Babson Park, Mass., July 5.—Certain weeks on investment counsel are very bearish. They believe that stocks are too high and that it is time to invest money in bonds. I am not going to argue with them. I am merely going to state my own opinion. I believe that stocks are cheap and that they will go higher. I believe that we are in a rising trend in stocks which will last for a number of years. I believe that the rise will be interrupted by sharp declines. I believe that the rise will be accompanied by a rising cost of living. I believe that the rise will be accompanied by a rising cost of living. I believe that the rise will be accompanied by a rising cost of living.

Inflation or Deflation?

State Revenue Hits Peak, But Ratio Is Falling Off; Surplus Near 77 Million

there was more money taken in but the ratio of increase had dropped to four million and last year it was less than one million.

The total receipts for last year were divided $82,517,812.54 to the general fund and $34,353,832.97 to highways. The previous year general fund accounts got 77 millions and the highway fund 23 millions.

For the month of June, general fund receipts were $4,433,635.62 and highway [illegible] $2,807,236.49, an increase over the [illegible] year of $630,131.64.

It will require several weeks to determine exact amount of the general fund surplus, although it is expected to be around 77 millions.

State [illegible] and institutions closed their books as of June 30, but reports from each spending agency must be consolidated and analyzed by the budget bureau and then submitted to the governor and [illegible] before [illegible] can be reached.

As has been the case many times before, the annual report situation is complicated to some degree by interpretations. Continuing increase in yield justifies the optimism of those who would expand State services. The demand every State purpose. The demand is pointed to by the [illegible] that [illegible] the new deal [illegible] acting against the [illegible] that [illegible] let-up in growing State revenue.

Unless some entirely unpredictable backset comes, it will be a good many years before North Carolina drops below the status of a hundred million dollar state.

"Increasing enjoy" in Germany is easily imagined by anyone who ever got halfway interested in the joy of repairing an alarm clock.—Boston Globe.
