HEART DISEASE, like many other ailments when they have taken hold of the system, never gets better of its own accord, but Constantly grows worse. There are thousands who know they have a defective heart, but will not admit the fact. They don't want their friends to worry, and Don't know what to take for it, as they have been told time and again that heart disease was incurable. Such was the case of Mr. Silas Farley of Dyesville, Ohio who writes June 19, 1894, as follows:

"I had heart disease for 23 years, my heart hurting me almost continually. The first 15 years I doctored all the time, trying several physicians and remedies, until my last doctor told me it was only a question of time as I could not be cured. I gradually grew worse, very weak, and completely discouraged, until I lived, propped half up in bed, because I couldn't lie down nor sit up. Thinking my time had come I told my family what I wanted done when I was gone. But on the first day of March on the recommendation of Mrs. Fannie Jones, of Anderson, Ind., I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart and wonderful to tell, in ten days I was working at light work and on March 19 commenced framing a barn, which is heavy work, and I hav'nt lost a day since. I am 56 years old, 6 ft. 4½ inches and weigh 250lbs. I believe I am fully cured, and I am now only anxious that everyone shall know of your wonderful remedies."

Dyesville, Ohio. SILAS FARLEY.

BILTMORE PLACE.

VANDERBILT'S ENTERPRISE A REVELATION AND A PLEASURE.

Hon. J. Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, Writes About George Vanderbilt's Great Estate in Western North Carolina and the Work He is Doing for Science and Human Progress.

[Hon. J. Sterling Morton in Manufacturers' Record.

I hasten to acknowledge your request that I should furnish you a description of the Vanderbilt improvements at Biltmore, near Asheville, in the county of Buncombe and State of North Carolina.

It would be of great value to the country if all the home builders of the North, South, East and West could make a pilgrimage to Biltmore and traverse its many avenues of beauty, bordered as they are with the best type of aboriculture and floriculture.

To give a good mental image of this great lesson which Mr. Vanderbilt's energy, good taste and well directed expenditures have written upon the hillsides and valleys of his vast estate, is beyond my power as a word artist. The grounds, consisting of 95,000 acres, were laid out by Frederick Law Olmstead, and the architecture was designed by Hunt, two surpassing masters in their respective vocations, who as yet have no superiors either in the United States or elsewhere. The forestry is managed by Dr. Schenk, an educated German forester, and yet in the employ of the German empire. His work has been carried out with great precision and remarkable success. The trees are all planted under his immediate direction and supervision. The deciduous trees as well as the conifera are all thriving vigorously.

The roads (and there are 100 miles of macadam driveways on the estate) are in charge of Mr. Gall, a Scotch expert in road-building and management.

The dairy and cereal crops are under the management of Mr. Weston, who is a fine chemist and graduate of an agricultural college and a practical farmer of some 12 or 14 years experience. The dairy herd of Jerseys are very promising indeed. Each animal is numbered and tested as to mik, cream and butter capabilities day after day by the best and most improved appliances for such tests.

The propagating houses and truck gardens are all in charge of Mr. Beadle, who graduated from Cornell University in the class of 1890. His intelligent management of the great interests entrusted to him is visible in the plant life and the vegetable gardens.

But, as I said in the beginning, it is not possible to describe so as to convey a correct image the vast object lessons in forestry, horticulture, road building, gardens, dairying and general farming which Mr. Vanderblit is incalculating amidst the mountains of North Carolina.

The time is not distant when every intelligent person who desires to found a new or embellish an old estate will be desirous of making a pilgrimage to this Mecca of intensive agriculture and refined taste. The Chateau at Biltmore is in the French Gothic style of architecture. It has cost a great many hundreds of thousands of dollars, and upon the grounds and buildings together rumor declares something more than $3,000,000 have been expended.

