QUIET, QUIET THE NIGHT.

Underfoot earth rings with a treble note, protesting shrill; Nothing sounds else, save now and again, from fox's throat, A husky yelp, or, beyond birch and willow, Lake-ice, with sigh prolonged and hollow, Like a far thunder, Snaps asunder.

protest preost, Beneath my tread; Above, in black skies, Superb Orion walks, Mars and Aldebaran stare read.

Motionless for a space, I listen: Quiet, quiet, the night; Snow-wrapped the hill, And wood and field— Winter-still.

Legion Auxiliary Hears Mr. Dennis At Regular Meet

Henry A. Dennis was guest speaker at the meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. W. Anderson on Andrews Avenue. Mr. Dennis told the group of the proposed community building and stated the advantages to the community of such a meeting. He urged the cooperation of the auxiliary in the erecting of the building. Mr. Dennis was introduced by Mrs. Clyde L. Finch.

Following the talk Mrs. Finch spoke on community service, stressing the fact that the war had brought many problems and among them a large increase in juvenile delinquency. She urged the auxiliary and the individual members to cooperate with schools, churches, and civic organizations in combating the problem here and in understanding the needs. She also stated that the aim was to train youth to be good citizens because they will be the leaders of our future nation. Mrs. H. A. Newell, president, presided at the meeting which was opened with the preamble and the salute to the flag. Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer. The membership chairman reported that there are now 127 members in the auxiliary.

The child welfare committee announced that $10 had been sent to San Die, France, for the purpose of rebuilding this city which was destroyed during the war. S. O. Die was created by Americans in the first World War. A letter was read from the Red Cross field worker at Fort Bragg thanking the auxiliary for the radio sent at Christmas. Mrs. Newell urged the members to attend the officers and units conference which will be held in Raleigh on March 3 and 4. Mrs. Walter G. Craven, of Charlotte, national president of the Auxiliary, will be speaker at the luncheon, she stated. The home was tastefully decorated with attractive arrangements of spring flowers with jonquils dominating the arrangements. At the conclusion of the meeting the hostesses served iced drinks, sandwiches, and cookies. Hostesses were Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Clyde L. Finch, Mrs. D. T. Beckham, Mrs. Annie Mae McIntosh, and Mrs. M. W. Adams.

War Inventions, Fitted To Peace, Will Come Soon

Many war inventions that have been withheld from the public for security reasons and which will fill useful demands during peace will be released to the public as soon as manufacturers are able to produce them. Among them is a high explosive called pentolite, consisting of PETN, mixed with TNT—sensible to shock but more violent than TNT. A deadly anti-killing chemical called ANTU also has been developed as well as methods for removing tetraethyl lead from gasoline, leaving it usable as a cleaning fluid and for stove fuel. Some other recent inventions that will soon be available are: A Super-Coal. Anti-knock motor fuels, produced through the addition of compounds of heavy metals other than lead; an apparatus that super-powders coal to get maximum heating value from anthracite and other coals of high ash content; a plastic sheathing between copper wire and rubber insulation that protects the rubber from chemical damage by the copper.

BOOK REVIEWS

STAR OF THE UNBORN by Franz Werfel. Translated by Gustave O. Arlt. 645 pages. New York, The Viking Press, 1946. $2.00.

Can you imagine traveling four hundred miles without moving an inch? Fantastic? Yes, but in the Astronomical World in which Franz Werfel traveled in the year 1919,45, by use of his travel instrument, this was a common occurrence as were numerous other fantastic events such as he related in "Star of the Unborn". This is called a travel book by Mr. Werfel, who designates himself as the chief traveler, F. W. He is called from the world of 1945 by his good friend B. H. to be a guest at a wedding in this underground Astronomical world, although the wedding never takes place due to a calamity, undercurrents of which are present when F. W. enters the Astronomical world. Although the visit covers only three days, Werfel minutely sets down almost every minute of his visit and the unusual things that he sees—a dog of undetermined breed that speaks—all the people are beautiful albeit they have no hair on their bodies and cover themselves with flimsy veiling—almost complete disappearance of disease—no need for work for every desire is fulfilled. Male citizens in this world reached maturity at the age of 33 and remained in this world until about 250 years old or until wearied of existence. They then voluntarily departed to the Wintergarden region. No one could determine the age of the citizens and only the headdress, silver and gold, signified the age of parents, grandparents and great-grandparents. For those interested in the possibilities of scientific achievement, the chapters relating F. W.'s journey to the planets, which are called by names of the early Christian apostles and followers, are exciting and breath-taking. Even though we can't seem to visualize a world like the Astronomical, there is definite food for thought that some of these things could happen for even now new worlds are being revealed with the splitting of the atom, contact with the moon, transparent clothing, etc. It may not be so fantastic as we assume. This significant book should be placed in the Time capsule to be recovered with actual events, in years to come—from mere curiosity and for comparison to see if any part of it did happen. Parts of the magnificent book will be repeated for many years by many people, who will alternately like and dislike the ideas set forth. A combination of the scientific and pure imagination, "Star of the Unborn" is a little on the Buck Rogers side and it is vitally interesting. The title of this fantasy is quite descriptive—E. W. is the lecturer character; the star, in an era not yet existent, Franz Werfel wrote his last book just prior to his death and represents the attainment of something always wanted to his Audience at "Star of Bernadette". The Forty Days of Musa Dagh and other well-known works, Franz Werfel erected this masterpiece in his familiar forceful style. Outlandish though it may seem, the sensational writing should be included on the shelves of every library, large or small.—Juanita Stambuck.

