EDITOR DEMOCRAT:

In common with many of the citizens of this thrifty town, I am eager to see improvements in its streets and general appearance. The greatest eyesore, one that bespeaks a sad lack of enterprise and seems to imply a disrespect to the dead— which even China with all her stated indifference to the living would not for a moment tolerate—the most ragged spot in this fair city, is the old cemetery on Lincolnton street. Cannot our city council or our citizens as a body do something to wipe out this disgrace.
