CHURCH DEDICATED.

Dedication of the Presbyterian Church—Dr. Moore's Excellent Sermon.

Every seat in the new Presbyterian church was filled for the Dedication Services last Sunday. The Methodist and Baptist churches closed their doors, and the Episcopalians having no services the congregations poured out to assist their Presbyterian brethren in giving thanks for the completion of their work. In the pulpit with Rev. C. W. Trawick and Rev. Dr. Moore, who delivered the dedicatory sermon, were the Rev. Dr. Gwaltney and Rev. Mr. Bagby, the new pastor of the Methodist church. After the singing of "Oh, be merciful unto Thy People" Dr. Moore preached from Micah, 6th, 8th; "And what doth the Lord require of Thee but to do justly and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" A double thread of thought ran through a discourse which deeply impressed and charmed all who heard it. The supremacy of Religion above all other things and the duty of every man to act toward God and fellow-man as to keep the injunction of the text. This passage of scripture is so perfect an outline of what goes to make the man after God's own heart that those who designed the noblest building on the Western hemisphere, the Library at Washington, engraved it deep upon the base of that figure of Religion which towers above all the sculpture, all the glory and beauty of the noble edifice in which we have embodied our ideals as a Nation. The finest part of Dr. Moore's address, if any be preferred was probably the passages in which he spoke of the estimates which the master minds of all countries, tribes and nations have held Religion, of Hugo's sublime conception of Jeon Valjean, preferring to give up life, liberty, the love that made his life, in order that he might do justly and love mercy, of Scott's touching command, "Be good, my dear, be a good man; nothing else matters now;" of Lowell's stern, brilliant, witty rebuke to the infidel who had mocked God in public. His appeal to his hearers to hold Religion fast or lose all worth having was very impressive. He closed with earnest congratulations to the people of the church on their finished work, which would endure while they had passed from all things of earth.

Dr. Moore is a son of old Mecklenburg, and his ancestors have served their people in peace and war. A man of fine presence, cordial and unassuming manners and a depth of goodness that is written on his every feature, he is beloved by those who knew him well in the days when he with "Jim" Osborne, now of New York, and other noted Carolinians, prepared for college under that "grand old Southern gentleman" the late Col. G. N. Folk, of Caldwell.

Mrs. W. H. Cloyd and son, Edward, of Lenoir, visited Col. Dixon's family and attended the dedication services. Col. and J. G. Hall and Miss Gertrude, and Mr. Will Henderson, all of Lenoir, spent Sunday here.

After the sermon, Mr. Cline, on behalf of the building committee, presented the keys of the church to Col. Dixon, as chairman of the board of trustees. Mr. Cline stated that two things were noticeable in the whole course of the construction of the building—the perfect unanimity between those entrusted with direction of the work and the willing giving, the entire unselfishness and generosity with which the whole congregation had worked to make the new church a possibility. The entire cost of the completed building was $14,060. Not one dollar of indebtedness remained upon them now, and God had, he doubted, not, helped, in a special manner, or the prayers of His people could never have so been answered.

Col. Dixon responded with a very few words, full of feeling and devout thankfulness, and the dedication was completed with prayer. The music was especially good, particularly Miss Mary Ramsey's solo and the rendering of a beautiful hymn by the full choir.

A Fight for a Wife.

From The Democrats' good friend, 'Squire Sides, we learn of a lively scrap for possession of a bride. Mr. Elmore Smith and Miss McCoy of the Ivey mills have been lovers for some time, but the young lady's parents did not see matters in the right light—not in any light at all, in fact. Last Saturday night the young couple planned an elopement, she to start for a neighbors house and he to call for her with a hack. But the parents were "put wise" to the scheme, and started out themselves. They overtook the girl, who sat down tolerably flat on the big road, and declined to move. Presently along came the groom, when the "ole man" grabbed the groom to be and a lively tussle followed. The girl broke away from her ma and skipped into the hack, followed by the groom, who had gotten the best of the scuffle. But not yet was their happiness secure. One of the horses fell and broke a shaft. But love is all-powerful, and gave the devoted couple strength to reach 'Squire Sides residence on foot. He of twain made them one according to the statutes in such cases made and provided. Next?

Rev. J. J. Payseur Brands Reports as Lies.

There have been certain false reports circulating in this section of country regarding me and some young ladies. These reports are malicious and dangerous, and I, here and now, brand them as lies and challenge and one to show any proof for their truthfulness. J. J. PAYSEUR.

There will be preaching in the Presbyterian church next Sunday at eleven o'clock, by the pastor, on Monday Rev. Mr. Trawick will leave for Black Mt. where he will spend sometime in the sanatorium, for a rest.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church will have a Bazaar in the Marshall building beginning at 4 o'clock, December 13th. Will serve salads, hams, ice cream, etc. Everybody invited.
