An exchange announces that a New York man has invented an electric baby-alarm. Our observation and experience teach us that the average baby needs no artificial alarm, electric or of other kind. He craves the purpose himself, all too well.

Mrs. A. R. Wortham desires to state for the benefit of her friends that she will not discontinue her business as at one time contemplated. She can be found at the same place (in rear of Weyland's jewelry store) as heretofore, ready to serve them as usual.

Mr. W. H. Emerson announces that her school for little boys and girls will open Monday, September 9th. Mrs. Emerson is a teacher of refinement and education and is well qualified by nature and acquirements to train the young in manners, morals and book learning.

Mr. W. T. Wier brought us yesterday a couple of peaches weighing 1 pound and 4 ounces. They were taken from a tree four years old from which he has gathered 24 bushels this season. Mr. Wier does not know the name of the peach but it is certainly as pretty fruit as one wishes to see.

Mr. L. D. Stainback left Monday for New York to buy fall and winter stock for the Stainback Company. He will stop in Philadelphia and Baltimore on the way back and pick up some of the latest things and best bargains in his line if he fails to clean out the New York concerns.

There is one thing money cannot buy. It cannot buy better goods at lower prices than Watkins offers. If there is any doubt on this point, a visit to his mammoth establishment, an inspection of his stock, and a comparison of his prices will convince the most incredulous.

An exchange very truthfully says: "There are two commodities that cost less and pay a bigger profit than probably anything else in the world; they are kindness and politeness. If men would deal more in them and use them oftener there is no estimating the amount of real happiness that it would cause in this cold and sinful world."

You want more trade whether you are merchant or warehouseman. An advertisement in the GOLD LEAF will help you to secure it. Try the experiment and see how it works. But no man should do anything as an experiment. He should make a practice of it, because practice makes perfect, and perfection in business means success.

It is the duty of all parents to educate their children. If you can not afford to send them to some one of the excellent private schools, send them to the public school. Nearly all of these are open and the thoughtful parent should not fail to put their boys and girls in them. The time has come when the man or woman without an education cannot make a success in life.

Although the new tobacco year does not open till October 1st, the market is as active as at mid-season almost. Breaks are fairly heavy and growing larger every day. Buyers are energetic and the bidding spirited. The prospects are that the season will greatly swell its volume of trade this season. Certain it is that our warehousemen and dealers have gone to work with that determination in view.

Mr. Geo. A. Rose, buyer for Davis & Hoss, left Monday for New York to purchase new goods. He says he expects to buy largely and goes prepared to take advantage of all bargains in sight. Mr. Rose is a close and careful buyer as well as judge of goods and will put his knowledge and experience to good service in his selections. Due announcement of the arrival of his new purchases will be made in these columns.

The total eclipse of the moon Tuesday night was an interesting one to those who kept awake until the strongest of nature's phenomena took place. It was 11 o'clock before the moon began to hide her face and six minutes after midnight before it was totally obscured. She then traveled in the darkness of the earth's shadow for one hour and forty-one minutes, and then emerged as usual on the horizon.

Printers' Ink. There is nothing exactly like it—nothing so satisfactory to take its place—whether you refer to the thick gummy fluid so essential in every printing office as its use is to success in every well regulated business establishment or to the publication bearing the talismanic words "Printers' Ink," published by Geo. Rowell & Co., 10 Spruce st., New York City. But it is to the merits of the latter that we wish to call attention here, or rather to direct your notice to an advertisement printed elsewhere which is designed more especially to do that. And the picture is not overdrawn—its merits are all too highly. The publication is extolled to that degree of it—and more.

Every business man ought to read "Printers' Ink," whether he be an advertiser or not. If he is not then he needs it to tell him what he loses by not being one. If he is, he needs it to expedite his getting up his advertisements. It is the medium in which the building of business ideas, business knowledge, business experience, business practice. It is as a lamp to the feet of the advertiser—his ready help in every time of need—his sure guide to success when rightly followed. Don't you think you ought to be a regular reader of such a journal? Send $2.00 to the publishers as above named, and instruct them to send you the "Little Schoolmaster in the Art of Advertising."

Why do you insist on paying 15 cents for a lot of 100 when you can get the same amount for 5 cents at S. S. WHITTEN'S. Next to Dorsey's Drug Store.

Bottom out—50 inch Broad cloth for 75 cts a yard, at H. THOMASON'S.

Land for Sale. 150 acres, part of the M. H. Hester tract; 3 miles from Oxford, West of Oxford, to R. O. Gregory, Oxford, or H. Perry, Henderson, Sept. 21.

Good Words for Henderson. Col. Burgwyn in a private letter to us written from New Orleans, says this of our town and section, anent Henderson: "I have not met a location where the opportunities are more numerous for success in life than in Vance county, and you know there are many of the best, more generally than elsewhere. For I have not met a location where the opportunities are more numerous for success in life than in Vance county, and you know there are many of the best, more generally than elsewhere."

