Ignorant Americans

Writing from Washington after returning from the nine weeks siege of San Francisco during the United Nations conference, Rosemary Drummond says in The Christian Science Monitor, whose news correspondent he is, that he has "reached the conclusion that the majority of the world's new peace organization are the most read and news story of the modern times."

Reference, presumably, was to American readers and it applies to Washington with a force which extends to those of us who in the so-called sticks...

is not because the facts have been withheld, for they have not. It is because of indifference and lack of a desire and determination to be informed. Only an enlightened public opinion can act in wisdom and with safety. With respect to the new charter, Americans are acting as they do about so many other things that vitally affect their well-being...

Pain Over Heart Explained

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.
 PERSONS who suffer pain over the heart are concerned immediately about heart disease, and it is true that there are certain heart conditions in which pain over the heart is a common symptom. These include coronary thrombosis or the formation of a blood clot in one of the coronary arteries which supply the heart muscle with blood, and angina pectoris, a condition which is due to lessening of the flow of blood through the coronary arteries, or spasms of these blood vessels, or other conditions.
 But every heart pain does not always mean heart trouble. One of the common conditions which may cause attacks of pain over the heart which are like those of angina pectoris or coronary thrombosis is gallbladder disease. Doctor Julius Jensen of Washington University School of Medicine reports a patient who had attacks which were quite like those of angina pectoris. However, careful examination of the heart revealed that it was normal in every respect. Careful study showed that the patient had gallstones and, after they were removed by operation, the attacks of pain over the heart disappeared.
 Direct Irritation
 Direct irritation of the nerves of the skin in the chest over the heart area may also produce symptoms like those in angina pectoris. The most common cause for this irritation is probably arthritis of the spine. The pain in these cases may be quite severe and made worse by exercise, just as happens in angina pectoris.

 Another less common cause for such nerve pain is shingles or herpes zoster. Still another group of patients who may develop pain over the heart are those who have some inflammation of the membrane in the chest, such as the pleura which lines the chest cavity or the mediastinum, which is the membrane surrounding the lungs in the middle of the chest, in which the heart and other structures are located. Even in so-called attacks of acute indigestion, there may be pain over the heart.
 Careful Study
 Thus it can be seen that when so-called "heart pain" occurs there is need for a careful study to determine the source of the difficulty. An electrocardiogram or electrical tracing of the heart beat, should be made, which will help to give some evidence as to whether or not the heart has been damaged. An X-ray of the heart is also helpful to determine if it is enlarged.
 If these studies show that, apparently, the heart is normal, a complete examination must be carried out to determine if any one of the other conditions mentioned may be responsible for the symptoms. Once the cause for the trouble has been found, proper treatment may be decided upon.

THAILAND INVASION SEEN NEAR

REPORT THAT BRITISH FORCES SEEM SET for early assault on Thailand from new Burma bases (1) was followed by news that waters in the Nicobar area (2) were being swept clean of mines, presumably in preparation for an invasion. The civilian population was ordered to leave. This gave rise to rumors that the long-expected drive on Singapore was not far off. On Borneo the Aussies have pushed several miles from Balikpapan into the rich Pandanari oil area (3). Attention was turned back to Thailand by the later report that Chinese forces have opened the whole China-Thailand border (4) to possible invasion. (International)
