Over-Bearing

Senator George's vigorous reply to Secretary Morgenthau's attack in Congress last week was the Treasury all the money it wanted is not responsible, but it is one hundred percent ready and appropriate.

able of more accurate comprehension of the plight of the people whom Senator George and his colleagues on Capitol Hill are trying to save from ruination and bankruptcy at the hands of the government.

A Noble Woman

Death of Mrs. Josephine Daniels removed from the State scene of the outstanding woman. She had acquired eminence in her own right other than the reflected glory that shined from a husband's prominence.

tion in South America. It seems to us pretty certain that "south of the border" there is still a suspicion of the "big brother" of the north, and that whatever of gain has come from the good neighbor policy there is yet very much to be desired and a long way to go to achieve that spirit of friendship which is necessary if we in this hemisphere are to give the Old World an example of peace and good will.

KEEP THAT MOUTH SHUT

SILENCE is golden when your opponents have landed in a contract you can't carry, but have an escape in sight if you warn them by doubling. That is most clear-cut when they have reached a game of slam in a particular suit which is sure to break for them because you have the important trump bunched against them.

SALLY'S SALLIES

"Henry, this is so sudden... I thought you'd ask me in about February."

What millions of people are hoping today is that high-pressure methods from Morgenthau and his spending cohorts will lack the force and the punch to browbeat and intimidate legislators into doing their bidding. We submit that forty-five billion dollars a year in taxes is enough to take from the pockets of the American people, regardless of what their income is.

Talk about the rich, but these very officials who are demanding such ridiculous levies on the people are so rich that they are not seriously affected, and so do not feel the tax pinch as others do. High living costs mean little to people like Morgenthau, who is immensely rich. They appear to be unable to get down on terra firma with the average citizen and view the tax situation from the same bioculars as the little fellow does.

to realize that not all Americans are millionaires and not all Americans are profiteering on this war, it might be that they would be cap-
