Paris Cotton Congress.

Report on the Fifth International Congress of the Master Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers Association Which Met at Paris Last Summer, Read by Mr. D. Y. Cooper Before the Convention of American Cotton Manufacturers' Association in Richmond, Va., May 25-26—Some Matters of Importance to Cotton Growers, Factors and Manufacturers Pointed Out.

The following report on the International Cotton Congress at Paris June 1, 2 and 3, 1908, was read by Mr. D. Y. Cooper of Henderson, before the convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association in Richmond, Va., 25-26. It will be read with interest and profit we are sure for the information it contains and the vital bearing it has upon the cotton industry of the South:

As delegate from this association I attended the Fifth International Congress of the Master Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers Association, at Paris, June 1, 2 and 3, 1908, with William D'Olier, of Philadelphia, and W. R. Meadows, of Mississippi Agricultural College. James R. MacColl, of Pawtucket, represented the national association. It was regretted that the Southern Cotton Association was not represented. The attendance of American manufacturers and representatives was small. This, however, did not make us less enthusiastic. We were received cordially by our brethren across the water and treated most courteously during our stay among them. Every facility was afforded us to attend their meetings and hear the reports, discussions, etc., and general intercourse with the members from the different nationalities.

The Congress was organized June 1, at 9:30 A. M., with Casimer Berger, president, in the chair. After the usual addresses of welcome and responses were made the Congress began business, with an attendance of about 500 manufacturers from 15 countries. This association, which is so compactly organized throughout Europe, represents to-day approximately 85,000,000 spindles in Europe of the 135,000,000 of the world. It was formed for the purpose of considering labor disputes, wages, fire insurance, transportation rates, tax assessments, purchasing cotton and other supplies, curtailment of and increase production when necessary, and all other questions that would be of interest and profit to the members.

Visit to America.—A large number of representatives from this association visited the United States and the South, October, 1907. They held at Atlanta, Ga., their most important congress with the cotton growers, spinners and manufacturers. In their reports it was pleasing to note expressions of their appreciation of the kindly and courteous manner in which they were received and treated everywhere.

Report of Cotton Growers.—The reports from members who attended the Atlanta Congress from different nations were very interesting and exhaustive. The mass of accurate and detailed information that they gathered was surprising, possibly the fullest and most detailed reports that have been made upon this subject. These embraced the whole situation: Modes of farming, experiments, planting, cultivating, handling the crop, ginning, compress, forwarding and shipping, cost of production, and sale of cotton. Also cotton by-products, cotton seed, hulls, cotton seed meal, oil, cakes, extraction and refining of oil. In fact, their analysis covered the cotton crop and its by-products in a most comprehensive manner, and will prove valuable to those who wish to know the conditions that surround the Southern farmer and the growth of one of the most valuable and important crops on earth. The cotton field was new to them. It was amusing at times to hear the impression made upon their minds when they visited the fields and saw the cotton growing. They solved many questions satisfactorily to themselves, but were rather surprised that the actual cost of production of cotton could not be given accurately. The explanation that climate conditions entered so largely into the yield and cost of production was not satisfactory.

Evils.—Reports of the visiting members criticized the careless methods with which our cotton is baled and handled. They show many photographs of our bales, some taken at Liverpool on arrival and others at the mills, in comparison with the baled cotton from India and other sections. The American bale shows badly by comparison. They are strong in their condemnation that so valuable a product should be handled in such a careless and wasteful manner. They complain of poor baling, heavy tare, damage, damp and waste, and could not understand why it was necessary to patch the sample cut in the bale with a piece of bagging, 2x3 feet, weighing from three to eight pounds. There is no reason or justice in loading 25 to 30 pounds of tare on each bale in addition to the usual damp and country damage, involving millions in loss and waste. They have the erroneous impression that the planters are responsible for the evils, and that their organizations are purely for the purpose of advancing the price of cotton. The facts are, planters sell cotton net weight, with about 21 pounds tare, or sell in seed. The ginners and compressers seem to be the offenders. They are making concentrated efforts to grow cotton throughout Europe and their colonies. They are backed by their governments with subsidies, extensive railway schemes which have been granted in Africa and other cotton growing colonies, also by the British Cotton Growing Association. They emphasize with much interest the growing of cotton in the English, French, German and other colonies. Some express the optimistic belief that the cotton country of the future is yet to be opened up. That West Africa alone will within ten or twenty years be able, granted, of course, that the necessary railroads be constructed, to supply 10,000,000 bales of cotton annually, and at the same time provide the natives with remunerative employment. The German spinners are engaged in cotton growing to some extent.

