NO. 22.

How long will it take the man to fill the sack if he does not stop the leak? To attempt to pour the body when the stomach is leaking is like trying to fill the sack with the hole in it. Write to the stomach and other digestive and nutritive organs are clean food. The gain in weight proves the cure.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures all diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It stops the leaks by which nutrition is lost, and enables the building up of the body by the nutrition derived from food.

"Three years ago I was taken sick with what the doctor called nervousness or indigestion," writes Mr. Warren E. Baker, of Orange, Va. "I could not eat, and I could not sleep, and I was losing weight without stopping severely. In a few months I began to feel better, and I was able to eat and sleep again. I called the doctor and he gave me medicine but it did not do any good. I lost 25 pounds in three months. I then commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine and soon began to feel better. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I feel like a new man. I have gained 25 pounds and I am able to eat and sleep again. I have been cured of my nervousness and indigestion. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation."

NORTH CAROLINA'S CONTRIBUTION.

A Pennsylvania Editor Impressed by the Tar Heel Room in the Confederate Museum at Richmond, Va.

Mr. Jewett, Pa. Herald.

On leaving St. John's church we visited the Confederate Museum—the storeroom of memories of the lost cause. This is one of the most interesting points in the city and well repays one for the hours required in which to examine the structure and its contents.

The building itself is of historical interest, as it was the White House of the Confederacy during the civil war, and yet contains many articles of furniture belonging to the Davis family. It was in this building that Willie Davis, the "Daughter of the Confederacy," was born. The building has been impregnable by the laying of cement floors, and is now devoted exclusively to use as a storeroom of memories.

The first object to attract attention on entering the building is a section of the propeller shaft of the Merrimack, the first ironclad war vessel that ever braved a wave, and which was built at the Merrimack yard on the side of the Northern fleet. The section of shaft is about 14 inches in diameter and about 24 inches in length. It ornaments the slope in front of the building.

On entering the building one is met by a grizzled veteran of the Confederate army, who greets you with a pleasant word, and proves a veritable walking encyclopedia of information relative to the war. His knowledge has been gained by personal service in the field, and witnessed by comparison with experiences of men from both North and South, as the museum is a place of interest to both armies, and a common meeting place.

Each State of the Confederacy has a room of the building set apart for its exclusive use. In that of Mississippi stands a case containing a number of articles once belonging to Jefferson Davis. Among these is the suit of clothes worn by the Confederate President at the time of his capture.

On the wall of this room hangs the battle flag of the Eighteenth Massachusetts Infantry. It is a beautiful white silk banner, bearing the arms of the State worked in green and gold. This flag, captured on the battlefield will, in all probability, shortly be restored to the men who marched forth under its folds to fight for the South to the last gasp, under a life size painting of Jefferson Davis, is a photograph of the petti jury empaneled for his trial. It is composed of both white and black men, and is noted as the first jury in the history of the world.

In the South Carolina room hangs the original ordinance of secession passed by that State, and thus throughout the building are thousands of different articles ranging from a fragment of a sword to a fragment of a bullet. In the room of Virginia, a Merriam, showing where a ball from the Monitor had struck that vessel a telling blow, to the Bible of Mr. Davis, and the saddle of Morgan, the gloves, and spurs, of this and that, and the many other articles of interest.

It is, however, in the room sacred to North Carolina that one learns to some extent the measure of sacrifice made by the South to the last cause, and you stand appalled as you read the story of the men of the Tar Heel State, which is there given in plain black and white, and runs thusly:

First at Bethel, Farthest at Gettysburg, Law at Appomattox.

"With a voting population of 115,000 men North Carolina contributed 125,000 soldiers to the Confederacy."

And then, as if to further emphasize the stamp of men supplied, the story continues:

"The Light Brigade at Balaklava lost 37 per cent. of its men, while a North Carolina regiment in a single engagement, sustained a loss of 87 per cent."

It is but little we really learn of the many women in the every day walks of life. Men go forth with a smile as cover to a frown, and with bluff and brow-beat shield their own fears from their fellow men, while a woman, with a calm face, smothering a sob, bravely on. Yet deep in the heart of each lies another life, not the one lived, but the one longed for. If there be a material trace of it on earth it is to be found registered in the names of the women of the Confederacy, from which at times they are brought forth to be re-embodied in tears. To the men and women of the Southland, the Confederate Museum exists as the receptacle of their recollections and emblems of a cause most dear, but lost.

LET US FORGET.

Christian Endeavor World.

Let us forget the things that vexed and tried us.
The worrying things that caused our soul to fret.
The hopes that, cherished long, were still denied us.
Let us forget.

Let us forget the little-pleasures that pained us.
The greatest wrongs that wracked some times yet.
The plans with which some lofty one disdained us.
Let us forget.

Let us forget our brother's fault and failing.
The yielding to temptations that beset.
That he perhaps, though grief be unavailing.
Cannot forget.

