Death of Mrs. Averett.

Friends of Miss Emma Averett will sympathize with her in the death of ier mother, Mrs. Celestia Averett, which occurred recently at Chase City, Va. She had been an invalid a long time and was a great sufferer during the latter years of her life. Mrs. Averett formerly lived in Henderson and had many acquaintances and friends here. She was the widow of the late Prof. J. J. Averett of Danville, Va., a well known and successful educator, who died several years ago. Some time after the death of her husband Mrs. Averett came to Henderson to live with her daughter, Miss Emma Averett, and they made this their home until their removal to Chase City. Mrs. Averett was a woman of strong personality and beautiful Christian character and endeared herself to all who knew her. Interment was made at Houston. Va., the body being laid to rest beside loved ones who had preceded her to the grave.

About Fiddles and Fiddlers.

In the last issue of the Marshville Our Home, whose editor is a level headed thinker and a good writer on most subjects whether he knows anything about music or not, says this under the above heading. And in view of the Old Time Fiddlers' convention pulled off here Tuesday night, Editor Green's observations on fiddles and fiddlers will not be without local interest:

It is a well known fact among fiddlers that a fiddle properly cared for improves she have less than 9. The panic is a thing of the past in this community, except with the fellow who is going around with a pocket full of money and giving his creditors the high dodge, as he thinks, by talking hard times. But creditors have spotted all such cattle and may have an opportunity in the future to remind them of their meanness. Some of these fellows could make Ananias ashamed of himself when it comes to formulating an excuse for not paying their bills.-Waxhaw Enterprise And this class of people is not confined to Waxhaw or any other community. They are to be found in Henderson as well as other places. But while they may evade and defer paying their honest debts they do not fool any one. There will be a turn in the lane and a day of accounting will come after awhile. Then the man who has been unjustly kept out of his money may decline to extend further accommodations. To travel to foreign lands at a trifling cost; to see the strange cities and countries you have most longed to see; these are some of the pleasures invariably derived from Lyman H. Howe's moving pictures to be seen at the Grand Theatre on next Monday night, Feb. 10th. Nothing short of actual and expensive travel of which Mr. Howe's exhibition is the only substitute, could be more fascinating or instructive. The new program informs everyone in the fullest degree of our great yesterday and greater today at home and abroad. At the same time it affords much wholesome amusement and interprets current his tory. No other exhibition puts the world before you as this does, for none compares with it in any detail. Grave and gay, light and serious, the entire program is as varied as human character. Every picture accompanied by natand clearly, that a "lecture" is entirely unnecessary. In this respect Mr. Howe's exhibition surpasses all others. Vocal and mechanical imitations combined with the acme of skill, ingenuity and science makes the whole program eminently unique. Not only is it unsur-passed, but it is unequalled. It is the something which characterizes Mr. How's exhibition above all others. It has had legions of imitators, who like imitators of anything else have failed in duplicating the subtle and refreshing charm of the original.

Love Finds a Way.

Young People Defy Parental Objection, Hie Themselves to Henderson and Get Married-Mr. Frank Vaughan Contracting Parties. A marriage is always an interestfair it excites keener interest perhaps.

And so when a buggy containing a young lady and gentleman stopped near the Methodist parsonage Sunday morning and enquiry was made for the minister, it was not long before their mission was ascertained. The young man was Mr. Frank Vaughan of Oxford, and the young lady Miss Bennie Lassiter of Epsom. Services at the Methodist church not altogether the men living within were not concluded and the young a certain number of miles from it folks were invited into the home of that make the town. the editor of the GOLD LEAF who at once interested himself to see that the course of true love ran smooth as far as he could make it so in aiding them to carry out the desire of their hearts. Finding that the marriage license had been procured the next thing was a thousand other inventions that are to get the minister. Both were anxions that this be done as speedily as possible. Explanation being made why the Methodist congregation would be held longer than usual it was suggested that the Presbyterian was seen and expressed a willingness to perform the ceremony. Then it occurred to him that he had no license as a minister in this State, having but recently come to North dained and licensed minister in Virginia, perhaps under the circumstances it would not be regular for him to marry a couple in North Carolina.

A lawyer was consulted by phone. He was not positive and had no authority at hand to consult. He was inclined to give a negative opinion and as there was an element of doubt to be on the safe side Mr. McClure would not officiate.

