Making Good.

There is no way of making lasting friends like "Making Good;" and Doctor Pierce's medicines well exemplify this, and their friends, after more than two decades of popularity, are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. They have "made good" and they have not made

A good, honest, square-deal medicine of known composition is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It still enjoys an immense sale, while most of the preparations that have come into prominence in the earlier period of its popularity have "gone by the board" and are never more heard of. There must be some reason for this long-time popularity and that is to be found in its superior merits. When once given a fair trial for weak stomach, or for liver and blood affections, its superior curative qualities are soon manifest; hence it has survived and grown in popular favor, while scores of less meritorious articles have suddenly flashed into favor for a brief period and then been as soon

Mr. Zach McGhee, the Washington correspondent of the Charlotte Observer, hadthe following interesting special in that paper recently, relative to the forthcoming novel of Mr. R. L. Durham, of Charlotte:

Senator Tillman, President Roosevelt, the Booker Washington luncheon at the White House and a purely imaginary South Carolina newspaper man, together with some interesting South Carolina and national polities, form the basis of a thrilling novel, whose theme is the race question, is being published by L. C. Page & Co., of Boston. The book which is named "The Call of the South" is written by Robert Lee Durham, now an attorney at Charlotte, but who lived for several years at Spartanburg. Advanced copies have been received in Washington and are beginning to create a sensation. Tillman is not specially a prominent figure in the book. The name given to him is "Killam" and his identity is unmis-

Mr. Durham shows a power of description and of dramatic presentation truly wonderful, and in artistic finish his book beyond question surpasses anything yet written on the race question. He does not present a succession of the incoherent thrills so noticeable even to the non-critical reader of Tom Dixon's melodramas; It is one artistic sensation. It is also free from the sectional bias, so characteristic of writers on that subject, while at the same time it presents in the Southern white man's views of the matter of social equality of the

It is being recalled in connection with this book that Mr. Durham, who is a trhstee of Trinity College, North Carolina, was one of those who voted against the expulsion of Prof. John Spencer Bassett who made some extravagant and quite ridiculous remarks about the superlative great-ness of Booker Washington. Congressman Thomas Speaks of the State's Great Development.—Eastern Carolina One Huge Truck Garden.

During the consideration of a bill efore the National House of Representatives several days ago, to pay certain claims for stores and supplies taken by the Federal army in the South during the Civil War, Hon. Charles R. Thomas, Representative from this district, submitted some interesting remarks relative to North Carolina's growth and progress in population, agriculture, manufactures and general development in the last decade. After referring to the glorious history of the State, and of some of the great men she has produced, Congressman Thomas spoke as follows a Washington correspondent whom the governor of South Carolina appoints to an unexpired to the control of the c of agriculture in North Caeolina, with "Having every variety of soil as well as climate, the crops of the State are diversified and numerous. It is a land of corn and wine, of grape and fig, of sunshine and flowers, and produces all the staple crops-corn and cotton, wheat, oats, rye, barley. Perhaps the greatest progress of the State, however, agriculturally, has been in the raising of tobacco and the progress made in the cultivation of tion, so far as the raising of truck gardens of the country, and in my Congsessional District in the territory around New Berne, my home, and in the territory lying along the Atlantic Coast Line Railway from Goldsboro to Wilmington, the sums of money annually realized from the early truck crop run into millions, and the output is more readily computed in hundreds of carloads than in any

"A traveler along the line of the Norfolk & Southern Railroad and the Atlantic Coast Line in eastern North Carolina during the trucking season, in my Congressional District, will see a landscape which appears one huge truck garden. Everything that a fertile soil and kindly climate will produce is grown in eastern North Carolina. Every variety of early vegetable and fruit is produced. and every variety almost is a money-maker. No section of the United States has made greater progress within the last ten years in truck farming than eastern North Carolina. Men have made fortunes in raising asparagus, lettuce, strawberries, and other early vegetables and fruit. The strawberry crop in the counties along the Atlantic Coast Line from Goldsboro to Wilmington, in Wayne, Duplin, Pender and other counties, is worth millions of dollars annually. About the towns of Mount Olive and Faison the most powerful way yet presented the Southern white man's views of the Atlantic Coast Line, the strawthe soil there and all along the line of this railway has been found to be well adapted for the production of the finest fruit. The first really fine berries sent north are from this section of North Carolina. Of course, earlier in the season strawberries come from Florida and from other more southern sections, but there are none of them equal in quality to those produced in the counties of Pender, Ouplin, and Wayne, in North Caro-ina. A thousand bushels per acre is a com-mon crop of cucumbers, and the North Carolina asparagus is a standard article in the northern markets. Besides every variety of early vegeta-bles and fruits, including the strawberry crop, eastern North Carolina, of course, produces also the staple crops of cotton and corn.
