A Trite Saying.

It is a trite saying that no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—that is invigorating to the brain and nerves. The sick nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people suffer from is usually the effect of poisons in the blood. It is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becoming thin and the feelings "blue." Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" cures all blood troubles as well as being a tonic that makes one vigorous, strong and cheerful. It is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for the purpose of curing neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs, and the only one, every ingredient of which has the professional endorsement of the leading medical writers of this country. Some of these endorsements are published in a little book of extracts from standard medical works and will be sent to any address free on receipt of request therefor by letter or postal card addressed to Dr. R. W. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. It tells just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of, and the "Words of Praise" for the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, by leaders in all the general schools of medical practice, and recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Golden Medical Discovery" is so widely used. It has far more weight with the sick and afflicted than any amount of the so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public by those who are afraid to let the ingredients of their medicines be known. Bear in mind that the "Golden Medical Discovery" has the name of its discoverer on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of its ingredients. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, invigorate the liver and regulate the stomach and bowels. Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page Illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser contains full particulars for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

The Value of Tact.

We Should Use Kindness and Exhibit Tact in Dealing With One Another—A Lecture by Rev. J. Klein of Sumter, S. C.

Although tact is an essential quality in Jewish ethics, I shall treat this subject from a universal standpoint. The world is full of friction. A planet inhabited by millions of human beings, cannot be free from the attraction of human forces. The desires, actions and aims of mankind cross one another in a thousand and one ways. The religious beliefs, the political views, the popular opinions of men are represented by every hue and shade. The forces and the influences of environment produce among humanity the most different and opposing types. Every country exhibits a peculiar national type. Every race, savage or civilized, has its own features which color all phases of its life, its dress and appearance, thought and institutions. In every country and in every people there are again differences of men and conditions.

This fact of variety has become a commonplace. When we militarily "take all kinds of people to make up the world," we are really putting in a popular way the scientific demonstration, the guiding principle of anthropology, that mankind has displayed varying moods and shades of history means the study of these contrasting ways, that life is the sum total of all the influences of the past; that civilization is a connection woven from the threads of mankind's multifarious thought, life and activity.

Since life is not a simple but a complex, it takes all kinds of people to make up the world, and all kinds of people are acting and speaking in us, since all manners of men are crowded upon this planet striving for different aims, thinking in different ways, moved by different motives, following different inherited impulses, since mankind is as many-sided as the human mind, and soul, we should have a tolerant attitude towards the world at large. We should be sympathetic with the desires and aims of mankind; we should use kindness and exhibit tact in dealing with the mass of our fellow creatures. Tact is kindness, used with discretion. Tact is sympathy, delicately adjusted. Tact is good sense, applied at the proper time. Kindness and tact are akin to one another.

Kindness is the feeling whereby we avoid doing offense to others. Kindness is the God-given gift, the divine quality of mercy expressed in human form. Kindness is the voice harmonizing the discord of life, blending the harsh sounds into pure and sweet tones. When kindness is coupled with discretion, the quality of tactfulness is evolved. Tact is the use of kindness at the critical moment. It may be shown in a word said or avoided, in a thought, suppressed in a malicious desire, checked in a sneering and slandering speech cut off. Tact is the rare sense of proportion whereby the intelligent man adjusts himself to the situation in which he finds himself, as a sweetening and chastening influence. Tact is founded upon a clear, and thorough knowledge of the differences of men. Tact is the graceful art of polishing the rough places of life, of stroking the hand so as to smooth the roughness.

As the skillful artist by one master-stroke gives a painting a rounded effect, so the tactful person may, by a supreme show of tact, bring peace and harmony among men.

