Co-education.

President R. L. Fritz in Lenoir College Bulletin

We live in a world of men and women and in a land of Co-education. See Gen. 1:27 and the last census of the United States. The facts in the case establish this proposition overwhelmingly. Of the 480 colleges in the United States, 384 admit female students—80 per cent. At present in the University of Virginia and Princeton are the only universities of note in our country that do not admit women. Practically all the colleges that boast of themselves as "agin" co-education practice it "on the sly"—like the temperance lecturer who took a little privately to stimulate his elocutionary faculties. Even the staid University of Virginia soothes "his" longings for female students by a largely womanized summer school for teachers. So far as we know Princeton has not yet been caught. Being non-co-educational is a "virtue" not entirely unlike the little boy's definition of salt: "Salt," said he, "is what makes 'taters' taste bad when you don't put it on 'em." Co-education is what makes schools great when they don't have it! True, men and schools can be measured to a certain extent by the number and character of the things that they are "agin." Were this not true, many would be "immeasurable."

A school may be long on many other things, but when "he" feels him—if called upon to inveigh against co-education "he" is evidently a little short on argument.

Sixty years ago there was not one college in the United States for women. Now there are above 30,000 women in the American colleges, and 2,500,000 women in our country who work for and earn their own living. This enormous army of working women must and will be educated. The time is close at hand when no school or college in this land will dare close "his" doors against women—the doctors and philosophers to the contrary notwithstanding.

At the recent Commencement at the University of North Carolina the immense audience voiced its approbation with ringing applause as young women, in group, marched to the rostrum of this venerable institution side by side with young men and there received from the hands of the honorable Governor of the Old North State the degrees and honors of their Alma Mater. All this in the presence of the great and learned Dr. Woodrow Wilson, former President of Princeton, Governor of New Jersey, and the finest timber in the forest for the White-house—and amid the echoes and cadences of his memorable commencement oration delivered to a class of over 100 men and women—he used his smelling salts not once! The irony of fate! What is the world coming to? Women becoming bachelors, masters, doctors! Enough to make old Atlas dizzy.

Co-education is the American way. Why knock? True, co-education like many other things took its rise in the West. Prejudice and traditionalism were weakest there. These constitute the source of the chief opposition to co-education in the eastern part of our country—as practically admitted by a great educator in a recent birthday speech. The presumption is overwhelmingly in favor of co-education. The recent flurry of agitation in the ranks of the "antis" seems to indicate that—unlike the Irishman's turtle—they are becoming sensible of it. Even certain "male" and "female" college magazines, after ancient Chinese custom, have made attack by emitting sophomoric vapors. Men and women live and grow and learn together in the home, in the church, in the primary school, in the university—except two—in life and in world to come. Why not in the College? Up to this time, the people have received no satisfactory answer.

A man teaches more by what he is than by what he knows. The greatest and best educative influence is the influence of one's fellowmen; and the strongest and best human influence is the influence of the opposite sex and of the two sexes together.

Much of the opposition to co-education grows out of the fact that the educational ideals of New England and of the East and South—which, being inter-

Thirty Years Together.

Thirty years of association, think of it. How the merit of a good thing stands out in that time—the worthlessness of a bad one. So there's no guesswork in this evidence of Thos. Ariss, Concord, Mich., who writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for 30 years, and it's the best cough and cold cure I ever used." Once it finds entrance in a home you can't pry it out. Many families have used it forty years. It's the most infallible throat and lung medicine on earth. Unequaled for grippe, asthma, hay fever, croup, gunsey or sore lungs. Price 50c, $1.00. ## SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson IX.—Third Quarter, For Aug. 27, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Jer. xxxix, 1-10. Memory Verses, 9, 10—Golden Text, Num. xxxii, 23—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

We have come to the end of the story of Judah for the time being, for when in captivity their history ceases during that period. Thus the 573 years of Acts xiii, 17-21, from the exodus to the building of the temple, perfectly agrees with the 480 of 1 Kings vi, 1, by subtracting the ninety-three years of the captivities in Judg. iii, iv, vi, xli; so also the whole period of the present age of Israel's rejection of Christ, which comes in between the sixty-nine weeks and the seventieth week of Dan ix, 25-27. Every believer should lay to heart that all time spent out of fellow ship with Christ is time lost.

