Why Buggs Island

Our near neignbors over in Virinia are much astir over prospects or the Buggs Island power and flood control development by the Federal government. It is a project that will involve enormous sums of public money and which should be well understood before residents of the area go all-out for the venture.

There is strong suspicion that nany of those favorable to the unlerstaking have land for sale for which they would like to receive a fabulous price; but they might be disillusioned when government agents come around with their offers, with the dictum to take it and like it. The promoters are not so much concerned about the need for the program or the plight in which counties will be left when thousands of acres of tillable soil go off the tax books with a possible deficit. All these are considerations in the equation, however, and should be