But blessings manifold, past all deserving.
Kind words and helpful deeds, a countless throng.
The fault of crime, the recitade unswerving.
Let us remember.

The sacrifice of love, the generous giving.
When friends were tried, the handclasp strong.
The fragrance of each life of holy living.
Let us remember long.

Whatever things were good and true and gracious.
Whatever of right has triumphed over wrong.
What love of God or man has rendered precious.
Let us remember long.

So, pondering well the lesson it has taught us.
We tenderly may bid the past "Good-bye."
Holding in memory a good it brought us.
Let us remember.

Cleveland's Doubtful Chances.

Washington Post.

The Detroit Free Press, like the Brooklyn Eagle, is an independent, good standard Democratic paper, and an ardent admirer of Mr. Cleveland, but the Free Press declares that "when the Eagle expresses the opinion that Mr. Cleveland is the only man who can assuredly lead the party to victory in 1904, it admits by implication that President Roosevelt will be triumphantly re-elected. There is as little probability of Grover Cleveland's becoming a candidate for president again as there is of his becoming a candidate for Pope to succeed the venerable Leo XIII. A small but noisy element in the party persists in conjuring with the name of the former president, but nobody is likely to have less sympathy with these activities than he himself." We believe the Free Press diagnoses the case with a greater approach to accuracy, than is evidenced in the Eagle.

How to Make Things Go.

Rev. Madison C. Peters in a recent lecture at the Baptist Tabernacle in Baltimore on "How to Make Things Go," said this among other things:

"Understand your talents. Find out for what pursuit you are born and fill the groove nature intended for you. Don't choose a business because your father wants you to follow it. No matter how inviting the business or profession, enter it not unless your talent lies in that direction. Remember that the most despised calling may be made honorable by the honor of its professors. A blacksmith may be a man of polished manners and a college professor a boor."

"Stick to your business and your business will stick to you. To succeed you must be unanimous with yourself. This is the age of specialists. It does not pay to know everything. The men whose names are immortal are identified with some single achievement. They rode a hobby. The art of pleasing is the art of getting on in the world. Good manners are a prime factor of success. Like standard gold they are a passport everywhere."

"Ninety per cent. of what the world calls genius is nothing more than the talent for hard work."

"The world does not owe us a living. Every man owes the world work. There are plenty of young fellows who sit on the earnings of their fathers until they can find a girl who is fool enough to marry them; then they live off her father."

"Luck is waiting for something to turn up. Pluck, with keen eyes and strong will, turns up some thing. Boy luck is a man with his hands in his pockets waiting to see how things will turn out. Pluck, with sleeves rolled up and hard at work, makes things come out."

"The man who stands at the summit have fought their way up from the bottom. Whatever you do, do well. Don't be an 'average' man."

"Carry a head full of steam. It is time enough to be conservative when there is no room for progress. Everybody is in the way of the man with a wheelbarrow; a horse coming at full speed always gets a clear track."

"Be patient. Nobody can cheat you out of ultimate success but you. Hold your ground and don't push hard. Swim off and don't wait for anybody to put a cork under you."

THE WOMEN FIRST.

Rocky Mount Motor.

In the account of the horrible collision off the coast of Norfolk when the Saginaw was sunk by the Hamilton and a large number of lives lost, the account of the catastrophe stated that perfect discipline prevailed among the crews of both vessels and that "women first" was the initial command of Captain Tunnell after the lifeboats had been prepared for lowering. This has ever been so with American crews. Compare this with the frantic crew of a French liner that was sunk some time ago when discipline was thrown to the winds and everybody was scrambling to save self. It is the spirit of discipline that makes the American sailor the best fighter on the ocean today.

A NORTHERN MAN ON THE NEGRO.

Opinion of President Hadley, of Yale University—Thinks a Mistake Was Made in Giving the Negro the Ballot.

In a speech in New York recently President Hadley, of Yale University, said that a mistake was made after the civil war in giving the negro the ballot before he was prepared to use it intelligently. He declared also that the suppression of the negro vote was inevitable, but he added that a mistake equally as great as giving the unprepared negro the franchise would be to withhold it from him when prepared for it. He said in part:

"The colored race was given freedom and the ballot with a rapidity which even the French nation did not parallel. A corrupt government followed after the negro allowed the use of his vote to unscrupulous persons from the North."

"It was not the fault of the negro. It was the fault of those who gave him the ballot without previous preparation. The same thing was true in Italy before that, and in Russia. The North did not recognize this at the close of the civil war. They had recognized the dictum that all men are born free and equal."

"When the North recognized the condition which prevailed in the South it acquiesced in the suppression of the negro vote. The fact that the negro vote was restricted showed that it was inevitable. I shall not attempt to predict the outcome."

"The case of the negro differs from that of many groups of white people in degree, but not in kind. We see it illustrated in the case of the ignorant immigrant who comes to this country from a paternal government. We are continually in danger of looking at the negative idea of personal freedom, regarding it as the absence of restraint."

