are moving to these new sites. Activities there will be mainly in connection with beef cattle and feed crops, but Luther Shaw, tobacco expert with the department, is on the job at Waynesville to assist mountain barley tobacco growers with this week that the state highway commission has approved construction of a paved road connecting the new state farm with the Waynesville street system. DEBATE.—Some weeks ago the Charlotte Observer presented an editorial, supported by tables and graphs showing relative position with other states on taxation, arguing for substantial reduction in corporation taxes levied by the state. A few days later the Charlotte News started a series of articles purporting to show that while some adjustments might be indicated, too great reduction in State levies could only mean going back to local ad valorem taxes for support of many governmental functions. The Observer syndicated its editorial legislation and
