

THE GOLD LEAF

THURSDAY, NOV. 14, 1907.

In God's Acre.

Robert Loveman in Uncle Remus's Magazine for November.

The beggar and the king Sleep softly side by side, Death unto each doth bring, A grave thus deep, thus wide.

The peasant and the peer Are of a kindred clay, Resting in silent hours, After life's fitting day.

About Kissing Mother.

A father talking to his careless daughter, said: "I want to speak to you of your mother. It may be that you have noticed a careworn look upon her face. Of course it has not been brought there by any act of yours, still it is your duty to chase it away."

"I want you to get up to-morrow morning and get breakfast. When your mother comes and begins to express her surprise go right up to her and kiss her on the forehead. You can't imagine how it will brighten her dear face. Besides you owe her a kiss or two."

"A long while ago when you were a little girl she kissed you. You were not as attractive then as you are now."

"Through years of childish sunshine and shadows she was always ready to cure, by the magic of a mother's kiss, the little dirty, chubby hands whenever they were injured with those first skirmishes with the round old world."

No More Open Switches.

S. W. Clark, now employed by the Atlantic Coast Line Railway at Wilmington, has invented a device for railroad switches which he claims will lessen the wrecks due to open switches and decrease the loss of life attributed to this cause. Patents for this invention are now pending in Washington.

With the new invention an employee whose duty it is to let trains in and out of the sidings by means of the switch will be obliged to put his foot in a socket arrangement and also will be obliged to hold a lever back until the entire train passes through.

When the lever is pulled a bell rings some distance down the track, and also the danger signal, a red light, looms up as long as the switch is open. There is also an interlocking system which works with the movements of the switch, throwing up an attachment in the track, and also a device which hangs from the center of the tender. In case the engineer should take no warning of the danger signal, this device would prevent visitors by cutting the couplings and stopping his train in fifty yards.

The New Pure Food and Drug Law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and Drug Law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold at Parker's Two Drug Stores.

The Futurs of the Airship.

"It may be true, but it is none the less true," says William A. Baldwin, the celebrated aeronaut, in Recreation for November. "To say of the airship as we have so often said of the bicycle and the automobile, it has come to stay. What has been done in the United States in the last year alone is enough to convince me that practical navigation of the air has arrived."

"Some idea of how important a position aeronautics occupy in the world today may be gained by following the press of the world. Hardly a day passes that does not record a flight in some part of the world, government experiments to perfect the airship for purposes of war, the organization and practical exhibition of clubs of amateur aeronauts of the feasibility of this subject for sport, and so on indefinitely. Walter Wellman's ill-timed and consequently unsuccessful attempt to accomplish the long sought discovery of the North Pole through the medium of an airship is but another evidence of the importance of the subject. His airship worked splendidly, but gale and driving snow storms rendered the expedition impracticable. The Sunday papers of this country, as well as our magazines and the papers of all Europe are filled with accounts of the progress already attained or that may reasonably be anticipated. What effect the invention of the airship as an engine of destruction will have on modern warfare is already made the subject of international discussion. The Hague Conference, made up of profound scholars and leading statesmen from nearly all civilized nations, has taken up the question of warfare in space, and alive to its illimitable possibilities, has drafted rules governing the uses to which military balloons, aeroplanes and like navigators of the air shall be put, as follows: That only dirigible balloons, manned by trained military aviators, be used, and that the dropping of explosives from the skies onto defenseless cities and the discharge of death-dealing gases, except over ports and military camps be prohibited."

Dancing Proves Fatal.

Many men and women catch colds at dances which terminate in pneumonia and consumption. After exposure, if Foley's Honey and Tar is taken it will break up a cold and no serious results need be feared. Refuse any but the genuine yellow package. Sold at Parker's Two Drug Stores.

There is no better place to show one's breeding than riding in a railroad train in the late fall. Some passengers are thoughtful of all those about them, while others open their windows, with no regard whatever for the discomfort of those behind them. It is a great thing to be a gentleman, especially on a crowded train.—Thomasville Charity and Children.

When the Stomach, Heart or Kidney nerves get weak, then the new organs always fail. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That is simply a makeshift. Bring the Roses Back to Your Sweetheart's Check.

The following appeared recently in the Progressive Farmer over the signature of some gentleman in Ireland county, who evidently has taken a sensible view of things:

"Strange to say, but 1999 years ago the most exquisite punishment and excruciating pain which could be studied out by the minds of men and devils combined, was evidently devised to wear their heads and cause water to drip on them, one drop at a time. Not fast mind you, but just drip—drip—drip—drip incessantly, day and night until it became the most intense torture imaginable. Yes, it amounted to what modern people call the 'impossible.' Twasn't so but for awhile at the start, but it invariably wound up in insanity of the most raging, raving type."