We should deal sincerely with our fellowmen, and not in a subtle way. We should not cut ourselves into the confidence of others, and suddenly throw forth to give a mortal sting. Many persons are called tactful who have an art of insinuating themselves into the good graces of the world by deceit and trickery, by a prettily turned speech, by saying to each and every one just what he or she would like to hear. But insincerity and tact are as wide apart as the poles. The truly tactful person is not insincere, for kindness is the guiding thread of his conduct. The insincere person can never be tactful because the motive is never kind and unkind. The insincere person imagines that he is using tact by acting towards the world in a hypocritical way. Watch this species of so-called generalists of tact; observe their train of thought and course of actions, search deep into the motives, and selfishness found at the heart of such misdirected and misplaced tact. Tact cannot be selfish, as kindness cannot have the element of self.

If we trace back the word "tact" to its origin in the speech of Rome, the mother of modern language, the keen appreciator of the delicate distinctions of life.

The source of the word is found in the Latin verb "Tango," "to touch, to feel, to touch with discretion." But tact is not a mere polite quality. Tact is not a smooth, courteous, made by the dude and the fop.

Tact does not consist in the artificial etiquette of the so-called leader of fashion. Tact may appear in the humblest and the meanest. Tact may be shown by the pauper to the prince, by the friend to the stranger. The very fine gilt and glitter of superficial society, the so-called fashionable usages, the smiles of the artful, all these politenesses are merely the sham and show of courtesy, the deceptive parading of true and delicate tact. It is true that human nature loves to relax itself in innocent mirth and pleasure. The sorrows of life are forgotten in the wild whirl of joyous excitement. The sense of humor is sharpened. Smiles are everywhere seen. Life seems a round of pleasure. The world has become a playground again for mirth and frolic.

But in this phase of life the finer things are not created and fostered.

A Solid Defense of the South.

The Kennebec Journal, a Republican paper published in Maine and edited by Congressman Edwin C. Burleigh, of Augusta, has by a recent utterance attracted the attention of the Washington Post. The latter regards it necessary to present a few items from the biography of the Journal before commenting on its utterances. The paper was established 1825, five years after its State was admitted into the Union. "Being long-lived as a wig, it naturally became a Republican paper. But the most notable fact in the Journal's career is that during the greater part of its eighty years it has been owned and controlled by Representatives in Congress. Among its editors before the middle of the last century was Luther Severance, who was one of the seven Whigs in the national House of Representatives who persistently voted against appropriating money to defray any part of the cost of our war with Mexico. They rallied around their leader, Tom Corwin, of Ohio, and applauded him when he declared in the House that if he were a Mexican he would welcome the invaders with bloody hands to hospitable graves." The most distinguished of the Journal's list of statesmen-editors was James G. Blaine. The present editor, says the Post, is "a man of brains and character, as well as of ample financial resources." The record of the paper and its editors ought to be a guarantee of fairness in its editorial utterances, but "how conspicuously it has failed to meet such a guarantee may be judged from this extract from an editorial in a recent issue," says the Post, which proceeds to quote from the Kennebec Journal:

The new South has been a fruitful theme for writers and speakers during the past generation, and yet every little while there has been abundant and welcome evidence that the old South has by no means passed away. The South needs more capital, more labor, more energy, less demagoguery, less prejudice, and race stupidity; but in spite of its heavy handicaps it has shared to small degree in the beautiful progress which the whole country has been enjoying in recent years.

The Post replies:

Thank God, "the old South" has not passed away; that while she has "in recent years" been accumulating wealth, there has been no decadence of her manhood; that her Democratic representation in Congress, in both Senate and House, has, in large degree, been distinguished by the best of the old-time American characteristics; that among the scores of ex-Confederate statesmen and soldiers who served in the Confederate Congress and in the army of the Confederacy, the grater has been conspicuous by reason of his absence. The Senate of Fifty-two Congress furnished many illustrations of what "the old South" was and the new South is. Compare the venerable ex-Confederates Morgan and Pettus, of Alabama, with the representation in that body of the Empire State, and you will not need to go further in the investigation.