The economic lesson of the Biltmore estate is also a practical and beneficent study. It represents a result of the self-denial, industry and frugality of the grandfather of its owner. It teaches that every human home, in fact, every structure in modern civilization, represents some economy and self-denial on the part of members of the human family. In a barbaric state there was no individual self denial, no permanent home, no planting of trees, no cultivation of flowers, no effort for the acquisition of the beautiful. The fact that Biltmore has in its construction and in the laying out and embellishment of its grounds employed thousands of men at remunerative prices, illustrates the absolute necessity of the accumulation of capital in order that a wages fund may be created with which to pay laborers. It further shows that the law of wages is governed by the law of supply and demand, because it has put up, by the demand which it has made, the price of efficient, desirable, day labor at Biltmore.

Under the direction of Mr. Chas. McNamee, the general manager of the estate, a system of genuine civil service has been inaugurated. The better workmen are promoted and their pay advanced as they develop persistent industry and fidelity to duties. The indolent, the intemperate, the quarrelsome and inefficient are demoted and sometimes discharged.

No man has expended so vast a sum of money upon any one estate in the American republic, and no man has done more than Mr. George W. Vanderbilt to awaken the public mind, in any one Commonwealth to the utility and beauty of forestry in general. The homes in and about Asheville are, as a rule, being improved by further adornment of structures and tasteful embellishment of grounds. The entire country adjacent to Biltmore (which is only 2 miles from Asheville) seems permeated with the patriotic purpose of making permanent, substantial and attractive homes. As a love of home is primary patriotism, and as the army and navy are always, in time of national peril, replenished, as to the better element, largely from rural homes, the work at Biltmore is of that kind which, carried on by every home builder in proportion to his means, will solidify and perpetuate the American republic.

The millions of dollars which Mr. Vanderbilt has expended have, each and every one of them, been up to the gold standard in purchasing power. The vast sum of money which he has paid out in North Carolina during the last 7 years has been equal in buying power to the best money in the world. Those who have exchanged labor and materials for that money have been able to exchange each dollar they received in the European markets at the same value at which they accepted it. North Carolina, however, although the oldest gold producing section of the United States, and notwithstanding the fact that large investments for reorganizing the gold product of that Commonwealth are now being made, and notwithstanding the further fact that North Carolina is not a silver-producing State, contains a population very thoroughly saturated with the fallacy of the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

Is it not inexplicable that a people whose gold mines are about to be worked to their utmost capacity should favor a monetary system which would compel each gold miner to secure 100 cents worth of gold (at bullion valuation) before he can legally present it at a United States mint and demand thereout of the coinage a gold dollar; and which at the same time will permit every silver miner in Colorado, Montana, Idaho or elsewhere to demand a dollar coined by the United States out of every forty-eight cents worth of silver—(at bullion value) which he shall produce.

A SONG OF COURTESY.

BY L. L. KNIGHT.

'Tis not decreed that every man should climb the heights of fame,
And write among the stars of earth his record and his name;
Success to all who seek the palm is not the Author's plan,
But no one ever sought in vain to be a gentleman.

Though some may dwell in castle grand and some in hovels poor,
And some toil on from sun to sun no richer than before,
'Tis not in gaudy robes of rank that gentle deeds abound,
Sometimes beneath a peasant's garb a noble man is found.

If thou wouldst seek the fountain spring, be gentle I beseech;
Let purity possess thy soul and truth inspire thy speech.
And be thy station what it may—thy calling or thy creed—
I'll nominate the prince of men a gentleman, indeed!

The world needs polish not the pomp that plays a borrowed part,
But, oh, the chivalry whose smile is rooted in the heart;
Refinement—not shrewd financiers and men of lofty ken,
But perfume breathing courtesy; soul knighted gentlemen.

Oh, half the battlefields of earth by widowed tears bewailed,
Had never blushed beneath the brave had gentleness prevailed,
And Freedom's holy flag, divorced from martial deeds,
Had triumphed over craven kings without her Runnymedes.

Feuds, strifes and battlefields proclaim the savage 'neath the skin;
Let's drive sabers out and bring the olive branches in;
Let's preach the golden rule of life, 'till on the trackless sea,
And over all the lands shall wave the flag of Courtesy!

Castles in the Air.

