

Tucker Held Mayor Tries On Charges Disorderly. For Arson Drunk Cases

Arrested Following Damage By Fire At Arch Street House

C. B. Tucker, white man and mechanic was held in county jail today without bond on charges of arson growing out of the burning of a unit two o'clock Sunday morning at the residence of Walter Gault on Arch street extension.

The warrant was sworn to by Police Chief J. E. Parks on the basis of information Tucker was taken into custody and placed in jail, and Mayor Henry Powell Jr. issued the warrant, secured from the prisoner he held without bond.

Little information was available with respect to the fire, although there were many rumors.

Mayor Powell said this afternoon that Tucker would be given a hearing sometime Wednesday, the hour not being determined as yet. Originally the case had been expected to come on in police court today, but by order of the court, Tucker was ordered to appear in court on engagements in Federal court in Raleigh.

Gault and his family had lived in this residence about a year. Loss is estimated to have been in the thousands of dollars and he is understood to have had only a few hundred dollars insurance.

Sinus Infections

By HERMAN N. RUNDEN, M.D.

THE discovery of penicillin and the sulfonamide drugs has altered the treatment of many diseases, including infections of the nasal sinuses. Sinuses are air spaces in the bones of the face which are connected with the nose by narrow passages.

According to Doctor Edward J. Whalen of Hartford, Connecticut, infection of the nasal sinuses may be a serious condition, especially in young people. Such an infection is likely to return year after year, or more often, and may be responsible for repeated or prolonged periods of disability.

Unfortunately, many persons with acute infections in the sinuses stop treatment as soon as their symptoms are relieved—often before the signs of infection have completely cleared up. Such patients, in the opinion of Doctor Whalen, are almost certain to have recurrences of the infection.

Hence, when an acute infection of the nasal sinuses occurs, prompt, thorough treatment should be carried out until a complete cure is obtained, if possible.

The treatment used for infection of the nasal sinuses includes the sulfonamide drugs in adequate doses, together with surgical measures when they are required. Operative treatment is unnecessary in most instances. On the other hand, not all infections of the nasal sinuses require treatment with the sulfonamide drugs.

Several Reactions
It should be borne in mind that sulfonamide drugs may cause severe reactions in certain instances.

HYBRID CORN SEED INCREASES OUTPUT

College Station, Raleigh, Oct. 29.—North Carolina farmers are showing that corn yields in North Carolina may be greatly increased through the use of hybrid seed to replace regularly grown varieties and through the use of extra fertilizers, particularly nitrogen.

County Agent H. K. Sanders of the State College Extension Service in Person gives two good examples, showing how that corn yield during a favorable year may be brought up to three or four times the average state yield.

V. O. Blalock produced 48 bushels of corn per acre with 400 pounds of 4-12-4 per acre and 200 pounds of calcium nitrate and his regular variety of corn. With 500 pounds of 4-10-10 and 250 pounds of calcium nitrate per acre, planting a yellow hybrid, his yield was 112 bushels per acre.
