THE WORLD TODAY.

It is getting up early—and working late—
And planting a rose by the garden-gate.
With the latch-string out for a friend or two.
And the fire-log burning for me and you.
It is whirligigs circus for a night and a day.
Then a dig and grind for the rest of the way.
It is carefully packing a few broken dreams.
And string them safely with out-moored schemes.
It is keeping a mind that is polished and keen
And a heart that is guest to the mystic unseen.
It is eating and drinking—and carving stone
To be used by the builder in a house now unknown.
It is finding aworld war-torn and afraid.
With the wreckage from bombs
But the hours we may meet with a way and a will—
Keep the Stars and Stripes shining on top of the hill.

Dr. McMillan Leads Baptist Mission Week

At the 11 a. m. worship hour at the First Baptist church yesterday, Dr. H. H. McMillan of Richmond, Va., and Soe-hwan, China, spoke on the topic, "Christians Meeting the Challenge of the Postwar World." In the evening two films, "Here Is China" and "New Life for China," were shown. Sunday services were the high point of mission study for the week in the "School of Missions." Dr. McMillan in his message stated that "we today are living in momentous times," and challenged his hearers to be prepared for victory for there will be many problems ahead to claim our attention. In his discussion on the nature of the post-war world he names several characteristics: the post-war world will be a hungry and starving world; it will be an embittered world, a disillusioned world; and a world where there will be advancement and progress along national lines. "Today we are living in a day when the soil is best adapted to progress of Christianity. We are in the midst of a great revolution. Today Christianity has unusual prestige. The influence of chaplains abroad, of missionaries and of native Christians is at a high peak," he stated. "To meet the challenge of the post-war world we shall need to pledge an unswerving loyalty to our Christ. We must feed a hungry world. We must love our enemies and play the part of peace-makers. We must pray and dedicate lives for the building of a new world after the pattern of Jesus Christ."

Mission study classes begin on Monday evening at 7:30 and will continue through Friday evening.

Mrs. H. A. Newell Heads Louisburg Group Here

The Vance county chapter of Louisburg College Alumni was organized at a luncheon meeting held at the Hotel Vance Saturday at 1:30 p. m.

Mrs. Lucy Fuller Hartfield, field secretary of the college, presided at the meeting, and gave the response to the welcome that was expressed by Dr. Sadie C. Johnson, a former president of the Louisburg College Alumni Association. In her report, Mrs. Hartfield stressed that education through the church colleges was essential and very vital to the progress of the country and the world, and this is dependent upon faith and confidence in the present and future.

Dr. Walter Patten, president of Louisburg college, gave news of the progress in the activities and business administration of the college. He particularly pointed out that the program of the college now is one of development and increasing its capacities for service.

The alumni present at the meeting were delighted with the address given by Miss Lila May Stipe, dean of women and alumni secretary of the college. Miss Stipe reminisced into the past few years of the college's history, bringing to mind many important steps in its progress. She said many of the graduates are holding places of leadership in the country's present activities, especially that many are officers in the Wacs, Wacs, and armed forces of the United States. Miss Stipe also recalled that it was at a Methodist conference held in Henderson in 1930 that Louisburg was given the boost for continuing its service to the youth of this section of the State and the beginning of its chapter of history as a co-educational institution.

Miss Taylor Stephenson delighted the group with her vocal selection. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ida Hassey, who also played several selections during the luncheon. Both of these young ladies are students at Louisburg College, members of the Junior class. News of the activities of the college students now was given by Miss Anne Whittehead, president of the college Student Government Council.

Alumni and students were recognized and a few minutes spent in reminiscing of college days. Recognition was also given to the alumni from Vance county who are serving their country in the armed forces and to those who have given their life in its cause.

A short business session was held with Dr. Johnson acting as chairman. Officers elected were: Mrs. H. A. Newell, president; Miss Rose Sneed, secretary-treasurer. Vice-presidents are to be elected at the next meeting. The meeting was closed with the singing of the college song, "Alma Mater."

CHICAGO — Bishop J. Ralph Magee, chairman and director of the Methodist Crusade for Christ, receives news that the goal of $25,000,000 for post-war relief and reconstruction has been surpassed by more than a million dollars.

Dr. J. Manning Potts, who came from Roanoke, Va., to become Bishop Magee's associate, presents him a summary of reports from the denomination's 600 district superintendents. The total is $26,040,749. Of this amount $1 million is in cash, represented by pass books in the Bishop's hand. The rest is in pledges payable within the next nine months. This is believed to be the largest sum ever raised by a church for a comparable purpose.

