TREATY NEARLY READY TO SIGN

Work of Engrossing the Document

Both parties bind themselves not to fortify the island. La Perouse is to be "open" and Japan agrees not to erect works to command the strait.

The article relating to the evacuation of Manchuria provides that the troops, immediately upon the exchange of final ratifications, are to be withdrawn respectively to the lines of Mukden and Harbin. The number of "railroad guards" in ordinary times is Between the other people who want limited, but provision is made for the t and the investigations, a man has dispatch of troops for the protection condition that they are immediately withdrawn when their mission is fin-

The alarmist stories that have gone being settled and details are important, but no detail is important enough to cause a rupture. It is not deemed possible here that there can be a break, although some of the Russians and some of the Japanese shake their heads and say a treaty "is not signed until it is signed." The Russians and the Japanese are both seeking for every advantage. The nervousness over the outcome is not real, however, neither Russians nor Japanese can afford to break now, and

The plenipotentiaries and the at taches of the two missions seem to be ring down on the final act of the drama as the little colony of newspaper correspondents and summer guests who are waiting to be "in at the death." The work of engrossing the treaty has already begun, Mr. Rojest vensky doing the caligraphic work of the French and Mr. Adashi of the English text. Controversies over the phraseology still continue, and there were several conferences between Mr De Martens and Mr. Dennison, differences being referred for adjustment to the principals. The Japanese are proving great sticklers for words. They cling tenaciously to their ideas. Careful preparation and methods have been the secret of their successes on land and sea, and in their diplomatic struggles at Portsmouth the same qualities have been displayed. In the sittings of the conference Baron Komura always stated the Jap anese position upon a given point briefly, but with great care, and when Mr. Witte, whose method was entirely different, would try to draw out explanations, he would stick doggedly to the statement he had made. Mr. Witte a man of affairs, resourceful and tal ented as he is admitted to be, had his case in his head. He never brought any papers with him. He met everything which came up in an off-hand way, weighing it instantly in his mind analyzing it, arguing the logic pro and con, and stating his view quite bluntly, never asking for time to consider. Baron Komura, on the other hand, could with the greatest difficulty be induced to enter into the region of ar gument. He stuck to the brief before him. Speaking always quite slowly what he had stated, as if he had learned his lesson by rote. Several times Mr. Witte would say: "Yes, I under stand perfectly what you say, but what do you mean, what is your real object?" Then Baron Komura would go back and restate his proposition almost exactly as he had done originally. Both systems had their advantages. By insisting, insisting, insist ing, Baron Komura would sometimes catch Mr. Witte off his guard and provoke him into statements which were always eagerly seized upon. As a final resort Baron Komura was always ready with a written solution of a sage: question, and would produce it sud-DR. F. S. HARRIS, denly, saying: "This is what we pro-

The signing of the treaty is to be a very exclusive affair. The Japanese objected to the presence of any newspaper correspondents or photographers, and it has therefore been de cided that besides the plenipotentiaries and secretaries there shall be present only Assistant Secretary Peirce, representing the president; Governor McLane, of New Hampshire; the mayor of Portsmouth; Admiral Mead, commander of the navy yard, and the commanders of any United States warships in the harbor-in this case only Captain Winslow, of the Mayflower. There is no place on this earth quite so sweet to the average negro as the city of Washington. It is a negro paradise, a promised land to those who long to come and those who arrive have to admit it's a land of fulfilment. The negro has all his rights here and some more. He generally manages to occupy rather more than the space a passenger is expected to take in a street car, and he needs more room on the sidewalk with an inferior race and yet main-taining at all hazards the purity of candidacy for re-election. But the negro is not so much to blame as the party that puts him requiring services in return.
