PRITCHARD'S DESERTER BILL.

Senator Simmons Says He Never Acquiesced in it and Has No Recollection of Being Present When Mr. Pritchard Made His Speech.

News and Observer.

Speaking to a reporter yesterday morning in regard to the various and sundry statements that Senator Pritchard is making with reference to his attitude toward the Pritchard deserter pension bill, Senator Simmons said that Senator Pritchard, in his desperate efforts to escape the wrath and condemnation of the people, was making some very remarkable statements concerning himself and the rules of procedure of the Senate. "In his first reference to this matter, Senator Pritchard said I was silent when this bill passed. In his next reference he warmed up a little and said he presumed I acquiesced in his bill. In his next reference the Senator went a step further and said that I had acquiesced, or at least the newspapers have so reported him. At this rate of progress, how long will it be before the Schator will have me speaking for his bill and voting for it? There would be about as much foundation for this statement as there is for the inference drawn by the Senator as above stated.

"Now Senator Pritchard must know that I did not acquiesce in his bill and that Ldo not acquiesce in it. and that failure to vote in the Senate when the bill was under consideration, even if I were present, would not justify any such inference. In the next place, it would seem impossible that he believes that all the Southern Senators are infavor of the bill, or that they acquiesce in it. Senator Pritchard knows when there is a favorable report from the committee, as there was on this bill. there is very seldom a roll call or divison upon a non-political question, and that very frequently when such a bill is put upon its passage but few Senators vote either for or against it, and the whole thing is merely proforma. Senators who are opposed to such bills generally know that opposition will be futile, and STRENGTH IN COMMUNITY UNITY that opposition was be father, and they do not take up the time of the Senate, either in demanding a roll New Berne Journal. talls to cure. By its use many Senate than that no such inference usuals of dyspeptics have been as Senator Pritchard draws is to be drawn from the proforma failure of Senators to demand a roll call, or, when there is a preforma vote, to egually vote. Any other rule would guard to see that they were either recorded against every measure that they disapproved, or that their opposition to it was actually announced local enterprise which is of value to Strontium sulphate in order to exclude the inference that they acquiesced in the meas-

"The newspaper report of the joint lebate between Mr. Craig and Senaor Pritchard at Greensboro repreents the Senator as saying that his leserter bill was passed by unanimous consent, and that I could have objected and prevented its passage cannot believe Senator Pritchard s correctly quoted, because the Senitor knows so well that in the Senite when unanimous consent is asked, if there is objection, a vote can be immediately taken upon the motion it be known that a place is controlled he objection, and that this is a comnon practice in the Senate.

"Senator Pritchard said in substance in his speech at Raleigh that when his bill was up, and while he was speaking away as hard as he could for the bill, he looked across the aisle and saw me in my seat, and the Hon. E. W. Pou sitting by my side. after his amendment had been ruled out upon a point of order, he made a threat that there would be but little more pension legislation, if he could prevent it, until some bill similar to his was passed. Today I have examined the Record, and I find that when Senator Pritchard offered his bill as an amendment to the general pension bill he had made a speech covering about two prges in the Congressional Record. I also find that immediately after Senator Pritchard's speech I called up the Winston Public Building bill and made a short speech in support of it.

"I am confident that Senator Pritchard, when he refers to seeing me at the time he was making a speech in behalf of his bill, had the two occasions confused.'

MORE HOME INDUSTRIES.

We waste what a Yankee community would live upon. We throw away thousands of bushels of vegetables and fruits in their season, and when put up by our considerate northern friends, who know that we must have them. Corn from Maine, peaches from Jersey, tomatoes from Maryland, and even sweet potatoes raised and canned ir Massachusetts have been sold in the Waycross market. We are sleeping over our rights and throwing away our opportunities. We must turn over several new leaves if we would be independent, and as the natural outcome, happy .- Waycross Herald.

Too true, and just as soon as Georgia communities awake to this great DR. MOPPETT'S Cures Cholera-Infanium, truth and utilize their abundant raw material in small manufactures, just that soon will they be more than selfsupporting and commensurately prosperous. In this particular Georgians have learned much of late years, but he lesson is not yet half learned.

Confining its application at present to the Lorticultural industry, as uggested by our Waveross contemporary, the situation is at once disappointing and encouraging; disappointng in that a world of raw material is going to waste for lack of the initiative to convert it into a readily marketable commodity, and encouraging in that the possibilities are so manifold that all admit them and aspire to make the most of them. But there is no time like now for loing these things, and doing them This season Georgia has taken her place at the head of the peach-producing states, notwithstanding the crop was but a partial one. When we consider how largely the national market is supplied with California peaches than California gives rise to the query: Where are the Georgia canned peaches? That California does not can all her peaches by any 7.07743 nessed by a glance at any fruit stand .00105 in Atlanta today. The fact is, Cali-

Georgia sends her peaches north, rather indiscriminately, generally paying the penalty 2.77594 of inadequate or no returns, instead of marketing only the best and canning any overplus or inferior fruit. Innumerable bushels of peaches rot .03499 in Georgia every year for lack of local canneries, after the housewives have supplied the family with winter requirement by the hand process. Not that there are no canneries in the state. There are a few. But there is room at the present for ten times as many as are here. The state is being covered with peach orchards and truck farms. Few towns of any size would not support a local cannery, and in the exclusive fruit and trucking belts, some very large ones could be supported handsomely. The necessary capital involved in such enterprises is not large, especially in the establishment of a small neighborhood cannery, and they can be easily organized and profitably con-

Sold at Parker's (2) brother Confederate soldier, think we might adopt the above language, for it seems that both parties are striving to make it appear they are our friends? In fact the public speakers and to some extent the public press are vieing with each other as to who is the best friend to the old Confederate. Let the good work go on. When you and I were boys we well remember how men and women (God bless the women of the South), said: "Go, my young friends, and when you return home you shall have any position you ask for." "We are so much yours we are not at all our own." Those were inspiring sentiments; it made the patriotic blood run quick and fast, it had its effect; the inspiration was great, the "Confederate soldier," became the equal of patriotic women. Since this campaign opened I have as Bill Arp says) "been ruminating." I have been looking around, and it is a consolation to know that the people of North Carolina, have (in the ple of North Carolina, have (in the main) been true to the old veterans, JOHN HILL TUCKER true in peace, as well as in war. The true Confederate soldier has generally been favored by all true North Carolinians. They are still filling places of trust and confidence. On & Tucker building, Main street. Clark, Cooke, Ferguson, Justice and Peebles, who were Confederate soldiers, there may be others. Five, that is enough to contradict the Fusion assertion that "The Confederate soldier has played out." It looks more like the days of "Abe Middleton" "had played out." I mention this to show that North Carolina i still true to the Confederate soldier, and will not turn them down without

Of course if a Conederate soldier is not true to himself, not true to the principles of State's rights for which we fought, he must not grieve and feel hurt if he is turned down. Of course, all who served in the Confederate army cannot, and do not expect office, but the point I wish to make is, that we are not being discriminated against, but rather the good people of good old North Carolina, are inclined to discriminate in our favor, if any discrimination is made at all. The discussions going on as alluded to at the beginning of this article, should cheer the heart of the old veteran as be goes down the Western slope of life. He should not feel as one of old "no man careth for my soul," for our people do care for us. Mr. Editor, you and the printer will say it is time for me to stop. To my comrades of '61-'65 I say, Be of good cheer, for we are not to be neglected.