Emphasis will now swing to other aspects of the four-year, five-fold Crusade for Christ: church school attendance, stewardship, evangelism and support of international collaboration.

get things done in international calms is by an appeal to force or coercion. There must be a minimum of coercion. The danger lies in making it our creed as we have in the past. Christ had no time and less venality for any method that forced people to do things. We need to pray that those gathered in San Francisco will have the courage to depend upon it as much as we have seen depending upon the instruments of coercion.

"Let us pray that they will be given the vision to see that while political manipulations are important private morals are far more important. If we think our dream of world peace and unity crashed after the last war because of political manipulations we are mistaken. That and a hand in it, but basically the trouble was ethical; it was moral. A nation may align itself with the most powerful States in existence. It may formulate its peace pacts and its trade treaties, but if the morals of its people become rotten then, in the end, it will pay the price of that rottenness. The cost for us, this time, has been awfully high. We have pushed across the counter the lives of the very best boys of our community, and our world. We cannot possibly lay the cause of this war at the door of power politics and leave it there. If come, primarily, because of the sin of mankind. Let us pray that those gathered in this conference will keep constantly before them the words of God. Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people."

"Finally let us pray that in making their plans for us and the rest of the world they will put God in—Many plans have been proposed so far. All of them are intelligent. Many of them are challenging, but every single one of them bear upon them the terrible mark of humanity. They seem to take for granted that mere man by his own intelligence and sagacity will eventually be able to work the whole matter out; and it just does not turn out like that. Man can go just so far and no further. On the screen of the stage upon which the drama of the last twenty-five years has been acted out we ought to write in letters of fire: We let God out. Let us pray that when the record of this present conference is written high at the top of the first page will be this: We put God in," the minister concluded.

Preparing in Advance for The New Hay Fever Season

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

THE hay fever season may seem a long way off, but now is the time for treatment to prevent the condition. Hay fever is a disorder which, in most persons, is due to over-sensitivity to the pollen or fertilizing powder from ragweed. The ragweed pollen becomes widely spread in most parts of the United States during the latter part of August and throughout September, but preventive treatments should be started several months in advance of the season.

A patient with hay fever suffers from attacks of sneezing, running of the nose and watering of the eyes.

In attempting to prevent hay fever, the first step is to determine exactly to what pollen the patient is sensitive. This is done by making skin tests which are carried out by injecting the pollen into the skin, or by rubbing it into scratches made on the skin, and noting whether or not a red swelling occurs around the point where the pollen enters the skin. Once the pollen causing the trouble is discovered, the treatment is begun by injecting pollen extract in gradually increasing doses.

Doctor Mary H. Lovelace of New York City believes that before the hay fever season starts, injections of pollen may be given rapidly. She started the treatment by giving four small doses of the pollen at half-hour intervals, then increasing the doses until a point was reached where injections were given only twice in a week.

Many of the patients obtained excellent results, and the results were satisfactory in practically all cases. More than half of the patients had reactions during this rapid treatment although the reactions as a rule were mild. In a few instances, an injection of the drug epinephrine under the skin, was needed to control the symptoms produced by the reactions. Epinephrine overcame the symptoms produced by allergic reactions.

Reactions may be avoided by lengthening the course of treatment and by not increasing the amount of pollen injected too rapidly.

After the treatment was completed, tests were made to determine how much protection the patients had attained. These were done by placing some of the pollen against the conjunctiva or lining membrane of the eyeball and noting whether or not a reaction occurred in the form of watering of the eye and redness. Skin tests were also made. The patients who were found to react to less than 250 units of the pollen in the conjunctiva and to less than 1/10th of a unit in the skin may not be expected to experience complete relief from hay fever.

It would appear that this method of treatment to prevent hay fever is effective when carefully carried out, but testing before and after treatment is essential.

SUPPER IDEAS to get EXTRA RED POINTS!

SAUSAGES, APPLE RINGS and mashed potatoes for rainy April nights. Keep draining off the fat as you cook the sausages. Fills up your fat salvage can. Every drop is needed by our country for the battlefield and home-front essentials.

CORNERED BEEF HASH can be made with a little meat and lots of potatoes, and still be superb. When you're preparing the cornered beef, remember to save those little trimmings of fat. Melt them down; strain them into the salvage can.

CREAMED CANNED FISH, when it's popped into a casserole and under the broiler to brown, looks like company's coming. But be sure you pour off the oil it's packed in. Remember, it's the small amounts, that soon add up to a pound and those very welcome 2 extra red points and 4 cents! This message has been approved by WFA and OPA and paid for by Industry.
