Plane Production In Reich Struck In Joint Assault

Britain and Italy Eased Bombers Hit At Enemy Aircraft

London, Feb. 23—(AP)—American bombers and fighters, striking powerfully from Britain and Italy in the first coordinated assault deep into Germany, crippled enemy aircraft production anew and knocked 433 Nazi fighter planes from the sky. U. S. army headquarters declared today.

Sixty-one big bombers—a record—were lost in yesterday's joint assault, which included diversionary raids by planes based in Italy, the announcement said. It listed 41 bombers lost from the force attacking from Britain and 20 missing from the U. S. 8th air force base in Italy.

British headquarters in the Meuse front said only 15 Italian-based planes were lost yesterday, and a spokesman said 12 were bombers. That would make the day's total British losses 53.

In three days of record-breaking operations aimed at destroying Germany's capacity to maintain aerial resistance, American air force planes have accounted for 310 enemy fighters, headquarters said, while 125 failing to fighters of the Royal and Ninth air forces in Britain, 147 destroyed by Eighth air force bombers, and 40 by Fifteenth air force bombers.

The Germans threw up savage resistance as the Britain-based bombers struck. The Junkers-88 assembly plant at Berlin and oil frame and equipment factories at Oberschleissen and Hohenstaufen, The 15th air force bombers from Italy "blasted two Messerschmidt factories at Regensburg and bombed freight yard at Petershausen, 20 miles north of Munich."

An announcement said the formations from Italy were in record strength.

The bombers from Britain also attacked airfields and other targets in southern and central Germany while those from Italy blasted ports on the Adriatic coast and the Zagreb airport.

Finnish Peace Felt Unlikely

Stockholm, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Julius P. Paasikivi, former Finnish cabinet member whose arrival here February 12 led to rumors that his government was trying to contact Moscow with a view to negotiating a separate peace, returned to Helsinki today without any indications that Finland is any nearer getting out of the war.

He declined to comment on the subject of Finnish peace negotiations, but he appeared to be in a less joyful mood than on his arrival, giving correspondents the impression of a man whose mission has been none too successful.

A possible indication that a Russia-Finland peace is not likely in the near future came from Helsinki yesterday when it was disclosed that Finnish trade negotiations with Germany were resumed February 18. This step was taken despite U. S. and the war.

Plan Proposed For Educating 17 Year Olds

Washington, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The War Department accepts a suggestion by hard-pressed education authorities about 100,000 high school graduates 17 years old may be sent to college this summer at the army's expense.

The proposal was made last night by a committee of college presidents after an all-day meeting at national headquarters of the American Council on Education.

The educators, including the presidents of Cornell, Harvard, Indiana University, Vanderbilt, Villanova, and Hamilton, issued a statement saying their plan would provide "the most effective wartime employment" of young men between their high school graduation and their induction into the armed forces at the age of 18.

They also said it would benefit the boys greatly by giving them intellectual and physical training; they declared it would help the army by providing a valuable reserve of potential leaders.

No mention was made of obvious benefits to colleges themselves, which have suffered severe jolts in the last few weeks.

However, some diplomatic observers expressed the opinion that peace negotiations might not have gone beyond the sounding out stage, and Finland still may find a way to

Tax Power Issue, Says Doughton

Tar Heel Issues Blistering Reply To FDR's Action

Washington, Feb. 23—(AP)—Representative Doughton (N. C., D.), 80-year-old Congressional tax leader, stormed back at President Roosevelt's veto of the new revenue bill today, declaring it raises a question of who writes the tax laws, "irresponsible theorists in the Treasury" or the people's elected representatives.

Charging Mr. Roosevelt ignored the constitutional responsibility of Congress in such matters, Doughton, a former proponent of Rooseveltian tax policies, declared the President's advisors "seemed to have lost patience with constitutional government by law" and "favor government by executive decree."

The tall, rangy, quick-moving chairman of the tax-trimming Ways and Means Committee was joined in a blistering statement by Representative Knutson of Minnesota, Republican leader on the committee.

Together, in a further widening of the schism between Congress and the White House, they called upon Senate and House to override the veto and retain the "constitutional taxing authority" of Congress.

Indications now are that Congress will override the veto. The vote is set in the House tomorrow.