Colonel and Mrs. Henry Perry and Miss Stella Perry, who are at Waynesville White Sulphur Springs, express themselves as charmed with the place and surroundings. There is no more delightful mountain resort than Waynesville. The scenery is grand, the climate invigorating, the situation glorious and the water health-giving.

Miss Elizabeth Colton, lady principal of Henderson Seminary, has arrived and entered upon her duties. The school having opened Monday. We welcome the lady to our midst. A woman of culture and varied accomplishments and to the educational and religious interests of Henderson, and we hope she will meet with the encouragement and patronage she deserves.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Rowland, late of Henderson, but now of Waco, Texas, are at this time visiting Henderson, and are at the Henderson Hotel. Mr. Rowland has been to buy goods. He expresses himself as well pleased with his new home and to appearances is prospering in business. Mr. Rowland tells us that the other Hendersons (Ed. Mitchell, Ed. Fleming, Walter Kivett, Ed. Mitchell, the Rowlands, Ellingtons and others are all doing well. Matt Cooper, brother of the Messrs. Cooper of Henderson, is one of the largest wholesale grocers in the State and does an immense business.

Nice lot of very pretty Dress Goods just received by H. THOMASON. The price is no less attractive than the goods, either.

Wagon $25.00 each at Crow & Marston's, Henderson, N. C.

The Cosmopolitan for September. Fiction and travel are the strong points of the September Cosmopolitan, which, by the way, illustrates better than any previous number the perfection of its excellence. Conan Doyle, H. H. Boyesen, and Clark Russell are among the story-tellers. A well known New York lawyer relates a case in "Famous Crimes"—the murder of Doctor Parkman by Professor Webster. A delightful sketch of "An English Country House" is from the pen of Nina Loring. The house at which she visited before, or less than the historic Abbotsford, still occupied by the direct descendants of Sir Walter Scott's "Waverley."

Hard to Swallow. Zeb Morris is a resident of this county and lives at Forest Hill. His capacity for carrying water exceeds even a wheelbarrow. Jim Walter, a merchant at Forest Hill tells the following: Wednesday night Zeb Morris and others were in my store. Some one asked the price of three melons, and finding they were so cheap (5 cents each), proposed to pay for them if Morris would eat them. The proposition was accepted and Morris ate the melons. Morris then said he would eat three more if some one would pay for them. He was taken up and the melons put down. After finishing his sixth one he purchased a large one himself and ate it. The smallest of these melons weighed twelve pounds.

A wagon of $5.00 has been put up that Morris will eat 125 pounds of melon tonight. Morris is a married man, about 20 years of age, and will probably weigh 130 pounds.—Concord Standard.

School Notice. The fall session of my school will begin on the first Monday in Sept., 1895. Thankful for past patronage I will be glad to receive the most satisfactory testimonials of the same. Terms very moderate. Very Respectfully, aug 21-4t MRS. W. F. ROWLAND.

Why do you insist on paying 15 cents for a lot of 100 when you can get the same amount for 5 cents at S. S. WHITTEN'S. Next to Dorsey's Drug Store.

Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Powell are visiting relatives in Warren county, near Macon.

Dr. Morton is attending the meeting of Albemarle Presbytery at Greenville this week.

Mrs. W. H. Emerson has returned from Morehead City, where she has been staying the past few weeks.

Miss Lizzie Cheatham has returned from Durham where she has been visiting the family of her brother Dr. Arch Cheatham.

Mr. J. G. Gilmer returned Friday night from Morganton, her old home, where she has been staying with relatives the past two months.

Miss Fannie Parker left Monday for Boston, where she will take a special course at the Conservatory of Music. Her father Mr. W. S. Parker accompanied her and after seeing her comfortably situated will go to New York on business.

Rev. A. Whit Cheatham, one of Henderson's well known and talented sons, is at this time preaching in the West for some time, and has a parish appointment in St. Louis. He preached at the Episcopal church Sunday morning.

Colonel and Mrs. Henry Perry and Miss Stella Perry, who are at Waynesville White Sulphur Springs, express themselves as charmed with the place and surroundings. There is no more delightful mountain resort than Waynesville. The scenery is grand, the climate invigorating, the situation glorious and the water health-giving.

Our Buyer, Mr. George A. Rose, Is now in the Northern markets buying New Fall and Winter Goods. He will make extensive purchases, his selections embracing Dry Goods and Notions, Ladies' Dress Goods, Trimmings, Millinery, Hats, Shoes, &c. We will have some very attractive bargains to offer our customers when new stock arrives. Watch this space for future announcements.

In the mean time we are giving our patrons as good goods and as much of them for the money as any house in Henderson—or out of it for that matter Davis & Rose.