"Amid the myriad troubles that meet us day by day,
Who would not from the conflict a moment turn away.
And in a far-off fairyland, where men no burdens bear,
Forget a while our tears and toil, in 'Castles in the Air,'"

So writes Jacob Gough, and he goes on to suggest that this sort of castle building is a proper relief for weary folks. How many a man is sick and miserable who dreams of health and happiness. In this matter he had better be doing than dreaming. "What shall he do," you ask. Why, take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to be sure. It cures affections of throat and lungs, incipient consumption, disordered liver, sore throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, ulcers, scrofulous tumors and swellings, bad blood fever, aguel and dropsy.

Dr. Talmage on Newspapers,

A good newspaper is or should be a mirror of life. It is sometimes claimed tnat newspapers report the evil when they ought only to report the good. They must report the evil as well as the good, or how shall we know what is to be reformed, what guarded against, what fought down? A newspaper that pictures only the honesty and virtue of society is a misrepresentation. That family is best prepared for the duties of life which, knowing the evil is taught to select the good. Keep children under the impression that all is fair and right in the world, and when they go out into it they will be as poorly prepared to struggle with it as a child who is thrown into the middle of the Atlantic and told to learn how to swim. Our only complaint is when sin is made attractive and morality dull, when vice is painted with great headings and morality put in obscure corners, iniquity set up in great primer and righteousness in nonpariel. Sin is loathsome; make it loathsome. Virtue is beautiful; make it beautiful.

Every man in every profession or occupation ought to be responsible for what he does. No honorable man will ever write that which he would be afraid to sign. But thousands of persons have suffered from the impersonality of newspapers.

Three little maids from school are we,
Free from pains of all description;
But once we were sick as sick could be—
Cured by the "Favorite Prescription."
It is a certain Panacea
For all the ills of womanhood.
Try a bottle with good cheer;
We know that it will do you good.

Dr. R. V. Pierce: Dear Sir—My daughter had been sick all her life, and the older she grew, the worse she was until she was the picture of death; the physicians could not do her any good. I heard of your "Favorite Prescription," for women, and I gave her three bottles, and now she is a perfectly healthy girl. Have recommended it to a great many sufferers from "female complaints," and it has cured them. I think it is the greatest medicine in the world, and I have never found anything to compare with it.
Wesson, Copiah Co., Miss. Mrs. M. J. LOYD.

FOR years we have read with some care the productions of many of our best agricultural writers, and it is our candid opinion, that of all of them our own Prof. Massey, of our Agricultural College, is the best. He has done more by his tongue, pen and hands for the upbuilding of Southern Agriculture than any man we know. Warrenton Gazette.

CHARLOTTE is forging ahead and if not checked by some untoward event, will at no distant day, become the foremost large town or city in North Carolina. It is now first in historic memories, first in manufactures, first in great names, first in the newspaper press, and is now hustling to establish a system of water works, the supply to come from the Catawba river, and to cost $220,000.—Elizabeth City Economist.

Too many, through want of prudence are golden apprentices, silver journeymen and copper masters.—Whitefield.

The Boy in Business.

"What kind of a boy does a business man want?" replied a shrewd practical man of many concerns, the other day.

"Well, I will tell you. In the first place, he wants a boy who doesn't know too much; business men generally like to run their own business, and prefer some one who will listen to their way rather than to try to teach them new kinks; secondly, they want a prompt boy—one who understands seven o'clock as exactly seven, not ten minutes past; third, an industrious boy, who is not afraid to put in a little extra work in case of need; fourth, an honest boy—honest in his service, as well as in the matter of dollars and cents; and fifth a good-natured boy who will keep his temper even if his employer loses his own now and then!"

Spring Requires.

That the impurites which have accumulated in your blood during the winter shall be promptly and thoroughly expelled if good health is expected. When the warmer weather comes these impurities are liable to manifest themselves in various ways and often lead to serious illness. Unless the blood is rich and pure that tired feeling will afflict you, your appetite will fail and you will find yourself "all run down." Hood's Sarsaparilla tones and strengthens the system, drives out all impurities and makes pure, rich, healthy blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the one true blood purifier and the best spring medicine. Be sure to get only Hood's.