In their joint statement, Doughton and Knutson declared the President's position in his veto message "is indefensible. They set forth these contentions:

1. Congress gave careful consideration to the administration's request for $10,500,000,000 of additional taxes and decided such an increase, added to existing Federal taxes of $42,000,000,000 and the $10,000,000,000 of state and local taxes, "would be oppressive to taxpayers and dangerous to the nation's economy."

2. It is difficult to understand why, if $10,500,000,000 of increased taxes is desirable, an increase of $2,300,000,000 is undesirable. The latter amount is what they figured the vetoed bill would produce. Mr. Roosevelt contended it would yield less than $1,000,000,000.

3. The President's advocacy of a drastic general increase in individual incomes taxes on those of small and moderate incomes is based upon the wholly false assumption that all have benefitted from the war boom and are in an equally favorable position to pay still higher income taxes.

4. The President's proposal would threaten the solvency of all business and undermine its ability to provide jobs when the war ends. Unless this bill becomes law, the way will be paved for many large corporations to make excess profits out of the war.

5. That there are many good features of the bill which will be lost if it should fail to become law."

"Now that he (Mr. Roosevelt) is informed," the statement concluded, "we trust he will direct the Treasury to adopt a more cooperative attitude, and cease trying to obstruct when it cannot dictate."

Metts Plans Protest Of Drafting Farmers

Raleigh, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Being General J. Van B. Metts, State Selective Service director, plans to protest to Washington authorities any drafting of farmers who may not be able to qualify for a deferment under a 16-unit requirement recently inaugurated by national selective service headquarters.

General Metts also said he had ordered North Carolina draft boards to delay the calling of farmers under the new regulation until he can submit his protest.

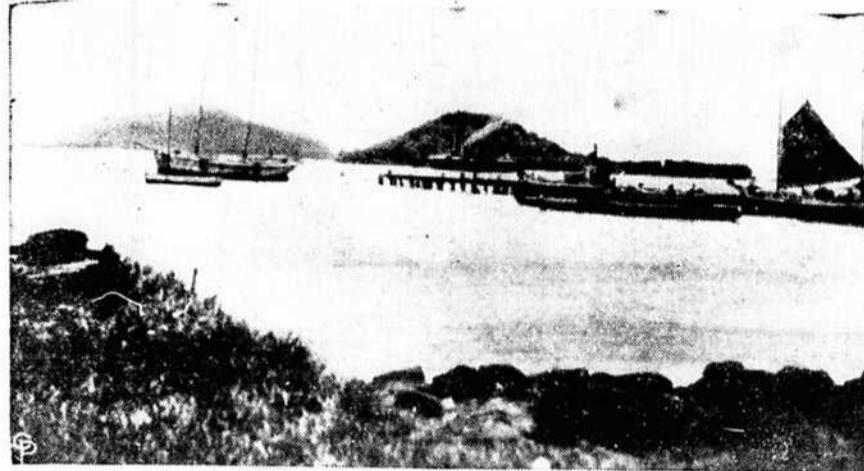

He said the State Agriculture Department found that of 229 farms in the Piedmont, 213 of 542, in the coastal area, 227 of 326, and in the tidewater section, 71 of 139 check.

Metts said his State's plan for drafting farmers, approved by the national headquarters, was a requirement of ten to 12 units in the western half of the state to be eligible for exemption and 12 to 14 in the eastern half.

He said in an executive order that the war effort is being and will be "imminently impeded or delayed" by an interruption of operations of the power plants, water works, and distribution systems of the city.

More than 2,300 of the 5,500 employees of the city water and power department are striking for a wage increase.

Sen. Barkley Resigns As Party Leader

Democratic Leader Venemously Protests The President's Veto

Washington, Feb. 23—(AP)—Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky offered his resignation today as Democratic leader of the Senate in a venomous protest against President Roosevelt's tax veto, which he denounced as a "debauched and calculating assault upon the honesty and integrity of Congressmen."

Barkley threw down the leadership baton after a bitter and sarcastic attack on the President—trigged head of Barkley's own party.

He shouted his anger at the President's veto message and at one time termed Mr. Roosevelt's own tax goals as "fantastic."

"Other members may do as they please," Barkley shouted. "I do not propose to take this ungodly assault lying down."

As the Kentuckian gave up the leadership he has held since 1937 in the closest harmony with the President, he turned to his colleagues and shouted:

"In the Congress of the United States has any self-respecting left it will override this veto and enact this tax bill into law."

