

Rocket-Driven Planes Not Outmoding Fighter Types

Washington, Jan. 25.—Announcement by the War Department that a new propellerless plane operating on the rocket principle has been perfected and will go into production soon does not mean the early end of conventional fighter planes.

On the contrary, both Army and Navy experts and the other industry are working constantly to improve such well-known fighters as the Hellcat (Navy) and the Thunderbolt and Lightning (Army).

Even if the new rocket plane goes into mass production immediately, large numbers of pilots will have to be trained to fly it and it may not be used in combat.

Many government economists stress the fact that the atom station decided to bargain a settlement of the miners' wage dispute with John L. Lewis.

They believe that the ultimate result was the picture of wage demands coming in today from all sections of the labor front. Lewis got nearly all of his usual $2 a day demands, about the same as he got before.

The public did not quite understand and has become confused in part by the fact that the union has asked for a 10 percent increase in wages.

Despite plans from sections of the dairy industry to put matter on a separate referendum and to carry out their own plan, the industry is expected to remain at present levels during the next year and may be boosted by expansion returning to agriculture from war plants during industrial expansion.

Despite what they consider ill treatment by the administration, members of the railroad brotherhoods have not abandoned their traditional friendship to President Roosevelt.

The railroad workers probably will go down the line again for the President if he runs for a fourth term.

Reason is that the rail unions blame Jimmy Byrnes and Fred Vinson, home-front assistants to F. D. R., for all their troubles. They firmly believe F. D. R. was influenced in his decisions by Byrnes and Vinson.

The rapid advance of the Russian troops across Poland has brought into sharp focus what may well be the most perplexing diplomatic problem that the Allies will have to face as the outgrowth of the war.

Disregarding historical arguments on both sides of the controversy, pro-Russian factions are quick to argue that Stalin's position is sound—that the Russian people, after their valiant fighting which paved an overwhelming way in turning the tide of war, are entitled to "reparations" for their vast sacrifices that they will never again be made by a European army.

With her armies already in Poland, there is no doubt Russia will have much to say about boundary lines when it is over.

New Test Farm In Western Carolina Sought by State

In the Sir Walter Hotel, Daily Dispatch Bureau, BY LYNN NISBET

Raleigh, Jan. 26.—Ever since the government bought the Swannanoa test farm property from the State for a general hospital, the department of agriculture has been looking for a new location in the mountains.

Several sites have been inspected and placed, most likely one in Henderson county. Recently, there was some prospect of being able to buy a place in Alle county, just across the line from Cherokee county.

A committee from the board of agriculture was in the area Wednesday looking over this and other prospects. The group included W. Kerr Scott, commissioner; Dr. L. D. Bayer, director of central experiment station; Dr. Fred E. Miller, director of test farms; L. L. Bargar of Hendersonville and D. R. Noland of Waynesville, members of the board.

Problems Of Farm Grow

Raleigh, Jan. 24.—By the War Food Administration and The North Carolina Department of Agriculture, the peanut marketing situation has shown very little change in any section during the past week.

Operators of local cash crop buying stations reported a continued congestion and an unsettled condition at most markets during the first half of the week.

One market was closed the first three days of the current week, as was the Richmond, Va. terminal market. Local cash crop operators moved that day producers cooperate in an effort to regulate receipt of the markets in order that further price cuts might be avoided. Serious congestions continued at some terminal hog markets in the corn belt. At Chicago the buyers carry-overs were reported each day during the first half of the week, and this condition caused the Chicago hog marketing committee to announce Wednesday that effective Monday January 24th those expecting to market hogs at Chicago on or after that date are required to obtain permission to market their hogs by having them listed with their selling agency before loading.

The feed supply situation was

Your Waste Paper Rides To Victory.

With the Jap fleet giving Guadalcanal a wide berth these days, freighters supplying our marines and soldiers there can come and go almost at will. Here's a scene as the vital necessities are being landed on the beach. And paper cartons made from reprocessed waste paper are the means of transporting these important supplies. So save every scrap of waste paper. You'll be doing your share to bring victory nearer.

somehow easier during the week ended January 18, but prices remained firm at maximum levels. The increased output of most feed resulted in larger shipments on previous bookings and a slight increase in offerings of feed for prompt and deferred shipments. The demand for feed continued active and coverings were still short of trade needs. The index number of wholesale feedstuff prices remained at 192.3 compared with 176.6 for the corresponding week last year.

Cotton Advances

Spot cotton prices advanced 21 points over last Friday's quotations. Prices in the 10 spot markets averaged 20.22 cents for middling 15 1/16 inch on January 21 against 20.01 cents a week earlier.

THE TAR HEEL GARDENER

By JOHN H. HARRIS, N. C. State College

During the next thirty days, many vegetables can be started in the garden. You may plant seed of kale, leaf and head lettuce, mustard, early or smooth peas, and spinach. You may get your cabbage plants set out and head lettuce plants, too, out during the latter part of February and the first of March.

Many of you are going to try to grow your own vegetable plants this year. This is not such a hard job, provided you understand just how to sow the seed, plant the seed, and care for the seedlings and bed in which they are growing.

the coldframe or hotbed or they may be planted in a box or flat and kept in a sunny window, if outdoor frames are not available.

The soil mixture in either case should be about the same; that is, one that will drain satisfactorily and not bake upon drying. This can be made by thoroughly mixing one part garden soil, one part clean creek sand, and one part wood or leaf mold. This should be screened and the coarse material placed in the bottom of the bed or box.

Firm the soil well and mark off rows. It is much better to plant in rows so the plants may be thinned and allowed to develop into stockier, healthier specimens. Sow seed thinly and evenly and pack into the soil. Now, sift a fine layer of soil over the bed so the seed are covered to 1 or 2 times their diameter. Water thoroughly with a very fine spray. Some gardeners lay a burlap sack over the bed and water through it. This keeps the seed from being uncovered too deeply.

Drawing room is a shortened form of withdrawing room.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

STARS SUCCUMB, TOO

REAL STARS know pretty well what gags can be worked against themselves, and consequently what they can put over on other players of the same degree. That is why they manage to succeed with a pretty fair per centage of the artifices they try in order to steal tricks which were not dealt them in the cards. Among the leading players there is an expression, "super-expert," which merely means one of the top rankers, who can be named and counted on the fingers of two hands. Perhaps some day there may be a super-super, against whom slickery will not succeed.

the diamonds might ruin him, if he tried either the K or J on a lead toward them.

This declarer, Al Sobel, great tournament director of the American Contract Bridge League, figured out a safer play. He won the first trick with the heart J and led the diamond 5. Any player we know would play low, to wait for the apparent certain finesse of the J on the next round. Only a super-super expert, not yet born, would have used his Q on that 5. This East played low, so the 10 forced the A. After that, all Mr. Sobel had to do was rake in his certain tricks, totaling one in spades, three in hearts, one in diamonds and four in clubs.

That rubber game was in Detroit. Al says he is not posing as a New York slicker putting one over on the boys West of the Hudson, as he admits the play would have worked against himself, too, and he knows several Detroiters who might have tried it on him.