CAN'T COMPETE.

NEW ENGLAND COTTON MILLS CAN'T HOLD THEIR OWN

Against Those in the South in the Coarser Goods—The Lawrence Manufacturing Company of Lowell, Mass., Admits that it Cannot Meet the South's Competition—Must Come to the Cotton Fields or Quit.

Mr. Richard H. Edmunds, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, in the last issue of that paper, in referring to the southward trend of cotton manufacturing, says:

The decision two years ago of some of the largest cotton-mill companies in New England to build mills in the South, such as the Massachusetts Mill, at Rome, and the Dright, at Gadsden, was not more significant of the destiny of the South as the controlling power in cotton manufacturing than the action taken a few days ago by the Lawrence Manufacturing Co., of Lowell. For several years the Manufacturers' Record has persistently insisted that the New England companies manufacturing coarse cotton goods would be compelled to quit that line of business or build mills in the South. Every investigation made by the highest New England authorities has demonstrated the correctness of this position. A few days ago the directors of the Lawrence Manufacturing Co., of Lowell, a company having a capital of $1,500,000 and operating 120,000 spindles, voted to discontinue the manufacture of coarse cotton goods and to recommend to the stockholders to sell the entire real estate, machinery and plant of this part of their mill, paying back in cash to the stockholders the receipts to the extent of one-half of the capital stock, $750,000, and to confine their operations hereafter exclusively to the hoisery department of their business. The sheeting department, which is to be closed, now operates about 75,000 spindles.

Mr. C. P. Baker, the treasurer of the company, who recently went South with a view of locating a cotton mill in that section, in an interview with the Lowell Citizen, said:

"We intend to stop the manufacture of cotton cloth at Lowell for good. At present half of our product is hosiery, and the balance is cloth. We intend to keep on manufacturing hoisery. Outside of hoisery, the Lawrence Company has always been a manufacturer of coarse cloths, its largest product being sheeting. The Southern mills have become very large makers of this kind of goods, and we see no hope, with their low wages, of being able to meet it at a profit here. Instead of going there, as some corporations have, or spending a good deal of money here to fit up for the manufacture of fine goods, the directors of the company considered it best to return part of the capital to the stockholders, retaining at Lowell the hosiery business only.

"This crisis has been pending for three or four years, or ever since the South commenced the manufacture of coarse goods largely."

Replying to the question as to what advantage the South has over Lowell in the cost of goods, Mr. Baker stated that it was from one and one-half to two-cents per pound, and this is on account of low-priced labor, which formerly worked at farming. Their cost of manufacturing, said Mr. Baker, which is the cost of labor, is 30 per cent. below ours which is due to a very large surplus of help; and as this is nearly all paid by the piece, it does not make much difference in the cost whether the labor of the South is skilled or not. While the Southern mills do not manufacture enough goods to supply the American trade, they manufacture enough to make the price, and we have to meet it. These goods nearly all go to the West and South. The treasurer of one of the New England mills, who lately returned from the South, in reply to a question which I asked as the the amount of surplus labor in the South, said that there was enough to last for generations."

The action of this old-established company, which has been in successful operation for so many years, in deciding to sell its entire equipment devoted to manufacturing sheetings and retire from that part of the business permanently, shows that all that the Manufacturers' Record has ever claimed and ever predicted in behalf of the South and its advantages for cotton manufacturing is now being demonstrated. Ridiculed as the predictions of this paper were for many years, its statements receiving ten or twelve years ago but scant credit, even in the South, the world is finally being forced to realize by the stern logic of events that this section in producing cotton goods at a lower cost than any other place, is setting the price for the world, and following this the business must inevitably come to the South. It is only another demonstration of the unequalled advantages of this section for manufacturing, advantages which have brought about the fulfillment of our predictions in regard to iron-making, as well as in regard to cotton manufacturing, and of many other lines of industry, as well as of immigration. The South's day is at last dawning.