The English manufacturers seem the most aggressive in insisting that their colonies shall extend and increase the cultivation of cotton, that while the price is high it will be much easier to stimulate its growth, stating that they are dependent for something like 75 per cent. of their requirements on American cotton. They are not willing from a business standpoint, to be dependent on one country for so large a percentage of their supply of this important material, especially when taken into consideration the continued increasing demands and competition of American manufacturers and generally prosperous conditions. It is estimated that the increase in consumption of cotton is 500,000 bales per annum, which will take 1,000,000 acres. It is an open question whether this increase can be counted upon for a period of years. If so, other sources of supply must be developed or the raw cotton supply may become insufficient for the world's requirements. The question was frequently asked why we produced only 12,500,000 bales from 32,000,000 acres. This interesting inquiry at once suggested that in future the Southern States would be looked to for increased supplies. The Southern States, without boasting of a monopoly, can, at a fair price, with sufficient labor and a more intensive system of farming, produce sufficient cotton for the requirements of the world's consumption. They can make the cotton if prices are remunerative. Why not see that their cotton is delivered in proper and satisfactory shape? By adopting this method they would nullify to some extent these colonial schemes.

The cotton states should establish a standard bale by statute, and require that all cotton sold from these states should conform. The association of farmers, ginners, compressers and manufacturers, should combine and insist that the evils complained of should be eradicated, that the Southern cotton interest be put on a business-like basis. This association might initiate a movement, formulate plans, submit them to those interested for their consideration. The prejudice and suspicion existing between these different interests would be largely eliminated by a full and frank discussion. Sooner or later the population of the world will be clothed, and cotton being the best fiber for the purpose, the production of the Southern States will be taxed to its utmost. We are to-day suffering from under-consumption rather than over-production of manufactured goods. The question of supply and demand alone can regulate this condition.

Insurance.—Their methods are some different from ours, in the main more expensive. The English largely patronize the mutual system. These seem to be the most satisfactory and cheaper. Continental manufacturers are at variance among themselves as to what are the best and cheapest methods of mill insurance. This question was pretty thoroughly thrashed out by the members from different nations without coming to any final conclusion. It developed in these discussions that in Germany the majority of mills was not protected by the sprinklers, yet fires are few. The consensus of opinion was that the American mill fire insurance came nearer the ideal and should be adopted as far as possible.

Cotton exchange methods, buying and selling futures, we discussed pro and con, developing as many friends as opponents. This went over without final action. A scheme was suggested to organize an international conference to be composed of growers, ginners, compressers and manufacturers. It was conceded that an organization of this kind would be mutually beneficial to all parties interested in the growth, handling and manufacturing of cotton and would strengthen respective associations and eliminate much prejudice and intolerance that now exists between respective interests and establish closer trade relations between all nations.

Mill building and expansions were discussed. The continental manufacturers were emphatic in their opinions that the congress should regulate the question of mill expansion and limit the same. Their English brethren objected, but admitted that they had expanded too much and were insisting on running short time, while continental spinners insisted that they should be permitted to run and consume the stock of cotton on hand to fill their orders. A suggestion was discussed that each country should levy a tax on all bales imported from countries other than their own colonies. This fund should be used to aid their farmers to increase the growth of cotton. The warehousing of cotton in the Southern States was commended and approved. Resolutions were also passed to buy net weights without franchise, that 50,000 pounds should constitute 100 bales, and not buy by bales. This resolution was adopted to take effect so soon as accepted by their exchanges.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a Stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these failing inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these failing organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and see. Sold by all dealers.

Manning Appointed.

Durham Man Succeeds Judge Connor on the Supreme Court Bench to Fill Out Unexpired Term—Was Nominated for Superior Court Judge in 1896, But With Rest of Democratic Ticket Was Defeated—an Able Member of the Bar Who Has Represented His County in the House and Senate With Ability—Appointment was Expected and is Generally Regarded a Good One.

News and Observer, 3rd.

Hon. James Smith Manning, of Durham, one of the State's leading attorneys, was yesterday morning commissioned by Goveror W. W. Kitchin to become an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina to fill the vacancy in that court caused by the resignation of Associate Justice Henry G. Connor, who becomes the United States Judge of the Eastern District of North Carolina by President's Taft's appointment.

