

Henderson Daily Dispatch

THIRTY-FIRST YEAR

LEASED AND OWNED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HENDERSON, N. C., WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 3, 1944

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON
EXCEPT SUNDAY

FIVE CENTS A COPY

TROOPS BATTLE TO SUBDU 'OLD MAN RIVER'

TROOPS FROM SCOTT FIELD, ILL., pile sandbags against the crumbling banks of the Mississippi River at nearby Joplin in an endeavor to save the town from the rain-swollen river, now at its highest level in 100 years. The total acreage flooded by "Old Man River," the Illinois and Missouri is estimated at 1,212,000. Forecasts of more rain have prompted calls for more men to raise the levee. (International Syndicate)

Fathers Beyond 26 Not Likely To Be Called During 1944

Roosevelt's Backers Win In Elections

Pepper and Hill
In South, Guernsey
In West, Victors

(By The Associated Press)

Administration forces beat back their Democratic critics in Florida and Alabama senatorial primaries, while Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York gathered more convention support today for the Republican presidential nomination.

Sen. George H. Pepper, a Democrat from South Carolina, was defeated in a race to his seat, but he will go on to another term as a gubernatorial candidate, and both East Alabamans were reelected to their Senate seats.

The needs of the armed services during the rest of 1944, Costello said, are for 1,100,000 men, of whom 600,000 are needed to bring the Navy up to strength, and the others to 100 replacement needs in both Army and Navy.

House leaders, however, are divided on the question of whether to defer the draft until after the war, or to defer it until after the election. The House Select Committee on War Mobilization has recommended that no man be drafted much before Nov. 1, 1944.

It was in South Dakota that Governor Dewey picked up 11 additional convention votes. A slate favoring the New Yorkers defeated one supporting Rep. George H. Stedman, a margin of about three to two.

The former Dewey's total of pledged or committed delegates to 239, is 100 less than the number needed to nominate at the convention.

The lone-term Senate primary race was third.

Alabama Senator John A. Simpson, Birmingham, 27, won, for renomination by 57,612 to 57,200, with only 432 of the state's 23,100 precincts unreported.

Florida Senator Pepper was unopposed.

(Continued on Page Four.)

Veteran at 16

THE FLYING DAYS of Sgt. Deaderick A. Givens of Pittsburgh, Pa., are over—for a couple of years, anyway. A decorated veteran of six flights over Germany, it was discovered that he was only 16 years old. Officials have decided to send him home. (International)

Fresh Buying Among Stocks

By VANCE LEE, AP Special Writer
Stocks of the New York Stock Exchange and other major markets showed a general upturn yesterday, and some important price movements were made in the market. The market was generally up throughout the day, according to leading floor brokers interviewed in New York.

The needs of the armed services during the rest of 1944, Costello said, are for 1,100,000 men, of whom 600,000 are needed to bring the Navy up to strength, and the others to 100 replacement needs in both Army and Navy.

House leaders, however, are divided on the question of whether to defer the draft until after the war, or to defer it until after the election. The House Select Committee on War Mobilization has recommended that no man be drafted much before Nov. 1, 1944.

It was in South Dakota that Governor Dewey picked up 11 additional convention votes. A slate favoring the New Yorkers defeated one supporting Rep. George H. Stedman, a margin of about three to two.

The former Dewey's total of pledged or committed delegates to 239, is 100 less than the number needed to nominate at the convention.

The lone-term Senate primary race was third.

Alabama Senator John A. Simpson, Birmingham, 27, won, for renomination by 57,612 to 57,200, with only 432 of the state's 23,100 precincts unreported.

Florida Senator Pepper was unopposed.

(Continued on Page Four.)

Most Meats Are Ordered Ration Free

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration, which handles all meat except beef, steaks and used ration-free certificates, effective at midnight.

