Weather For Christmas Is To Be Mild

Weather prospects for Christmas day and the week-end improved today, with promise of the weather bureau for moderating temperature, but with overcast skies.

Christmas Eve today saw bitter cold sweep in from out the north and last-minute shoppers found the going uncomfortable, to say the least. It was fair and the sun shined most of the time, but the thermometer was well under freezing.

GREETINGS WITH THE ACCENT ON PEACE

"Peace on Earth" was the song heard on the Judean hillside long ago. May its echo resound in these trying days until the whole world vibrates with the desire. Then will our Sacred Christmas Season be in perfect harmony with the ideal for which it was founded so long ago. For those around our fireside this Christmas and for those who might be absent we extend our greetings and best wishes.

May Your New Year Be Happy

We Appreciate Your Kindness And Your Patronage
