Richmond Pays An Atlanta Bet, But Claims to Win Out On Merit

On April 16th The Richmond Evening Journal sent the following telegram to the Atlanta Journal:

Managing Editor Atlanta Journal, Atlanta, Ga.:

Greetings,—Bet you a hat Uncle Sam's enumerators find more live people in Richmond than in Atlanta. RICHMOND EVENING JOURNAL.

The Atlanta Journal wired back as follows: Atlanta, Ga., April 16th. Managing Editor Richmond Evening Journal, Richmond, Va.:

ATLANTA JOURNAL. Upon the announcement of the census returns subsequently for both cities The Richmond Evening Journal telegraphed the Atlanta Journal as follows:

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29th. Managing Editor Atlanta Journal, Atlanta, Ga .: Will send hat as soon as it is built; none in stock large enough to fit At RICHMOND EVENING JOURNAL.

in fulfillment of its obligation, The Richmond Evening Journal, on November 15th, shipped on a Seaboard Air Line flat car an enormous hat (see accompanying picture), consigned to the Atlanta Journal and bearing the following inscription in large letters:

ATLANTA WINS ON TECHNICALITY

THIS HAT is from The Richmond Evening Journal to the Atlanta Journal in payment of a census bet. Atlanta census, area 26 square miles, population. . . . 154,00t tichmond census, area 10 square miles, population. 127,000 RICHMOND WINS ON MERIT.

Richmond, in area of 26 square miles, population 160,000 Atlanta, in area of 26 square miles, population 154,000

Excess of Richmond's population over Atlanta's 'The only true comparison is of the number of people in the same area."

From RICHMOND EVENING JOURNAL.

Richmond's claim to 160,000 population, as against Atlanta's 154, 000, in the same area, is vouched for in a signed statement by C. Ridgway Moore, Supervisor of the Census in the Richmond district. and by J. L. Hill, president of the Hill Directory Company, publisher of directories in a number of Southern cities.

The car bearing the hat has passed through, or will pass through, the following places, with a stop at each place, on its way to Atlanta, where it should arrive about November 30th: Petersburg, Va.; La Crosse, Va.; Henderson, N. C.; Franklington, N. C.; Wake Forest, N. C.; Raleigh, N. C.; Hamlet, N. C.; Monroe, N. C.; Wadesboro, N. C.; Chester, S. C.; Clinton, S. C.; Greenwood, S. C.; Abbeville, S. C.; Elberton, S. C.; Athens, Ga.; Winder, Ga.; Lawrenceville, Ga.; Atlanta, Ga.

When the hat reaches its destination there will be an explosion in

The above is taken from the Richmond Journal of the 16th. The carload- each had been exploded against her ed with the hat as per illustration passed through Henderson Saturday and after turret and side. In a sinking killing Cabrera. was seen by quite a number of our people as the train stood on a sidetrack in scious. Upstairs they found the draw- the yards here. The hat is constructed of galvanized iron, the shape "Uncle Sam" style. It is eight feet high, nine feet from tip to tip, and five feet across the crown. It is transported on a Seaboard Air Line flat car and attracts attention wherever it passes along. Those who did not get close enough to read the lettering on the hat did not understand the significance of the thing and much curiosity was aroused in consequence.

It is possible that this is the first time that one newspaper has ever bet the drawers and was set upon and another, and really paid the bet. It also shows Richmond's generosity toward her rival sister city.

We are looking forward for the Atlanta Journal's "come-back" in "acknowledging the corn" from its Richmond contemporary when this car load
