Rose Store Three Men Die In Crash Rise Is Told Of Car-Truck At Manson To Kiwanis

The story of the romantic and rather spectacular rise of the Rose store in Henderson for thirty years, was told to the Henderson Kiwanis club Friday evening by T. B. Rose, vice-president and secretary of the corporation. The program for the evening was in charge of H. B. Newman, who introduced J. A. Hornaday, president of the club.

Mr. Rose said the first store was opened in Henderson in 1915 at the Garnett street location of the A & P super store at the present time. P. H. Rose, brother of the speaker, was the founder, who began business on $500 capital borrowed from relatives to purchase a bankrupt stock of a former store. In 31 years the company has expanded until today it operates 122 stores in North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia. It has 14,620 shares of common stock outstanding and in 1945 had sales in excess of $13,000,000.

Bodies of three men killed instantly Friday afternoon when the car in which they were riding was in collision with an Associated Lines transport truck at Manson, ten miles north of Henderson, will be shipped to their homes in the New York metropolitan area.

The dead were identified as Abraham Waldman, of 2714 Wallace avenue, Bronx, New York City; Nat. Steinberg, 15 Washington avenue, Elizabeth, N. J.; Max Mindlin, 34 Huntington Terrace, Newark, N. J.

The tragedy occurred just over a mile in the northern outskirts of Manson. Dudley Alexander, driver of the Associated truck, was unharmed in the collision, and his truck-trailer was only slightly damaged.

Alexander was quoted as saying he saw the car approaching and that it was moving from one side of the road to the other, and that it was off the pavement on the shoulders just before it crashed back into the truck, which he pulled clear of the pavement on his side of the highway in an effort to avoid the crash.

Bodies of all three men were thrown clear of the wreckage and their bodies were badly mangled. Ambulances from Henderson went to the scene immediately and brought the bodies here to prepare them for shipment and burial.

Waldman, who was 60 years old, was a farmer with the Schatzberg-Welch Fur Corporation in New York City. He was a native of Austria, and is survived by a son, Enoch Waldman, 3480 Seymour avenue, Bronx. His body will be buried in Mount Hebron cemetery, Flushing, Long Island.

Mindlin, 62, was a native of Vilna, Russia, and was a painting contractor. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Feinstein, of 128 Osborne Terrace, Newark, N. J. The body will be interred in Clifton cemetery of Workers Circle, Clifton, N. J.

The three men were en route to Miami, Florida, and the truck was traveling northward to Baltimore.

A Monument To A Good Turn by an Unknown Scout

In 1909 a Chicago publisher, William D. Boyce was trying to find a difficult address in foggy London.

A boy approached him and offered his services and when Mr. Boyce offered the boy a tip, he answered "No, Sir, I am a Scout. Scouts do not accept tips for courtesies."

Mr. Boyce had never heard of the Boy Scouts and proceeded to gather all available information on the British organization.

On February 8, 1910, Mr. Boyce and others interested in boys formerly incorporated the Boy Scouts of America.

Today there stands a "Bronze Buffalo"—a large state in Gilwell Park, England, with the following inscription:

"To the unknown Scout whose faithfulness in the performance of the 'Daily Good Turn' brought the Scout movement to the United States of America"

—condensed from "Handbook for Boys."

Scouting started in Henderson some 20 years ago with one troop. Today there are nine troops not to mention Cub Packs and Senior Scouting organizations.

Scouts from Henderson have gone into the Services, into industry, into professions, into business, and each one with "something extra" that came from the