Now history is repeating itself and great grades of us old mossy-backed farmers with scales over our eyes as thick as walnut hulls are subjecting our wives to a similar torture to that employed by our benighted grand-daddies in punishing their prisoners.

"They cook the breakfast New Year's morning. They wash the dishes and tidy up the house. They cook the supper, wash the dishes and tidy up the house. Next day the same thing is done. Three times a day three hundred and sixty five days a year, the old monotonous routine of drip—drip—drip. Is it any wonder that the insane asylum shows such a preponderating per cent. of farmers' wives among their inmates? Charlotte we be ashamed of our miserable, thoughtless selves? We get change. Our work is varied. We get a day off now then and rest Sunday, but those faithful, tireless, uncomplaining wives of ours go from year to year without a day's respite from care and worry."

Agriculture and Jamestown.

William H. Stone in Southern Farm Magazine of Baltimore for November.

The leading exhibit feature of the Jamestown Exposition is the magnificent display of agricultural, horticultural and other products and resources as shown in the States Exhibit Palace. Here, as in the other important features of the Exposition, the Southern States predominate, and the showing made is thoroughly characteristic and representative of the products of Southern farms. In nearly every case the exhibits of each State have been made under the direct supervision of the State department of agriculture, which, being thoroughly familiar with their resources, have collected and arranged their respective displays in a manner that is fully exhaustive; in fact, so systematically and comprehensively have these exhibits been exploited that visitors can readily ascertain the leading agricultural and horticultural products of each State and the possibilities and opportunities which are available either for investment or settlement. And then, too, there are the various departments of agriculture who are fully posted as to their resources and can answer intelligently and convincingly all questions of those interested.

There are no agricultural or horticultural exhibits made here by the States of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas, and these would not have been represented in any way had not the railroads which pass through them included these resources in their exhibits. In addition with the exception of Texas these have been brought out in a limited but generally representative way. Farm products form a leading feature of the railroad exhibits, and from Maryland to Florida and Louisiana are shown the wonderful agricultural possibilities which abound along their several lines, and these are strongly reinforced by the character of specimens on exhibition. The exhibits of the several States and railroads along the lines of agriculture and horticulture are doing a most excellent work for the South and are better acquainting not only its own people with their wonderful resources, but also the many visitors from the North and West, who eyes are being opened to the splendid advantages possible in all sections of the South, where the labor given to the cultivation of the farms is rewarded by bountiful harvests, insuring good living and competence. In many respects, the exhibits being received at the exhibits there is every reason for the South to look for many broad and beneficial results from its showing made at the Jamestown Exposition.

Love the Flag! Honor the Flag!

Joe Mitchell Chapter in "Affairs at Washington," in National Magazine for October.

A most touching incident recently occurred at a graduation exercise in New York City. The little daughter of a foreigner, in passing, caught the edge of an American flag held by a schoolmate, and, believing herself misobserved, gently raised it to her lips. This incident has awakened the country to the most eloquent Fourth of July oration delivered this season; it shows very clearly how needless is the alarm of those who are so solicitous about the patriotism of thousands of our new citizens crowding to these shores. In fact, in the breast of most of these adopted citizens lies latent a patriotism such as was expressed in our revolutionary fathers, but which, in the swiftly-moving generations that have succeeded has faded to almost a shadow of its former self.

That little girl manifested her deep love for the emblem, the meaning of which had no doubt been taught by her parents; and when she paused to kiss the Stars and Stripes she simply showed that she had the courage to express a feeling which an American child is too apt to be backward in showing. Love the flag! Honor the flag! We can learn a lesson from the little girl who was so eager to greet the emblem of democracy and freedom.

He Fought at Gettysburg. David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., who lost a foot at Gettysburg, writes: Electric Bitters have done me more good than any medicine I ever took. For several years I had stomach trouble, and paid out much money for medicine to little purpose, until I began taking Electric Bitters. I would not take $500 for what they have done for me. Grand tonic for the aged and for female weakness. Great alterative and body builder; sure cure for lame back and weak kidneys. Guaranteed by Melville Dorsey, Druggist, 50c.

Jamestown Exposition.

Closing Days of the Big Show Will be Made Memorable—Special Events to be Celebrated From Now On, Ending in a Glorious Week of Carnival.

Jamestown Exposition, Va., Nov. 9th, 1907.

The closing days of Jamestown Exposition are to be made memorable by a gigantic entertainment of citizens of Virginia and North Carolina. Already a number of towns and counties in both States have arranged to observe special days at the Exposition, and others are discussing plans to celebrate. The most important of these participants in exercises at the Exposition, will again be the great feature of the occasion on Raleigh Day.