"Political stupidity," as the term is employed by the Journal, means Democratic solidarity. If that solidarity is a misfortune, it is easily accounted for. The history of reconstruction is its all sufficient explanation. The same kind of "political stupidity" would, under like conditions, prevail all over the North. The new South is too wise and patriotic to cut loose from the traditions, habits, and surviving representatives of the "old South." May it be long before immigration or greed, or both combined, or any other cause or causes efface the Americanism of the only section in which it survives.

Nothing handsomer could be said of this section by one of the South's most devoted sons. The people of this section are under many obligations to the Washington Post for this and similar utterances. It has apparently adopted the task of seeing the South is not misrepresented when it can prevent it.

Little Jo's Church.

How the Orphan Boy's Mite Grew Into a Fund to Build a Church at the Barium Springs Presbyterian Orphans' Home.

Correspondence Statesville Landmark.

We think it a great miracle, and so it was, that the five loaves and two fishes that had given our Saviour 5,000 and they were filled. But I think just as great a miracle is being done at the Presbyterian Orphans' Home at this place now.

As many of our readers remember, a few years ago a little 5 or 6-year-old orphan boy, named Jo, died at this place. Little Jo was a very talkative little fellow and no one was stranger to him. Previous to his death some friend gave him 40 cents. He went to his matron and told her that some person gave him some money and, to use his words, he said "Miss Celeste! Miss Celeste! do you know what I am going to do with my money?" "No, Jo, what are you going to do with it?" "I am going to build a church for the boys and girls here, and I am going to have a porch to it, where the boys can hang their hats and coats when it's hot." Anyone would naturally have said, what is 40 cents toward building a church? The above was published, or a part, in our Fatherless Ones, after little Jo's death, and since that time the King and Head of all Churches has blessed little Jo's 40 cents until it has accumulated a sum to make Jo's dream a reality. In fact a site has been selected and material is being delivered on the ground. While not all the money that is desired to build "Little Jo's church" has been received, yet the building committee feel assured the necessary amount will soon be in their hands, so that when the Synod meets in Statesville in November they will come out and dedicate Little Jo's church, and truthfully say the days of miracles are not yet past.

Cure For The Blues

ONE MEDICINE THAT HAS NEVER FAILED

Health Fully Restored and the Joy of Life Regained.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture. It is usually this way: She has been feeling "out of sorts."

Mrs. Rosa Adams

For some time, head has ached and back also; has slept poorly, been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart heavy feeling, and during her periods she is exceedingly despondent. Nothing helps her. Her doctor says: "Cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you will be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right," and hope vanishes; then come the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES.

Don't wait until your sufferings have driven you to despair, with your nerves all shattered and your courage gone, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. See what it does for Mrs. Rosa Adams of 819 1/2th Street, Louisville, Ky., niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C.S.A. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: I came to you with pen and ink what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with female troubles for many years, and was very nervous and that all-gone feeling. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it not only cured my female troubles, but it has restored me to perfect health and strength. The courtesy of my younger days has returned, and I do not suffer any longer with dyspepsia, as I did before. I feel like a new woman. The Vegetable Compound a boon to sick and suffering women.

If you have some derangement of the female organs, write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Southport the Terminal.

In speaking of the South and Western railroad which is being constructed from the coal fields of Virginia and Kentucky into this state and across the mountains the Manufacturers' Record says:

The South and Western railway, on which construction is in progress in the southwestern part of Virginia and in Western North Carolina, will carry coal from the Elkhorn fields in Kentucky, and also from the Clinchfield region in Virginia, to the Chesapeake and Ohio, and like the Tidewater, it is assured of a large business in hauling fuel as soon as construction is completed. The southeast terminal, as heretofore stated, is to be at Southport, N. C., about thirty miles below Wilmington. The construction of this line through the mountains of North Carolina, where it was long believed to be almost impossible to build a railroad, is one of the impressive facts of engineering in these years of wonderful achievements. According to a report from that vicinity, some of this construction is costing $180,000 per mile. The section between Marion and Rutherfordton is to be tackled within a month, and General Manager Caples is reported as saying that the work must be completed within a year or a year and a half. The difficulty of this task and the wonderful results which are being accomplished by the engineers are indicated by the expression of a mountain guide quoted in the Charlotte Observer thus: "A set of people who are fool enough to undertake to build a railroad through a place like this oughtn't to be distinguished no way." From Elkhorn to Spartanburg the road will be about 300 miles long. There are eighteen tunnels in the North Carolina mountains, one of them 2,150 feet long, but the big tunnel under the Clinchfield mountain in Virginia is said to be two and one-half miles in length.