Weak?

"I suffered terribly and was extremely weak for 12 years. The doctors said my blood was all turning to water. At last I tried Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and was soon feeling all right again."
Mrs. J. W. Fiala, Haddam, Ct.

No matter how long you have been ill, nor how poorly you may be today, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine you can take for purifying and enriching the blood.

Don't doubt it, put your whole trust in it, throw away everything else.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He knows all about this grand blood purifier. Write him and he will be satisfied.

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Importance of Self-Confidence and Believing in One's Self.

Philadelphia Ledger.

Self-confidence is the explanation of all successful careers. It is a virtue which, when earnestly cultivated in the young, the lack of self-confidence in the competitions of life. There was something imposing in the excessive self-reliance of Napoleon, who declared if there were no one to make cannon and gun, the emperor himself would make them. "It is I alone who have arranged the finances, you know." This is colossal egotism, it is true, but it was the motive power that made Napoleon one of the most magnificent military successes in history. It is better to possess the quality of self-confidence in excess than not to possess it at all. Montaigne, among the shrewdest of practical philosophers, says: "To speak much of himself, that is to possess himself, not modestly." Offense lies not in relying upon one's self, but in speaking boastfully of one's ability and exploits. A writer observes that some offensive egotists are of indistinguishable importance to the carrying on of American life, "whom we could ill spare; any one of them would be a national loss. But it spoils conversation. They are ever thrusting themselves between you and them. Nature utilizes them, fanatics, egotists, to accomplish her ends. But we must not think better of the foible for that."

Self-confidence is, therefore, to be carefully distinguished from self-praise, which, even in the greatest of men, is but a colorable. A man should believe in himself, but he should not advertise his merit by his own proclamation. It was the injunction of a famous artist, "to confide in one's self, and be something of value."

When this is one's mental attitude toward one's self, a long step has been taken in the path of success.

Self-confidence is the offspring of self-respect. "To think merely of one's self is to sink." "Feel yourself and be not dismayed by things." "Those are the precepts which inspire men to worthy, if not famous achievements. A great deal may be expected from a man who, in a new, difficult and untried position, acts as if he had a right to be there. It is related that the Saxons were taught to believe that they would be first, and the aggressive energy of the race may be due to this primitive inspiration.

Though it may seem an affliction, the young man who stands alone has an opportunity to test his manhood, and such opportunities should be welcomed. "Go forward with hope and confidence" was the best advice which the sage could give to the youth who desired to learn the mystery of success. Self-confidence can never be learned in seclusion. It is nurtured in the school of the world, by contact with men in touch with affairs. Of course, it will be understood that we are not encouraging the over-weening self-confidence that despises the advice of experience; but we must learn to try our own wings, to trust our own powers, if we are to make notable progress in the world.

SUMMER SCHOOL

At A. & M. College—Course of Study Divided into Six Departments.

The course of study at the A. & M. Summer School is divided into scientific and mechanical departments, literary and normal, kindergarten and music. The normal department is composed of twenty-four teachers, all of whom are specialists and experienced in their respective departments.

The scientific department embraces soil study, plant culture, animal study, stloyd work, elementary carpentry, force work, mechanical drawing, physics and chemistry. Nature study will be a feature of this department and many simple experiments will be performed.

English language and literature will be taught, including Romantic Poets, the Poetry of the South, Origin and Influence of the English Novel. An exhaustive course in history is offered, including American, English, Greek, Roman and Modern History. The North Carolina History is especially attractive. In addition to the regular faculty, eight prominent gentlemen will discuss some period or event in the history of the State.

Courses are offered in higher Mathematics, French, German, and Latin; and also in Anglo-Saxon, Greek, Italian and Spanish, if there is any demand.

The Normal department includes instruction in the common school branches and kindergarten. The work will be illustrated in a model school of one hundred children, including the first seven grades.

The music department has a faculty of six teachers, and offers instruction in public school music, church and school music. Also special instruction in piano, violin, kindergarten, music and voice.

An important feature of the work will be Round Table Talks directed by prominent superintendents and teachers. Each evening will be devoted to concert and recitals.

The department of superintendence will be one of the most important features; here instruction will be given upon organization, maintenance, and the management of school systems. This is intended to prepare young men and women especially for town and rural graded school work.

A certificate of attendance, according to law, will be valid in any county in this State.

The Normal department includes instruction in the common school branches and kindergarten. The work will be illustrated in a model school of one hundred children, including the first seven grades.

The music department has a faculty of six teachers, and offers instruction in public school music, church and school music. Also special instruction in piano, violin, kindergarten, music and voice.

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Louisville, Ind., when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but my New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure." Similar cases of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the perfect remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c, and $1.00. Guaranteed by Dorsey's Drug Store. Trial bottles free.
