Court Opens Aid Planned Here On 19th For Veterans For 2 Weeks By War Dads

With a docket that could scarcely be deemed congested, but which may occupy much of the first week of the June term of Vance Superior Court which gets under way this week, Judge Walter Bone of Nashville is to preside.

The first week will be for trial of criminal cases and the second for civil matters. It will be the third criminal term and second civil term of the year. Only one other regular term will be held this year after the June session.

Three homicide cases are on the docket. Two originated several years ago and have been continued repeatedly from term to term for various reasons. The other is that in which a small Negro boy killed his father, allegedly at the instigation of his stepmother, who is in jail awaiting trial, and the father is under supervision of the welfare department.

There are a number of petty cases and a host of minor charges to be heard. Some are up on appeal from police or recorder's court.

No outstanding litigation is on the civil docket, so far as has been reported. There will be a number of divorce actions. The calendar for the civil term will be set at a meeting of the bar to be held within a week or more.

Talks on what can be done to help returning war veterans after the fighting is over were given at the monthly meeting of the local chapter of the American War Dads at the court house Friday evening.

The A. D. Group was in charge of the program, and talks were made by E. M. Collins and J. C. Kittrell. Mr. Collins said the most important and urgent problem would be the boys of 16 or thereabouts who have left high school to go into the service and entered just after graduation.

Those who interrupted their college course to go into the service would come next, and then those who left school businesses to fight, he said.

Mr. Kittrell said some of the things War Dads and others could do for these boys would be to buy bonds, help in savings drives, limit the liquor market, help provide adequate hospital facilities and see that provisions are made for training jobs also. He urged that the boys be kept busy and clean and pure in the men with some aid.

Appointment of judges, made by G. Kittrell, president, was approved by members of the chapter prior to the general meeting, and J. C. Tatum was appointed chairman of the chapter.

It was stated that the chapter would be presented formally at the July 1 meeting of the local chapter, which will be held at the court house.

Identification cards will be issued to some of the members in the near future and distributed to those concerned.

There were several resolutions of the membership read, which had to do with a banquet.

The planned banquet will be held at the club house.

Young Men of 17

May again join the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve

Enlistment in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve is once more open to qualified young Americans . . . who want to win their wings on the "greatest team in the world"—an AAF air combat crew.

In April, thanks to the air-mindedness of America's youth, the AAF's personnel program was well ahead of schedule. More than enough men were in training, and in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, to meet scheduled quotas for combat crews. At the same time, the need for men in other branches of the army was urgent. Therefore, opportunities to join the AAF—including the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve—were suspended.

As the Commanding General pointed out, the suspension of enlistments in the Reserve was intended only as a temporary measure. Accordingly, effective June 1, enlistments have again been opened in the 17-year-old Enlisted Reserve in order to insure a sufficient number of qualified individuals for training this fall.

The AAF is a Team

Today, the AAF is the largest, most powerful air force in the world. Fighting side by side with the planes of our Navy and our Allies, it has won control of the air in every theatre—and has carried the war to the military and industrial hearts of Germany and Japan. It is daring the enemy to "come up and fight." Yet its losses have been less than anyone had anticipated or even dared to hope.

That all this has been accomplished is due, in large measure, to the fact that the AAF air combat crew is more than just planes and men. The combat crew is a team . . . the greatest fighting team the world has ever seen . . . with Gunners, Bombardiers, Navigators and Pilot-observers and fighting together to win.

And any young man who wants AAF wings should keep this ideal of teamwork uppermost in his mind. It is the key to AAF successes in battle. It will be the key to his own success in the AAF.

If you want to fly with the AAF, you may apply at any AAF Examining Board for enrollment in the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. Upon passing the preliminary qualifying physical and mental tests, you will become a member of the U. S. Army Air Forces—on trainee status. This means that you will not be called for training until you have reached your 18th birthday. If you are at work you may remain on the job until you are 18. If you are in high school, you may elect to finish the semester you are in when you become 18. If you are a high school graduate, not over 17 years and 9 months, you may elect to take advantage of the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program, which provides three college training for men approaching military age.

When called, you will first be given "basic" training. During this period, you will take "aptitude" tests to determine whether you will be classified for training as Gunner, Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot.

Your Place on the AAF Team

If you have an outstandingly high apti-

rule rating for a particular position, you may be given an opportunity to compete for the classification that you prefer. But it is important to remember that all jobs on the AAF team are vitally important . . . that air combat crews not only are chosen from the very cream of the nation's young men, but that each seat in every plane must be filled by the man best qualified to fill it.

Gunners go into actual combat as non-commissioned officers. In addition to being the world's best aerial marksmen, gunners may qualify as trained technicians—in radio, armament or airplane mechanics. Pilots, Navigators, and Bombardiers are graduated from training as 2nd Lieutenants or Flight Officers.

Your job, and your rank, in the AAF will depend upon your own demonstrated abilities. For full information as to qualifying for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve, see your nearest AAF Examining Board or local Army Recruiting Station.

For Pre-Aviation Training

Whether or not you have yet reached 17, you can begin now to prepare yourself to qualify for the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve. See your local Civil Air Patrol officers about C.A.P. Cadet Training . . . also see your High School principal or adviser about recommended courses in the Air Service Division of the High School Victory Corps. Both offer excellent pre-aviation training . . . and help point the way to AAF wings.