Services at the Methodist church being over Rev. R. C. Craven was communicated with. Certainly he would aid in any good work and he went along at once. It having been learned that the or abroad.

marriage was to take place quite a number of persons from both the Presbyterian and Methodist churches had gone over to witness it. Mrs. Manning hurriedly improvised things after she had gotten home and when Mr Craven arrived everything was in readiness. Mr. Andrew J. Davis and Miss Rebecca Watkins, and Mr. Sam Watkins, Jr., and Miss Marie Manning were the attending couples the bridal party entering from the parlor into the large hall room where the officiating minister and the assembled company awaited them. The words that made the twain one according to the holy ordinance of matrimony were beatifully and solemnly pronounced after which introductions were made and cogratulations offered the happy young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan left on the 2:15 train for Oxford their future home. The bride is a daughter of Mr Thomas W. Lassiter a well known citizen and successful farmer of the Epsom neighborhood, and is a pretty and attractive young lady who is much admired by a wide circle of acquaintances. Mr. Vaughn is an industrious and valued employe of the buggy factory in Oxford and is highly regarded by those who know him.

Objection to the marriage was on account of the young lady's age, she being only 17. In the marriage liense her age was given as 18, Mr. Vanghans, as 22. In the part the writer played in this little affair he was celebrating the 20th anniversary of his own surrender to the wiles of Cupid. It was on Thursday, February 2nd, 1888, that he "suffered" the transition from bachelor to benedict, and recalling his own experience and how he wanted somebody to stand by him since been the friend and helper of the fellow about to be married.

The trade territory of a town is not all depending upon the distance and Miss Bennie Lassiter the to neighboring trading points. The territory depends upon the enterprise of the merchants and the residents of the town. If a town does ing event and if it is a runaway all not reach after the trade it will come only as fast as it has to, and grow as it is forced. But if the merchants go after business in the surrounding country, advertising in every possible way, and making good every word of their advertising, trade will come from an ever increasing radius, the town will gain a reputation for being awake and it will forge to the front. The World at Large. What was wonderful a few years ago is now a matter of course. The electric light, telephone, trolly car, automobilenow so commonplace to us, would transfix our great-grandfathers with amazement. The march of improvement today is more rapid than ever-so rapid that it is hardly possible to keep in touch with it, unless, through the medium of the most wonderful invention of all-the minister be called in, as the young reproduction of the motion as well as lady had no special preference as to form of life. It is this marvelous medium denomination. Rev. J. A. McClure | that enables Lyman H. Howe to transport the million spectators that annually attend his exhibitions to all parts of the world.

His new program, more than ever, i the only true equivalent of actual travel. So true to nature-to things as they are -to events as they happened-is Mr. Howe's new program, that every spec tator of it seems to go along with this experienced, enthusiastic globe-trotter, and enjoy the same delights of the journey (but without its discomforts,) views the impressive scenes and curious places as if with his own eyes, and mingles with the motley throngs as if in person. The fruits of many months of labor and planning and of many years of experience are condensed in the program which will be shown in Henderssn at the Grand Theatre, next Monday night, Feb. 10th It visualizes this great, big, fascinating world of ours, more clarly and strongly than any program Mr. Howe has hither to exhibited. It abounds with beauty instruction and entertainment more than any other exhibition of its kind at home

Old Time Fiddlers.

They Met and Held Carnival of Music at the Grand Theatre Tuesday Night-One of the Best Entertainments a Henderson Audience Has Enjoyed in a Long Time.

The Old Time Fiddlers' convention

Tuesday night was up to expectation in the entertainment provided.

There was a good number of participants and while the majority of them were young or middle aged men they made old time music. There was not a violinist among themthey were all fiddlers. And the way they fiddled was a sight. There was no straining after effect-no regard for method, or technique, or phrasing-none of your modern style of music or playing-but placing the fiddle half way between the chin and elbow, and grasping the bow six or eight inches from the end they went right down after it in the good old style of playing as our daddies used to do. The correct position of course was to stretch one leg out in advance of the other, with the head thrown back at an angle of 45 degrees, and pat the nigh foot as a sort of accompaniment. There was something of main strength and awkyardness perhaps as compared with your fastidious violinist, but the music was all right-it had life and vitality about it-the power to stir and enthuse and make one feel young and loose-jointed again. The audience could not keep still. There was almost a riot of noise, foot patting and moving of lion. bodies even among the most dignified and orderly persons in the audience.

The performance was greatly enoved no little amusement being aforded along with the music. Mr. J. M. Smith, fiddler, and Mr. M. D Hester, dancer, were the comedians of the convention and they afforded no end of fun by their work. Mr. Smith stands in a class by himself as a fiddler. He has no equal-nor can any one imitate him. Mind you we do not say he is the best, but he is al right-in his way. The convention was held under th auspices of Messrs. Whitaker & Rotan, who are at the head of the enterprise in this State, Prof. C. Z. Whitaker being here to conduct the sisted by Messrs. W. M. Knott, M. C. Hill and G. C.
