

Roosevelt To Be World President?

By Helen Essary
Central Press Correspondent

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Roosevelt does not want to be elected President in 1944, according to a Washington dispatch. It is said that he has had a long conference with the other American leaders and that they have agreed to support him in the event of his reelection.

For long the President has been known as the "World President" because of his leadership in the United Nations. He is now being considered for the post-war position of World President.

The possibility of Roosevelt's reelection has been discussed in many quarters. It is believed that he will be reelected in 1944.

At the possibility of international post-war alliances, a group of states of World War II are being reorganized. The United States may not be a member of this organization.

Not long ago, I was told that a newspaperman in New York City had been told by a source that Roosevelt would not be reelected.