Why Be a Fool About Politics?

Greenboro Industrial News

But why fly into a passion over politics? Why indulge in practices when playing the political game that would be frowned upon and condemned by all decent men if used in private business affairs? These are matters to which the people of the State should give a calm, thoughtful consideration, and make up their minds to go into the fight, remembering always:

"Some fall, but one must win the prize: Go strive and conquer if you can, But if you fall or if you rise, Be each, pray God, a gentleman."

THE WHIPPING POST.

High Point Enterprise.

Judge Moore took occasion to say in Greensboro, in Guilford County Superior Court, that he was in favor of the whipping post in the matter of punishment of two offenses, those being for the mistreatment or abuse imposed upon a weak and dependent woman, and for cruelty to dumb animals. The immediate occasion for such judicial utterance was in the trial of a High Point boy—a white boy—for the larceny of a team, and the subsequent brutal beating of the horse he drove. The general public will agree with Judge Moore, and it might find another to the list, if not several, but it strikes us that the application of the lash to the back of the now distinguished set of vagrants, idlers, loafers, half human parasites, or whatever else one might call them, would make a fine third selection.

First of all, of course comes the brute who would maltreat a woman—he is lowest in all the scale. Still it's somewhat with this as with many other things or changes, where it is allowed by an enactment, we believe the punishment of flogging would be found to fit so many crimes that many a cost to county and State would be spared such as today is named in food, fuel and general supplies in the county jails and along the routes of active chain-gangs. Be it a return to things behind us, or what not else, we are with Judge Moore. Bring on the whipping post. Many a man can only be touched through his back or his belly. All sensibilities seemingly center there.

Judge Parker says he is "out of politics." If I remember rightly he was never very far in.—Farmville, (Va.) Herald.

The Inevitable Race Question.

Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

For what did Lincoln emancipate, for what did Wendell Stevens enfranchise (and put black feet on white necks for a brief drunken period in the Southern States), if a row is to result in every Northern town whenever the colored brother ventures to establish himself in the same block with the white? That is the question which seeks an answer in the presence of recurring dispatches from various sections of the North telling of the indignation, the uproar, the depreciation of property and the ruin of neighborhoods, caused by the "Afro-American" invasion.

The latest agitation has been caused by the "Afro-American Realty Company's" purchase of an apartment house on West One Hundred and Fifty-first street, New York, and the display of a signboard announcing "apartments to let to colored tenants." According to the Sun, people in the block are expressing themselves very vigorously. This was not all. An excited crowd gathered in front of the house and the inevitable "rope" made its appearance.

Lincoln knew his Illinois neighbors well enough to foresee something of all this, and in his earlier periods he contended that the two races could never live together in either social or political equality. As late as 1862 he held a deputation of negroes that the colonization of their race outside of the problem. Still later, however, when he perceived in what direction the Northern current had set, he changed his mind, throwing cold water on his own excellent plan and even attributing malice toward the colored brother on the part of some of those who still regarded it with favor.

Do They Deserve it All?

Shelby Star

We notice in the papers that Marion Butler is speaking at Shelby on Tuesday, Oct. 9th, to the Cleveland county Republicans. We know our Radicals deserve a good deal of punishment, but we cannot think of any particular meanness they have been guilty of this year which justifies sending Marion Butler to speak at a speech. Every Republican ought to inquire of himself if there is no limit to the insult which the State organization gang proposes to heap upon him.
