JUDGE JACKSON, OF TEN-NESSEE.

Democrat and a Good Man---Presi dentHarrison Rises Above Party Partisanship This Time---Republicans Don't Like It, But all Concede That It Is an Excellent Appointment So Far as Fitness and Character Are Concerned.

WASHINGTON, February 2. - The pres-

Lamar, deceased Howell Edmunds Jackson is an exsenator and at present judge of the United States court for the district embracing Tennessee. He is a native and life long resident of Tennessee He is remembered at the capitol as a man of quiet, unassuming manners, generally well liked and distinguished for fairness and judicial consideration of the questions arising here. Inquiry about the capitol shows that the appointment is considered from a judicial and not a political view as a splendid one. About the supreme court it is said that President Harrison has shown once more a great deal of judgment in his selection of a man for a place on the bench of the highest tribunal in the land. It is stated that Mr. Jackson has made a good circuit judge and that no doubt is entertained as to his making a good justice. The appointment was a great surprise to the Tennessee delegation in the house. SUCCESSFUL FARMING.

[A Farmer, in Charlotte Times.]

The successful farmer produces everything consumed on the farm. This can be proved by the past record of our State and county. Forty years ago our farmers raised all the bacon used in our State and meat for the market; also, all the flour, corn, oats and everything consumed at home and to sell. So when they sold their cotton it was a surplus and the money loaned to the merchants. But our country has gone through a revolution. Our farmers have tried to keep the question—the typical Southerner. their meat houses and flouring mills in the Northwest, and their fertilizer is all brought from the phosphate beds of Lamar. HORRIBLE FATE OF A HU-MAN BRUTE.

A Maddened Populace Thrust Red Hot Irons Into His Body, Then Pour Kerosene Oil Over Him and Apply the Torch---A Shocking Crime Shockingly Avenged.

Paris, Texas, February 1 .- A mob of angry men and women, numbering thousands, wreaked a most trightful vengeance of lynch law to day upon Henry Smith, a burly negro, who with the fiendishness of a depraved brute outraged and cruelly murdered little four-year-old Myrtle Vance on Thursday. Too powerful to resist, the took the prisoner from the guards, or inging him by a rope about his neck, to the scene of his crime, subjected him to every conceivable torture and then burned the pitiable wretch at the stake. All the morning trains had brought people by the hundreds to this city, white and black alike, to await the arrival of the guards who were bringing the prisoner back from Texarkana, where he had been captured. The country for miles around had become wildly excited over the atrocious crime feel, but "what must I do to be and the hunt for the brute murderer. Then covering the body with leaves and brush he laid down and slept calmly by his victim throughout the night. He went home, got breakfast and disappeared.

That day a mass meeting was called at the court house and searching parties were sent out to find the child. Her mangled body was found and the whole town joined in the pursuit of the fiend who had murdered her. He was caught yesterday at Clow, on the Arkansas & Louisiana railroad, twenty miles north of Hose. He denied the crime, but blood stains were on his clothing and later he confessed. A rope was thrown about Smith's neck and he was dragged from the car. He was then taken to rude float and borne through the streets that the people might gaze on the monster. At the open prairie, three hundred yards from the Texas Pacific depot, the scaffold awaited him. It was six feet square and ten feet high, well within view of all. There for fifty minutes the maddened mob tortured him with a diabolical cunning that savages only are supposed to show. Red hot irons were thrust from every side into his body. His shrieks added vigor to his persecutors. First the hot irons branded his feet and inch by inch they poured on him and cotton seed hulls placed beneath him. A torch set the pyre on fire and all was quickly consumed. Smith, some say, committed the crime to revenge himself on Vance who had arrested him once when drunk and clubbed him. Vance is prostrated God's vessel is lying alongside, with grief, and his wife is dangerously ill from the shock.
