Survivors of Crew of Silverlip Are Landed

Plymouth, England, May 3.—The British steamer Westgate, arrived here and landed the survivors of the crew of the British tank steamer Silverlip, which was destroyed by an explosion of benzine in the cargo while passing through the Bay of Biscay, five men being killed.

Story of the Wreck.

The first explosion on the Silverlip occurred in No. 4 tank, damaged the sides of ship and tore up the deck of the vessel amidship. She soon became a mass of flames which towered 70 feet above the damaged steamer. The fumes from the blazing oil and dense volumes of smoke overcame several members of the crew.

The fire spread from tank to tank each advance of the conflagration being marked by deafening explosion.

The wreckage from the ship and the sea around her was covered with blazing oil. The sailors eventually succeeded in launching steel life boats, but many of the men had to jump overboard and swim in order to reach them.

Soon after the crew had taken to the boats the Westgate picked up the survivors and brought them here.