THE HIGH ROAD by Frances Cranford. 214 pages. Doubleday & Company, New York. $2.50.

To the people of the Ozarks, religion was a serious and dominant part of their lives. "The High Road" relates the conversion of Rove Carruthers and his subsequent call to the preaching profession. Rove's chief purpose following his call was to turn his enemy, Abner Holtz, from the sinful way and bring him into the fold. On this aim hangs the suspense and plot of the story for in every way Abner had triumphed over Rove—he got the best of a trade, built his house, married and started a family before Rove. Sometimes the reader feels a little impatient with Rove as he neglects his family and farming work because he is so absorbed in the task of saving Abner. It is a highly moving story, fitted to the era in which it is set, and recounts a passion among plain folks who set store on the marvelous works of God.—Juanita Stambuck.

Notes On Books. Readers who liked C. S. Lewis will welcome the release this week by Macmillan Company of his new book, "The Great Divorce" in which he returns to the brilliant symbolism used in "Screwtape". The divorce mentioned in the title of the book is that between good and evil, heaven and hell. THE PURSUIT OF LOVE by Nancy Mitford is a comedy of English country life and manners and will be published by Random House in March. Random House also announces that THE SNAKE PIT by Mary Jane Ward, subjectively revealing the torments of psychopathic suffering, is scheduled for an April publication date. A new volume in the Viking Portable Library is scheduled for March publication—a Fortunate Ocean World edited by Richard Aldington. Included are "The Picture of Dorian Gray" and "Salome".

THE SHOCKING PINK HAT. By Frances Crane. Random House, New York, 1946, 264 pages, $2.00. Mrs. Crane has dug around again and come up with another sensational title to bring with her other works—The Pink Umbrella, The Golden Box, The Indigo Necklace and others—and in these other color combinations are as good as the Shocking Pink Hat, you can cuddle up with one of her volumes any night and be assured of several hours of entertainment. The steep hills of San Francisco with its croaking culebras is the locale of the newest adventure of Pat Abbott and her lovely assistant, who assists him track down the murderer of two of their friends, uncovering a vicious dope ring in the process. Pat, who has just returned from a tour of duty with naval intelligence, finds himself involved in the chain of events when a car coming rolling down steep Russian Hill in a fashionable residential district while the Abbotts are on their way home from a foggy night out. From then on, he and Jean, through whose narration the story unfolds, are in hot water with first the police and then their friends. As blurb for the book, published by "the rising star of Random House" says, "Frances Crane is rapidly becoming one of the best-selling mystery writers in the country and The Shocking Pink Hat will add enormously to her already considerable reputation." With that we agree wholeheartedly.—Al Erlleben.

HURRY UP AND WAIT by Margaret Ewell Wilder, 264 pages. New York, Whittlesey House, McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. $2.50. The Hilton family, made temporarily fatherless when Tim Hilton is away at war, continues their ongoing struggle through rationing, economic difficulties and other trying situations in this horror novel, "Hurry Up and Wait", which is a pleasing sequel to "Since You Went Away". Familiar characters, Jane and Brid, the girls, the irascible family boarder, Fidelity, the cook, and ray Uncle Tony, are again presented in Miss Wilder's inimitable manner. The story takes up where it left off in "Since You Went Away", with Anne Hilton securing a job at the army post near the small town even though she had just sent her book to New York. The plot of the story is based upon the migration of the family to Hollywood, how they accept Hollywood and how Hollywood accepts them. The move to Hollywood follows the success of Anne Hilton's novel and the subsequent filming. It is a sweet and winsome story with special appeal to those who are familiar with the heartaches caused by the absence of the head of the family and who are determined to carry on.—Juanita Stambuck.