The ten tribes had been carried captive in the ninth year of their King Hoshea, which was about the sixth year of Hezekiah, king of Judah. The Lord had borne with Judah about 130 years longer, sending them prophet after prophet and giving them such good kings as Hezekiah and Josiah, but they were incorrigible. "They mocked the messengers of God and despised His words and misused His prophets until the wrath of the Lord arose against His people till there was no remedy. Therefore He brought upon them the king of the Chaldees . . . to fulfill the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah" (II Chron. xxxvi, 15, 17, 21).

The account of this siege of Jerusalem, with the capture of Zedekiah and many of his people, is recorded in Jer. li and II Kings xxv, and more fully in those two chapters than in our lesson chapter. There were at least two very strange things in connection with this siege and the capture of Zedekiah. Ezekiel was a captive in Babylon, hundreds of miles distant, and yet without telephone or telegraph or wireless he was told to note the very day the siege began and set it forth by an object lesson to the captives at Babylon (Ezek. xxiv, 1-3; Jer. li, 4). He was told to tell the captives that the king would be carried to Babylon and die there, yet he would not see Babylon (Ezek. xli, 13). This is explained by verse 7 of our lesson. The time and manner of the flight of the king and his men of war from the city, according to verse 8 of our lesson, were also seen by the prophet in Babylon and set forth by fore the people by an object lesson (Ezek. xli, 1-13). The capture of Zedekiah by night helps to make more real that the darkness and the light are both alike to Him with whom we have to do; that we cannot escape Him when He wants us; that it is impossible to hide from Him (Ps. cxxxix, 1-12).

We think of Jonah and his capture and second commission and also of Num. xxxii, 23. "Be sure your sin will find you out." On the other hand, consider how safe we are when God hides us. Think of Moses in a cleft of the rock with God's hand covering him, of Elijah hidden by the brook Cherith and at Zarephath and of Jeremiah and Baruch hidden from Jehoiakim! If we are true believers we may well rejoice that our life is hid with Christ in God (Col. iii, 3). From the murder of Abel to the present time and on to the time when he shall be shut up for a thousand years the devil's motto seems to be "Kill, kill!" See his dread work in verse 6 of our lesson. Yet the murder of Zedekiah's sons bears no comparison to the murder of the Son of God in the presence of Mary. His mother. These men and all others die because of their own sins. He died for the sins of the whole world.

Some were carried captive to Babylon for their good, like Daniel and his friends, Ezekiel and others, but Zedekiah and his companions were carried captive as a reproach and a proverb, a taunt and a curse. This was shown to Jeremiah in the vision of the two baskets of figs (Jer. xxiv). It is not true concerning every one that "all is for the best," but it is true concerning all who are redeemed by precious blood; that all things are for their good that they may become in their daily life more like Jesus Christ (Rom. viii).

So the city was taken and burned, and the walls were broken down and the people carried into captivity for seventy years, as the Lord had predicted by Jeremiah (chapter xxix, 10). The mountains remained as before, and it is written, "As the mountains (not the walls) are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about His people from henceforth even forever." The captain of the guard left in the land some of the poor of the people who had nothing and gave them vineyards and fields (verse 10), reminding us of Zeph. iii, 12. "I will also leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the Lord." One feature of the coming kingdom will be kings' special care of and favor to the poor and the needy (Ps. lxxii, 1-4, 12, 13).

Jeremiah was still a prisoner when the city was taken (xxxviii, 28), but the captain of the guard (the chief of the executioners—margin verse 9) received orders from the king of Babylon to look well to him, do him no harm, but do whatever Jeremiah might desire (verses 11, 12; chapter xi, 2-5). Thus was fulfilled the Lord's promise to Jeremiah in chapter i, 19, "I am with thee, saith the Lord, to deliver thee."

Seemed to Give Him a Stomach-ach.

"I suffered intensely after eating and no medicine or treatment I tried seemed to do any good," writes H. M. Youngpeters, Editor of The Sun, Lake View, Ohio. "The first few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gave me surprising relief and the second bottle seemed to give me a new stomach and perfectly good health." For sale by all dealers.

Dr. Hall in the Food Division.

The Raleigh News and Observer of August 9, says:

Mr. Roger B. Hall, of Lenoir, who graduated at the University of North Carolina in June, has been appointed as second assistant in the food division of the Department of Agriculture. Prof. William M. Allen being the head of that Department.

Mr. Hall comes to his new duties very highly recommended by the University and many of the prominent citizens of Lenoir. He is said to be a capable and efficient man, and his friends predict a successful career for him. He will be given warm welcome to Raleigh.

Attack Like Tigers.

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Calif.