Soon the great battleship fleet of 16 warships, which is to make its way to the Pacific coast will assemble at Hampton Roads, and remain there until after the Exposition is over. The Exposition is to close with a week of Carnival and a great show of Chrysanthemums and other flowers.

Virginia will celebrate Eastern Shore Day and Princess Anne County Day on November 15th. Smithfield and Nansemond, Southampton and Isle of Wight counties will observe November 15th. Portsmouth Day is also being arranged, but no date has yet been assigned.

Albemarle county Day, November 15, is to be a great day for North Carolina at the Exposition. Charlotte will observe November 19. Raleigh Day had originally been set for November 25th. The coincidence of Governor Glenn may cause a change in this date.

Evacuation Day, November 25, is to be made the occasion of patriotic exercises conducted by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association. The United Daughters of the Confederacy assemble in National Convention on November 18 and remain in session until November 16.

Governor Glenn expects and is anxious to take part in the celebration of Raleigh Day. Raleigh Day was originally set for November 25, but engagement to speak in Western North Carolina on November 25, causes doubt in the mind of the chief magistrate of his ability to be at the Exposition on the following day. He is therefore anxious for postponement. Governor Glenn suggests November 30 a fitting opportunity to honor the memory of Sir Walter Raleigh and in which the city of Raleigh should significantly participate.

The City of Raleigh has shown great interest in the coming event. Mayor James I. Johnson, will either be present or represented by high officials of the city. The Chamber of Commerce has put itself behind the movement and is arranging a program. Col Charles E. Johnson, a prominent banker, president of the Chamber, is one of the greatest promoters of the day.

The Chamber of Commerce has selected a distinguished Raleigh lawyer, S. F. Smith, as its orator. Charlotte, N. C., is to celebrate a day at Jamestown Exposition, probably November 19. Mayor Franklin, to whom this date has been suggested, will present the matter to the city council of Charlotte, tonight, when a decision will be made. The Greater Charlotte Club, the business organization of the city, which is promoting the expansion of municipality, is displaying much interest in the occasion, and expects to procure by this means, much valuable advertising calculated to serve the interest of Charlotte.

Strong sentiment prevails throughout North Carolina for the continuance of the Jamestown Exposition next year. Governor Glenn is one who highly approves of another season for the great show.

In discussing the proposed continuance of the Exposition Gov. Glenn expressed the sentiment that it is so beautiful in its completed condition that every person who sees it now is delighted, and its continuance would give many others an opportunity to see and enjoy it next year.

"I am deeply interested in the Exposition," says Gov. Glenn, "and regard it as the most beautiful exposition, in many respects, that the country has ever had. And aside from its other attractions the great historical feature it represents makes it the most interesting of all exhibitions."

North Carolina has all along manifested deep interest in the Exposition. A great proportion of attendance at the show has been from natives of that State. That interest continues. In general discussion of the situation with city and town officials and prominent business men, the desire that the show should remain over another season is not only general, but it is positively expressed. That so magnificent an Exposition, which has had so short a life since actual completion, should be allowed to end now, when it could give so many millions who have not seen it, the delight that they would seek, seems deplorable, according to North Carolina sentiment.

Make Growth, Not Wealth, Your Goal.

Success Magazine. The youth who starts out in life with wealth as his ideal is a fore-doomed failure. If you would succeed, let growth, expansion of mind and heart, and wealth of character, not money getting be your aim.

Be as large a man as you can make yourself. Broaden your sympathies by taking an interest in other things than those which concern your immediate business. A knowledge of the great world-movements, active sympathy with all efforts directed toward progress and the betterment of mankind, and the cultivation of the finer side of your nature—fostering the love of music, art and literature—will not only enlarge your vision, but will also increase a hundred-fold your enjoyment of life and your value to society. Do not allow your self to become self-centered. Give some of your energies to securing better conditions for those less fortunately circumstanced than yourself. Interest yourself in politics. Go to the primaries. Remember that you are, first of all, a man, and then a citizen, and that making a life is man's first duty.

Keep your manhood always in view. Never do anything that will throw discredit upon it, and success will mean far more to you than mere money-getting. You will find that culture, the development of your aesthetic nature, will enrich you more than the accumulation of dollars.

If you attain to true manhood; if you have developed along the lines of your higher life; if you have kept growing through all the years, no matter whether you have accumulated wealth or not, you are successful. If, on the other hand, you have not kept growing; if you have starved your mind in order to fatten your pocketbook; if you have strangled your sympathies, your interest in the welfare of others, for the sake of increasing your business; if you have neglected your friendships, ignored the claims of those dependent upon you, or who have helped to make your business successful; or if you have been stingy, hard, and exacting, while you have been accumulating your money, you have failed, though you may have made millions.
