THE DOPE HABIT.

This Curse of the Age on the Increase-Horrible Effect on Victims.

Fairbrother's Everything.

The dope is one of the most gigantic and subtle evils of the age-an evil that burrows under the ground and only now and then comes to light in its hideous deformity; an evil that somehow and someway associates with respectability and attempts | to say that they dread another. to claim for itself respectabily, and hinges it strongest claim upon the fact that respectable men sell the compound and the Pure in Heart who see evil only in alcohol never raise their voice or hand against out in the open and join in the race as this more insidious foe-against a certain moral and physical death itself. It is said that numerous friends which masquerades as a drug and opiate, and which, alas, is too often are already laying pipes for the nomina given by doctors in their pathetic tion of legislative candidates in the Demhelpleness to relieve a real or imaginary pain described by an impatient patient, evidence is found on every and. We have known physicians who were deceived by dope fiends. They insisted, these cunning dopers, that terrible pains; pains that they could no longer endure were tearing them to pieces and doctors will to give relief use the needle and the grinning dope fiend congratulated himself upon how easily he had worked the physician. Morphine and cocaine and chloral and other drugs which make grinning idiots out of otherwise intellectual people are increasing their sales; some say the cigarrette hastens the desire, and it is only once in awhile that the victim manifests his murderous designs and therefore thousands of cases do not become public. Who can tell how many of these unfortunates there are. Don't ask the Pure in Heart who see only John Barleycora as an enemy. Don't ask the saloon keeper who has been long ago consigned to hell by these self-same pure in heart-but go to the man who sells the dope and let him tell you the number of his helpless victims. Don't blame him for selling it, because it wasn't whiskey—but reach

GORMAN NEWS BUREAU, Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15, 1906.) Politicians and party leaders who come to the State capital on various missions, especially lawyers and particularly those from the eastern central counties, are beginning to discuss the eastern Senatorship now filled by Senator Simmons, whose term expires a little more than a year from now and whose successor the legislature to be elected this year will

The discussion is not confined to the personality of three or four gentlemen chom it is understood will enter the contest. They are very earnestly canvassing also the question of a State primary and the possible outcome, which some of them predict would result in no choice. Remembering the unpleasant features and party distracting results of the senatorial primary of six years ago, many prominent Democrats have been heard It is understood that the three princi

The situation is not yet clearly defined. however, and it is a little too early, perhaps, to accurately predict results.

The cotton planters of North Carolina especially those identified with the Cotton Growers Association, are in better spirits and more hopeful of future results than in many years. The new board of directors selected at the recent meeting of the State association, which s charged with the management of the affairs of of the association, are greatly encouraged over the result of their labor during the last two or three weeks. This board is composed of five of the leading cotton planters of the State, intelligent and energetic men. Col. Henry C. Dockery is the chairman and Dr. R. H. Speight of Edgecombe, S. B. that the Northern stock and cotton market gamblers, who have been reaping the great bulk of the profit on cotton so long, are greatly disturbed over the actual probability that the Southern farmers will bereafter fix the price of the staple instead of these sharks.

There was a remarkable and unusual scene in the Superior Court of Wake county here last week, which marked the ending of the sensational shooting affair in this city last June, when police-man Isaac Rogers shot and very nearly killed Deputy U. S. Marshal John Dockery, the affair growing out of the discovery of intimacy between Mr. Dockery and a daughter of Mr. Rogers. When the case against Rogers was called he plead guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, the charge of secret as-sauth having been withdrawn. There-upon Hon, James II, Pou, special prosecuting counsel employed by Mr. Dockery. arose and earnestly importuned Judge Ward not to punish Mr. Rogers. He stated that this was the desire of Mr. Dockery, who recognized that Mr. Rogers. 'under a misapprohension of the facts.'

lefendant, imposed only a fine of fifty dollars upon Mr. Rogers, adding that he could not dismiss the case without some punishment and uphold the dignity of the law. Counsel for Mr. Dockery stated have nothing to do with his ability, that while his client had suffered much and it contends that in positions of he now believed that was for his good trust, high or low, skill without and did not desire to have his assailant solidity of character is nothing.