Valuable Hints to Public School Teachers. EDITOR GOLD LEAF.—Through the columns of your valuable paper, I wish to say a few words to the teachers of our public schools. On all sides I hear regrets that Mr. Croker is no longer our superintendent. I will say for the encouragement of our new Superintendent, that if, after seven years of efficient work among us, we were not sorry to give him up, we have very little sense of appreciation. His visits to the school room were always an inspiration. He loved the cause of education in the most ardent and disinterested sense, and tried to impress the highest ideal on both teacher and pupil. We regret to have his place taken by a stranger but it is our duty, as true teachers, to help our young Superintendent bring the schools to that point of perfection for which our former Superintendent was so famous. While I have hearty regrets, I have also heard much praise of our talented young Superintendent, and predict for him a successful term.

Permanent Patronage referred. If our shoes do not satisfy our customers they do us no credit. Our aim has been and still is to sell such goods as would give to our patrons the most satisfaction and service, knowing that our interests are mutual. We do not bid for transient trade, but seek rather to serve the same people season after season, and to do this we must sell them good goods, and we do it.

Samuel Watkins. AN HONEST CONFESION. "I'm about to be married," writes a girl to one of our exchanges, "and instead of receiving congratulations I am aware that I need a defense, and take this means of making it. I am 27 years old—old enough to know better and do better, but I have no choice. The man is a widower with one child. He liked his first wife better than he does me; I liked a man years ago better than I like him; and we are quiet on that. He wants a housekeeper, I want a home. I was brought up to sing a little and play a little, but have no trade. My parents will be glad to see me settled. I would be happier earning $5 or $6 a week and taking care of myself, but I was not taught how. There are thousands of women in my position. Every man who brings up his daughters without starting them with the means of earning a livelihood is responsible for just such a mistake as I shall make next month."

There is not a little grim humor in this prospective bride's confession, and without a suggestion. But the idea need not prevail that a girl should learn a trade or be so educated in certain lines as to be able to earn her own bread and butter. The true calling of woman is to be a wife and mother. She is the home-maker, and so, whatever else is lacking in the bread earning, she should know something about bread-baking, and then the chances are that all other things will follow. The world wants wives and house-keepers a thousand-fold more than girls with mere trades.

The above is taken from the Germantown (Pa.) Independent. There is another class of girls, equally as pitiable as the one described above. They are told of in the following lines, the author of which is unknown to us. Don't marry a man to reform him! To God and your own self be true, Don't link his vices your virtue; You'll rue it, dear girl, if you do.

No matter how fervent his pleadings, Be not by his promises led; If he can't be a man while a-wedding, He'll never be one when he's wed.

Don't trust your bright hopes for the future, The beautiful crown of your youth, To the keeping of him who holds lightly His fair name of honor and truth.

"To honor and love" you must promise; Don't pledge what you cannot fulfill, If he'll have no respect for himself, dear, Most surely you, then, never will.

"'Tis told of us the frown of a woman Is strong as the blow of a man, And the world will be better when women Frown on error as hard as they can.

Make virtue the price of your favor; Place wrong doing under a ban; And let him who will win and wed you Prove himself in full measure a man."

SHORT TALKS ON ADVERTISING. [Copyright by Charles Austin Bates.] A Washington piano house is just now under consideration by the local newspapers to advertise a voting contest. The most popular school teacher in Washington is to be presented with a free trip to Europe, having thirty dollars in pocket to cover all transportation charges, hotel bills, carriage drives, etc., from Washington to Europe and back again.

This may be a very good scheme, but I doubt it. It is hardly what I would call legitimate advertising. A trip to Europe and the most popular school teacher have nothing on earth to do with the desirability of the pianos. It will be talked about, more or less, and in so much as advertising, but I doubt very much if it will result in any very great good. I would very much rather take the money that this trip costs and use it in straight newspaper advertising.

Advertising properly considered, and in its strongest sense, is merely telling people what and where and why—particularly why—they should buy some particular thing. Advertising is not to be good unless it accomplishes this, and convinces a greater or less number of people that the advertiser and the thing advertised are just exactly what they have been looking for.

A trip to Europe doesn't prove anything. It has nothing whatever to do with the piano business, and any teacher from a butcher up, might use it with equal propriety. I do not believe in scheme advertising of any kind. In some cases it may pay, but they are few and far between. The kind of advertising that can always be depended on is newspaper advertising. It is always done with a purpose, and it is not the fault of the medium, but the fault of the advertiser, or the way he advertises.

The right sort of advertisements in the newspapers go right into the family circle, exactly where the dealer wishes his goods to go. For this reason, if you are better than any other possible method for bringing business. I have had quite a good deal of experience in managing different outside advertisements, and I can tell you I have been able to figure up the results rather accurately. I have never yet seen an undertaking of this sort bring back enough money to pay for itself, either directly or indirectly.

This free Europe trip will certainly cause more or less talk, but will it carry the right kind of talk? Will it carry fourth the conviction that straight-out, commonsense talks in the newspapers would do? These are questions which the piano people will not probably be so extensively intelligent after the contest is over.