The removal of ration points, announced by OPA Administrator Frank J. Murphy at a surprise conference, covers all cuts of pork, veal, lamb and mutton; all beef except the steak and roast; beef luncheon, beef stew, all kinds of variety meats, sausages, dried beans, canned meats and canned fish.

The use of the wide variety of meat now becoming available without the spending of red ration points, OPA announced, that housewives will have to make their red points last twice as long, stretching over a four weeks period instead of the present two weeks period.

Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. George H. Hildebrand, D-Minn., who has been instrumental in the bill's passage through Congress, also told OPA that the new legislation of the U. S. Congress today to raise taxes on tobacco and eliminate meat rationing will help to solve the problem of price control.

The House bill, introduced in the House Postmaster General's Committee, "The Red Cross anticipated in $800,000,000 in losses to the government, following the recent flooding of the Red River, the Mississippi and the Missouri rivers. The Red Cross' estimate in Texas was three miles wide in some places.

Government forecasters warned that serious flood conditions also existed along the Trinity, Brazos and Sabine rivers and numerous minor

CHANGES IN TAXES FOR CHANGES IN TAX SYSTEM

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The House Postmaster General's Committee, "The

Red Cross anticipated in $800,000,000 in losses to the government, following the recent flooding of the Red River, the Mississippi and the Missouri rivers. The Red Cross' estimate in Texas was three miles wide in some places.

Government forecasters warned that serious flood conditions also existed along the Trinity, Brazos and Sabine rivers and numerous minor

(Continued on Page Four.)

Mississippi Is Receding; Menace Grows Elsewhere

(By The Associated Press)

Flood waters of the swollen Mississippi river were receding today in south to Cape Girardeau, Mo., where the river is the midwest and south west the threat of high water was mounting.

In central and eastern Texas, the toll had risen to eight dead, 33 missing and one missing, following two rental boats had sunk and heavy rains. The Neches river in east Texas was three miles wide in some places.

Government forecasters warned that serious flood conditions also existed along the Trinity, Brazos and Sabine rivers and numerous minor

AIR WAR IS CONTINUED

Staggering Blows Hit Japs

Navy Hurls Might Upon Strongholds

American Forces
Are Unchallenged
By Nippon Units

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, May 3 (AP)—Staggering blows dealt more than 1,000 miles apart at Hollandia and Truk during an almost leisurely cruise of battleships, cruisers and aircraft attest today to the sustained striking power of the Pacific Fleet far from its home base.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz just has disclosed that the task force which supported the ill-fated invasion of Saipan, Samar, Mindanao and Leyte did not drop a single bomb on the Japanese-held areas since the start of the offensive, despite the fact that the Japanese had shelling and machine gun fire on the Americans for the first week of the war.

For one week, that same powerful fleet stood unchallenged off the Dutch New Guinea coast, wiping out 100 Japanese planes and leveling the defenses through which General Douglas MacArthur's sixth army moved with such ease to invade Hollandia.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

For one week, that same powerful fleet stood unchallenged off the Dutch New Guinea coast, wiping out 100 Japanese planes and leveling the defenses through which General Douglas MacArthur's sixth army moved with such ease to invade Hollandia.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Carrier planes, opening the second such task force assault on Truk—the first was last February—shot down sixty Japanese planes in combat Saturday and destroyed six more on the ground. Guns of the warships accounted for five more. The next day, while the bombing of the big naval base was pressed home, Truk was able to send up only one plane and it was shot down.

Similarly, during the second day's bombing of Truk, the air base island of Saipan, more than 100 miles to the southwest, was shelled, and on Monday, big battleships and carrier planes attacked Palau, the offshore island of the eastern Carolines, 140 miles from Truk.

Today, again, carrier-based planes, flying from British bases, hit the Japanese-held areas of the Philippines, Malaya, Sumatra and Java.

Japanese planes, shot down by British fighters, were sent up to attack the British ships, but they were repulsed.

At the same time, in the southern Pacific, American bombers,