The commission was made out yesterday morning and was sent to the new judge at Durham. The announcement of the selection of Mr. Manning created no surprise, for his appointment was expected immediately that Governor Kitchin received Judge Connor's resignation, which came to his office on Monday while he was away in Asheville, as the Governor had given out that immediately he received the resignation the appointment.

Mr. Manning is fifty years of age, a man of the highest character, held in esteem throughoot the State, and with an experience of twenty-six years at the bar. He is a son of the late Hon. John Manning, one of the State's foremost lawyers, who was for many years Professor of Law at the University of North Carolina. During his career he has devoted himself closely to the practice of his profession, and has taken a high stand, being learned in the law, a well equipped, earnest and vigorous advocate. In 1896 he was nominated for judge of the Fifth Judicial district, but in common with the rest of the Democratic ticket in that election he was defeated, leading his ticket. Twice he has represented Durham county in the General Assembly, once as a member of the House, and at the last session as a member of the State Senate.

Mr. Manning was strongly endorsed by members of the bar throughout the State, who urged that he is eminently fit for the position, is worthy of the high honor and is well equipped for the duties as any other lawyer in the State. Governor Kitchin and Judge Manning are close personal friends, and during the campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor he was the manager of Mr. Kitchin's interests. Governor Kitchin regards him very highly, and his opinion is well set out in the words of the commission issued yesterday which reads "reposing special trust and confidence in your prudence, ability and learning in the law, do by these presents commission you as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Henry Groves Connor, late Associate Justice of the Supreme Court."

The appointment of Mr. Manning is until his successor is elected and qualified and hence is for the remainder of Judge Connor's term, which expires in 1910, Judge Connor having bsen elected in 1902 and the term being for eight years. If Judge Connor had remained in the Supreme Court and his term expiring next year there would have been the nomination for the the office at the Democratic State Convention, and this will be the same with regard to Judge Manning, the nomination to be made at the next meeting of the Democratic State Convention.

Simmons and Overman.

Kenansville News.

North Carolina's two senators are making history at Washington. They remind us of the days when Vance and Ransom were there helping to shape the destinies of the people. Senators Simmons and Overman are powers in the Senate and the people of North Carolina are proud of their splendid records. They are both on important committees and each year finds them growing in that body of great law makers. Not only are they rendering a great service to the South, but in by gone years when the Democratic party called for volunteers to fight her battles these two men went forth upon the fields, and redeemed the State, from the mountains to the sea, from Murphy to Manteo.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.
Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.
We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

You Want More For Your Money

It Is Not a New Brand
Our celebrated "Banker" is not one of the various new brands, in fact it is very old. You have often heard of this celebrated whiskey, but probably never tried it, that is why we urge you to take advantage of this opportunity.

Made of Carefully Selected Materials
Our celebrated "Banker" is made from the finest selected rye in order to make a dependable whiskey. Nothing but the finest materials are used in order to make a whiskey the people will continue to call for.

The Seasoning Process
After distillation, a thorough seasoning process is gone through for five years. In that length of time the contents of a barrel is greatly reduced by evaporation, which frees it of dangerous fusel oil and tannic acid, leaving it pure, smooth and mellow. Then you have good whiskey. Don't fool yourself into thinking you are saving money when you buy cheaper whiskey, for in these days of adulterations it is only safe to buy dependable whiskey and take no chances. It is not generally known that whiskey is cheapened by reducing it with water. The only economical way to buy whiskey, especially when it must be shipped to you, is to buy pure liquor, and if you wish it weaker, reduce it yourself, instead of paying for a large proportion of water. Reduce it to suit your taste if you want to spin it out.

One Whiskey—One Price
It sells for one price the country over. $1.00 per quart, no more, no less. In any quantity, $1.00 per quart, and they are full quarts. Think it over, the age and quality of this celebrated whiskey.

IT'S A DEPENDABLE WHISKEY

5 Yrs. Old
BANKER
Bottled in Bond

Its Distinctive Taste
The distinctive taste of our celebrated "Banker" is delightful. No other whiskey can equal its flavor. It is to whiskey what the Kentucky thoroughbred is to horses—a thoroughbred among whiskies. Made of selected rye, wholesome, palatable, delicious.

What Your Opinion Is Worth
In addition to the opinion of a vast majority, pass yours, for you are the one who is doing the buying. Your opinion is what prompts you in buying. PLACE YOUR ORDER TODAY, taste it, and let a friend taste it, you will like it, so will he. If YOU don't, box it up, ship what is left back, get ALL your money and we will pay the carrying charges both ways. This is where we play safe.
