Envy of the Barefoot Boy in Spring-Time.

W. F. Marshall in Progressive Farmer But to the fellow who has passed hopelessly out of his teens, there is hardly anything more tantalizing in all the world than the freedom of a barefoot boy in spring-time. Ah, what memories it earlis back to your mind! You know exactly how cool and clean the freshly plowed earth felt to your fiet when you dropped the corn, and how you would stretch your toes apart and let them exuit in their new free-loss from the bondage of copper-toed shoes! When a fellow grows up there's little consoyou are a barefoot boy it is a blessing for the reason that a greater expanse of your human territory may come into contact with the good red earth-or better still, the cool clear water that babbles by the alder catkins and that little mass of peppermint and calamus and pickerel weed down by the spring branch. (Branch. | track he scurried in the downpour, we say, for "brook" is an imported affection not to be endured among us.) But, of course, there are some drawbacks to going barefoot, notably when you have to go after the broomsage field that has been burned off, or have to work in the "rocky field" on the hillside. By the way, ing now, the snakes are beginning to come forth again, the lizards will soon take sun baths along the rail fences, and now that dogwoods are blooming, the cows that belong to shiftless farmers take fresh courage since it is said that no cow need starve after the dogwood blooms. The crows, moreover, are watching the sprouting corn, and it is not likely that even our friend "Rustic" can convince our women readers that have found them-to be courteous hawks were not invented by the devil for the express purpose of trying the patience of women whose vards are biddies, just from the nest. Mr. Gattis and the Seaboard Air Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Line officials. The editor of the Times Shoop's Magic Ointment. In Courtesy and Politeness He Sets Good Example for Railroad Men.

Politeness and courtesy are two of the cheapest but best investments a public official can make; they always bring results, and such results as go to make dividends for the corporations they serve. The writer witnessed an incident on one of the Seaboard trains one night not long ago emphasizing the_truth of the foregoing proposition. A well known physician was en route to Richmond with a patient for treatment. As we neared Monroe he told the writer it was absolutely necessary that he secare a lower betth for his patient on the Richmond sleeper. This could not be obtained from the local agent at Moaroe, but only from the Pullman conductor. Meeting up with lation in having big feet, but when Mr. Chas. H. Gattis, the affable and popular Traveling Passenger Agent of the Seaboard, I mentioned that my physician friend desired a lower berth. As the northbound train rolled in, the heavens opened the flood gates, and it rained in torrents. but a little thing like raindida't stop this energetic official. Down the and the wheels had scarcely ceased rolling before he had secured comfortable lower berths for the physician and his patient. That was hustling for business but it was mixed with calves or cows and have to cross a lots of old fashioned goodness of heart and courteous politeness. Nor was it wasted for this same physician who had intended returning from the "blue flags" will soon be bloom- Richmond by another route, came back the way he went, simply because he appreciated the kindness of this clever and obliging official.-Shelby Star.

That was just like Mr. Gattis-he doesn't know how to be otherwise than courteous and accommodating -it's a way he has. And while no one can excel him in the exercise of this virtue it is characteristic of Seaboard Air Line officials-as we and accommodating. Hence their popularity with the traveling public. -Henderson GOLD LEAF. The Times adds its "amen!" to

Majestic Sea Line. Wonderful Array of Batteships on

Hampton Roads. Norfolk, Va., April 30. Never yet has Norfolk of all the ports of naval rendezvous, witnessed so imposing an assemblage of war craft as now lies in the harbor between Old Point Comfort and the Exposition Grounds. Though but the advance guard of the great gathering of fleets that will be here during the Exposition, the fleet is impressive, not only for its numb rs and power, but by reason of the fact that it is wholly American. Sixteen first class battle-ships strong along a line extending three miles, with a number of secondary craft make up this stupendous array of the nation's ocean power, presenting a spectacle to stir the soul of patriotism. Other ships are daily lengthening this majestic ine, and never before have Americans been privileged to witness the power of the nation in such compact concourse. This fleet constitutes the greatest assemblage of American warships ever held. It is the great new navy on parade; the new navy with which the nation has assumed second place among the naval powers of the earth. The fleet is manned by over five hundred_officers and thirteen thousand men. Twenty abreast this splendid host of American seamen on the march would take two hours to pass a given point. The passage through this formidable line on one of the many ferry poats that ply on Norfolk harbor, will rouse the amazed interest of the dullest, and one feels that the nation can never go wrong while such ships and -uch men stand sentinels at its sea gates. There is already, a grand exposition on the waters of Hampto Roads, worth to one a trip across the continent to witness. A Narrow Escape.

G. W Cloyd, a merchant of Plunk, Mo. had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a jimson bur into his thumb. Hesays: 'The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucken's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at Melville Dorsey's drug store

Woman's Home Companion for May.

The posibility that a defunct cat should have nine ghosts probably never occurred to any writer until Ellis Parker Butler contributed his very funny short story. 'The Chromatic Ghosts of Thomas' to the May Woman's Home Companion. The story certainly will march down the aisles of fame arm in arm with "Pigs is Pigs" by the same author. Mr. Butler's story had plenty of good company. In the same number of the Woman's Home Companion are three other exceedingly clever short stories-"The Wall of the Word." by Herbert D. Ward; "The Madness of Watkins," by Henry M. Hyde; "Their innocent Diversions," by Jean Webster. Among the special articles are "The Progress of Women in the Last Fifty Years," by Charlotte Perkins Gilman; "Shopping in London," by Car-olyn Wells; "The Home Builders-Planning the House," by Charles Edward Hooper and "Europe on Two Dollars a Day," by Esther Brook. Lovers of music will be delighted with the doublepage contriution "Fragrance," a new song by Victor Herbert. Dr.Edward Everett Hale, who writes an editorial page each month, tells about a memorable visit to Mount Vernon. The department devoted to the child labor campaign cotains an important article on "Child Labor and Education in Southern Cotton Mills," by A. J. McKelway, assistant secretary of the National Child Labor Committee. Mr. McKelway reproduces an agreement made between parents and mill owners, in which the parents promise that their "children above twelve years of age shall work in the mill." Grace Margaret Gould describes the latest fads in gowns and frocks; Evelin Parsons contributes new ideas for summer needlework. and Fannie Merritt Farmer describes emergency dishes in her monthly cooking lesson. its size
