bring in four runs and account for half of his team's scores in the match. He is playing second base, having switched from third base because of an arm injury early in the season.

Teachings on the Cost of Drinking

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Deut. 21:18-21; Proverbs 23:29, 31; I Corinthians 6:9-11

If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son who will not obey his father and mother, and will not hearken to them, they shall lay hold on him and take him to the elders of the city.

The rebellious boy's father and mother shall tell the elders that their son is stubborn and rebellious and will not obey their voice; that he is a glutton and a drunkard; and the men shall stone him.

"Be not among the winebibbers; among riotous eaters of flesh; for the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags."

Paul, writing to the Corinthians, tells them that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God—"nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers."

"Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?"—I Corinthians 6:9.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 25 is Deut. 21:18-21; Proverbs 23:29, 31; I Corinthians 6:9-11. The Golden Text being I Corinthians 6:9. "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?")

We learn today some of the things our Bible says about drunkenness, its effect on the body, spirit and social condition of man.

The first reference in the lesson is Deuteronomy 21, verses 18 to 21. Here is given the old Hebrew law concerning the treatment accorded a son who will not obey his parents, is stubborn, dissolute and rebellious, even after he has been punished by them. These instructions on the rules of conduct for Israel were given to Moses around 1405 B. C.

The father and mother were told to take hold of their rebellious son and take him before the elders of the city. They were to tell the elders that this was their son who was stubborn and rebellious; "he will not obey our voice, he is a glutton and a drunkard."

"Then all the men of the city were to stone the boy with stones until he was dead. All Israel would hear of this terrible punishment so they would fear to commit the same fault. "All Israel shall hear and fear." It may have been necessary to see such extreme measures in those early days, when men were primitive and best ruled by fear.

Why Laws Are Severe.
The laws that govern certain peoples must be severe to get their respect and obedience. Under certain circumstances, too, laws must be rigid and drastic. Ordinarily it is no crime for a man to fall asleep on his job, although it doesn't help him or his work. But a soldier on guard duty is shot if he falls asleep at his post, because it may mean death—even the defeat of his country—if he fails to see the approach of the enemy and to notify his officers hereof.

The treatment of this young man who was a drunkard and rebel is a great contrast to the punishment accorded a son who will not obey his parents, is stubborn, dissolute and rebellious, even after he has been punished by them. These instructions on the rules of conduct for Israel were given to Moses around 1405 B. C.

In Proverbs the command is given: "Be not among wine bibbers, among riotous eaters of flesh; For the drunkard and the glutton shall come to poverty; and drowsiness shall clothe a man with rags."

Over-eating is almost as grave a fault as drunkenness. It may ruin a person's health. People think that they can control their drinking, but too, too often the habit grows and grows upon them until it becomes utterly true that "they come to poverty," and rags.

Paul, in one of his letters to the Corinthians, tells also what is in store for those who live unworthy lives. "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived," and here he names all the most revolting sins, ending, "Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."

Many were the sins committed by the cities in which Paul lived. It names the many immoralities of what is probably the order of the times—the most deplorable first, and so on.

"And such were some of you," he wrote, but "ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God."

One can repent of their sins. They must bear the consequences, no matter how sincere their repentance. The man who is a drunkard cannot undo the harm to his family, his body and soul by his manner of living. He will suffer for his fault, but he can atone and be received into the Kingdom of God at last if he is earnest and sincere in his repentance hereof.

AROUND CAPITOL SQUARE

Daily Dispatch Bureau
In The Sir Walter Hotel—Raleigh

WESTWARD, BO' Cotton has been over organization of the Department of Conservation and Development for the board to hold its winter meeting in Raleigh and the summer meeting in the city, more than at Mountain City, Reason for the change was to place emphasis on the conservation of the State's natural resources. It was also a concession to the fact that the State's natural resources are being depleted and with development of the mineral interests there has been increasing demand for the board to meet in the west. At the Raleigh session this week it was voted to hold next summer's meeting somewhere in the mountains.

MINERALS—The department has put more emphasis on minerals than on anything else during the past year or so. There were two reasons for this. Previous attention to other phases of departmental work had set them into pretty good shape. More important was the enhanced demand for minerals for war. Western North Carolina has become one of the nation's chief sources of vitally needed mica. The steel shortage has focused attention on potential deposits of iron ore, coal and copper. The State employed a well known firm of engineers to make a thorough survey of these and other mineral deposits, and the influence of the State government was put behind the bill authorizing federal money for that drilling. As a result there is available at least $340,000 for the purpose. The State also assisted mica miners in their efforts for fairer treatment. In view of these facts it is natural that departmental interest should turn westward and that next summer's board meeting should be held in the mining area.

SILENT—What the postmasters talked about in their little private group conferences is not known; what they didn't talk about in public was politics. Every time the subject was broached to one of them he would stammer and whisper "Hatch act." That was that. With a hundred or more postmasters and at least four congressmen around, there was bound to be a little confidential information exchanged.

CONGRESSMEN—Congressmen Durham, Kerr and Cooley appeared on the official program and Congressman Bannock was just visiting. The congressmen, less reticent than the postmasters but still wary of being quoted, talked mostly about the war and after the war. Occasionally there would be comment pertinent to the forthcoming state and national campaigns, always couched in very general terms.

DIRECT ACTION—Soldiers generally go in for direct action as contrasted with the circumlocutions of politics and diplomacy. So it is not surprising that when the Salisbury vote of the 40 and 8 became alarm ed at reports of delinquency and lack of discipline in the Salisbury high school, they waded right in and appointed a committee to investigate and do something about it. Similar complaints of juvenile delinquency have come from nearly every community in the state, but most of the time older citizens try to pass the buck—parents pass it to the schools, schools back to parents and churches, all on the way to the police and the courts. The Salisbury situation will be taken with interest. Taking editorial cognizance of 40 and 8 action, the Salisbury Post editorially pleads for care, discretion and the exercise of judgment, but believes that with this approach some good will result.

CELEBRATION—Judge Walter Siler was around the Square Thursday extending invitations to friends to come to a big Fourth of July celebration at Hemp on or about September 11. He said since Thanksgiving had been changed around a time or two, and "those folks" are trying to change the name of Hemp, he sees no reason why the Fourth of July can't be changed or its celebration repeated. Asked what he expected to celebrate, he said it would be a victory celebration because the supreme court had overruled the change of the town's name. (The court hasn't passed on the issue yet.)

NECTAR—Herbert Seawell, Jr. of Carthage also was a capital visitor. He was telling about his experience at the recent bar association meeting at Winston-Salem. Seawell is one of the most ardent dries to be found, political and personal. At the bar meeting there had been rigged up a device that looked like a sparkling water fountain packed with ice. He walked up to take a drink. It tasted just of water but was still cold. In just a minute he realized there was gin in it and he was greatly perturbed. However, no serious consequences ensued.

WHEN?—Congressman Carl Durham of the fifth district is just as much affected with all the talk about the war will end as any of the rest of us. He thinks nobody knows and he believes conflicting predictions made public by prominent leaders are hurting the war effort. The congressman has a little special committee work to do during the summer recess, but hopes to get off in the hills by himself for a little rest before going back into session the day after Labor Day.

About one-third of all the forest land of the United States is on farms, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.