Barkley applause roared out through the historic old chamber as Barkley concluded his speech. Scores of House members standing along the rear wall joined in.

Senator McKeellar (Tenn., D.) grasped Barkley's hand. Other members, including Republicans, rushed over to shake hands, too.

Barkley said Mr. Roosevelt deliberately sought to belittle Congress through the tax bill.

"I am one of those who pleaded with the President not to veto this bill," he declared. "I not only advised him not to veto it, I implored him."

"I did not then believe, nor do I now believe that the veto he had sent to Congress is justified."

"I make no apology for that."

Barkley announced to the Senate that he had called a conference of the Democratic majority for 10:30 a.m. tomorrow to select a successor and that his resignation would take effect at that time.

In denouncing the President's tax veto message, Barkley shouted that it was "the first time during my long service, which I had thought was honorable, that I have been accused of voting for a bill that would extend relief to the greedy and impoverish the needy."

The Kentuckian is a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which helped write the bill, and was a member of the joint conference committee which shaped it into its final form.

breathing spell, for they suffered the heaviest casualties of any comparable period of the Italian campaign during their four-day assault from last Wednesday through Saturday.

Allied heavy bombers smashed at Regensburg in Germany in an assault coordinated with a blow from Britain, and also hammered the enemy airfields at Zagreb and harbors at Zara and Sibenik.

Service Vote Compromise Possibilities Disappear

Southern "States Rights" Democrats, changed his mind about a proposal by Representative Worley (D., Texas), to permit distribution of Federal ballot forms subject to validation by the States.

Agreeing on that suggestion—coupled with repeal of a Federal Act waiving poll tax payments and local registration as servicemen's voting requirements—appeared likely when Rankin said it would "overcome all constitutional objections" to the Federal ballot.

As the conferees gathered however, objections arose among the House members. Finally Rankin dismissed the Worley proposition brusquely:

"We decided it would be more confusing than the original Federal ballot plan."

After rejecting the Worley plan the House conferees decided to insist on the original "States Rights" bill which excluded a Federal ballot.

Nazis In Westward Retreat Americans Repulse Two Local Attacks West Of Cisterna

Air Raid On Rabaul Base Unchallenged

Germans Prepare for Another Offensive At Anzio Beachhead

Allied Headquarters, Naples, Feb. 23—(AP)—American troops threw back two localized German attacks west of Cisterna yesterday. Allied headquarters announced today, as Field Marshal Albert Kesselring brought his long-range artillery into play and apparently regrouped his forces for another attempt at driving the Allies off the Anzio beachhead.

Nazi artillery lobbed shells at the nerve center of Anzio and other beachhead objectives, and 130 German planes hit at ground troops, but the Allies countered with 1,600 aerial sorties, and gunfire against enemy troops and vehicle movements.

A full continued in the fighting on the Cassino sector to the east. The Germans tried to infiltrate around Fifth Army outposts northwest of the town, but withdrew under cover of a smokescreen when Allied artillery opened fire.

Otherwise headquarters reported only nominal patrolling from both fronts, with more snowfalls hampering movements in the mountains.

British guns shelled enemy troops and vehicles near the Nazis' main concentration point on Corato. Allied group troops could see the Germans busily moving their forces in rear areas, indicating Kesselring was preparing for a renewed assault after repulse of a second major offensive last week-end.

The enemy also maintained steady pressure across the perimeter of the beachhead.

The Germans sorely needed a

Order Seizure Of Municipal Department

Washington, Feb. 23—(AP)—President Roosevelt ordered Secretary of War Stimson today to take over and operate the strike-crippled Los Angeles municipal water and power department.

A ten-day strike by department employees has left some 160 war plants and 125,000 homes and business establishments without electricity.

While the President frequently has ordered government seizure of plants or industries involved in the war effort, this was the first time he has ordered seizure of any municipal facility.

He said in an executive order that

"the war effort is being and will be imminently impeded or delayed" by an interruption of operations of the power plants, water works, and distribution systems of the city.

More than 2,300 of the 5,500 employees of the city water and power department are striking for a wage increase.

He said in an executive order that

"failure to agree on some procedure for registering the millions of votes held by members of the armed services is bound to have explosive repercussions during the coming political campaign."

For a compromise new up yesterday when Representative Rankin (D., Mass.), a leader of the
