1621--THANKSGIVING DAY--1943

THIS YEAR all Americans should be also thankful to this young American soldier, depicted as though gazing at J. L. G. Ferris' famous painting of the first Thanksgiving festival of the New England colonists in 1621.

Through the courage and sacrifice of this soldier and his millions of comrades-in-arms tyranny is being destroyed and the world once again being made into a decent place in which to live and worship God.

Cotton IS FOOD GENERALLY we think of cotton as a textile, but as we feel the pinch of food rationing, enterprising business men are making us appreciate more and more the importance of cottonseed as food. The meat in cottonseed makes an oil used for salad dressing, margarine, baking compounds, mayonnaise, shortening. It also provides a flour from which bread, cakes and crackers are baked. And cottonseed in various forms is used for fertilizer and as feed for animals, coming back to us in the form of milk and meat. Many cottonseed mills are located in the Carolinas and are now busily at work processing the 1943 crop. Their increased use of electricity is being met at low prewar rates and service is always ready at the flick of a switch, just as it is in your home.
