A Bold Step.
 To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of out-of-date medicines for domestic use, and so has published a broad-cast and openly to the world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicine. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed all suspicion from among secret users of his medicine, by showing them the formulas of the same. He has shown that his medicine is not made up of subject matter to the public.

The Loss of A Choice Old Man.
 Charlotte News.

The pioneers of the great city in which we live, and which is so rapidly growing, are passing away. That is the one sad feature of the growth of greater Charlotte. If we could we would keep the fine old men who laid the foundations for our present development always with us, that they might see their visions being fulfilled, even beyond what they had dreamed. But this cannot be.

Erroneous Idea About the Suffrage Amendment.
 Pittsburg Record.

There is a very general erroneous idea as to the time when a voter cannot take advantage of the "grandfather" clause of our suffrage amendment. Nearly every body thinks that a white youth who wishes to register and vote at the next election, must be able to read and write any section of the Constitution in the English language, and that the "grandfather" clause will not enable him to register, as heretofore. This is a mistake, who heretofore could register under the "grandfather" clause can still do so until the first day of next December, which of course is after the November election. The common idea is that the provision as to the "grandfather" clause expires in 1908, and so it does, but not until December 1st.

The Democratic Party and the Confederate Soldier.
 Statesville Landmark.

The Greensboro Industrial News is much disturbed because Ashley Horne, W. P. Roberts and W. P. Wood, all Confederate soldiers, failed of preference at the Democratic State convention, and says this was the common lot of every soldier who submitted his fate to that convention. Dr. Dixon and Major Graham, nominated for State Auditor and Corporation Commissioner, respectively, are Confederate soldiers of note.

Here's a Man.
 Chattanooga Times.

We have on various occasions cheerfully attested the popular admiration for Aycock by the people of North Carolina because of his great ability, his fidelity to his convictions of right, and a certain quality rendering him somewhat eccentric among public men at the front during the past few years, namely a sane and orderly conservatism in thought and action. This estimate of him must be accentuated since the recent State convention at Charlotte, at which the candidate for Governor whose cause he advocated was defeated. Instead of pointing, showing resentment or seeking to modify the verdict of the majority of his fellow Democrats, he declared that "while the resentments and bitterness created during the struggle may rankle in our hearts for some time, we will take and transfer them to a powerful argument and force against the economic enemy, the Republican party, and its policies." That was said like a man and after he had moved to make the nomination of the man he opposed unanimous. Mr. Aycock will be heard from again in the councils of his party because he is constructive and a builder-up. He is not tearing down, demoralizing or destroying. He fights today but is for peace when the people speak, under his own flag, if possible, but for peace.

Debt and Getting Money.
 The following from the Yorkville (S. C.) Enquirer is worthy a place in our scrap-book.

The most satisfactory way of getting rid of a debt is to pay it. The best way of keeping out of debt is to buy nothing on credit that can be dispensed with.

The man who contracts a debt in the absence of a definite idea as to how he is going to pay it, is very dishonest or very foolish.

There are men who think it smart to get the money of their fellowmen under pretense of a loan to be repaid; but there are other men who think this practice very criminal.

The suspected sneak thief stands pretty low in the estimation of honest people; but he stands several points higher than the known debtor who continues to use money for his own pleasure and enjoyment while his fellowmen are suffering from the consequences of his dishonesty.

Of the people who hold that the world owes them a living, some understand that the living is to be secured through honest work; some think that they are justified in resorting to burglary, sneak thieving and highway robbery; others more contemptible and cowardly than the last named class, prefer to resort to the practice of betraying the confidence of unsuspecting fellowmen.

The sneak thief and the robber can be reached by law, when they are caught; but the fellow who depends upon getting that which he does not intend to return is safe from every form of punishment except the well-merited contempt of honest men.

The servile beggar is far better than the man who borrows with the deliberate purpose of swindling; or contracts a debt that he will not pay.
